Protest of Police Policies In Hiring

Approximately 100 persons gathered on the steps of City Hall, Monday, Oct. 20th to protest slurs against gay people as police officers, by the San Francisco Police Department's Captain O'Connor, head of the Public Relations

Only a handful of the demonstrators who walked in circles for about ten minutes, were very enthusiastic, Morty Manford and Arthur Evans, and the remainder appeared to be trying to gain a spot on television or in the newspaper. Most present agreed that it was not so much a sincere Tavern Guild president Dick protest, but a press conference of Gersbach "stars" of the new left of the gay rights movement in San Francisco.

Amidst chanting "Today's pigs, tomorrow's bacon," and "Off the fascist converged upon him. Both Taylor and pigs," and a call to "closet gay-cops" to "come out," the event was presided over pontifically by Mr. Paul Hardman of the Pride Foundation. Mr. Hardman introduced speaker after speaker who not apologize for the statements denounced the vicious slurs upon gay attributed to Captain O'Connor, but it people by Captain O'Connor, who has been made clear that the Captain most all agreed, is a "known has been censured and will not be homophobic.

Speaking in addition to Hardman, were Ms. Phyllis Lyon of the Gay Advisory Board of the Human Rights Commissions; Rev. John Barbone of the Metropolican Community Church, who was applauded with chants of "Off ists," as he concluded his remarks concerning the police. Rev. Chuck Larson, another MCC minister, and employee of SIR, spoke, as did James Foster, of the Alice B. Toklas Memorial Democratic Club. Wanda Adams of the Lesbian Rights Alliance, and Howard Wallace, a union organizer for gay people, were received by the crowd the warmest.

Hank Wilson, of BAGL, spoke as did the chairperson of CHE (Committee for Homosexual Equality) of London England, who just happened to be walking by during the demonstration. noted New York gay activists were present also, as San Francisco's own Harvy Milk and Larry Littlejohn and Highlight of the event was when Captain Jeremiah Taylor walked up and glared at the speakers as reporters the SFPD now say that they will hire qualified gay persons, that there is no discrimination in hiring in the San Francisco Police Department. He did allowed to give out any of his press releases without having them first been cleared by the Supervising Captain, Jermeiah Taylor.

The demonstration was put together by the Gay Coalition (BAGL) and was endorsed by (BAGL, Gay the Church, destroy the church-state Teachers' Caucus, Join Hands, Helping corporations, off the church imperial- Hands Community Services, Gay

National Organization of Women-NOW Golden Gate Chapter, Harry S. Truman Democratic Club, and Ernie Asten of the Eureka Valley Police Community Relations Council.

The event was covered well in the Examiner, and to some degree on most all television stations.

It ended amidst cries of "Gay Power." "Gay Cops come out now," and "Smash the Church and State!"

Both Wilhelm and Broshears have pointed out repeatedly that the unions are highly anti-gay, and now it is the "thing" to get behind gaypeople, but they still won't hire gay people or allow gay people in leadership posts in the unions. Proposition B, Wilhelm said, if not passed, will bankrupt San Francisco. On Human Rights

The magic of San Francisco is rooted in its unique blend of peoples and cultures. All should be respected and supported and encouraged to live their lives with dignity according to their own personal styles and needs. This is the very substance of human rights.

In 1969 I was elected to office through the support of those committed to basic human rights. I secured passage of the bill which outlaws discrimination on the basis of sex or sexual orientation.

Human rights have been abused in many other areas as well: housing, employment, medical care and education. I pledge my continued time and efforts toward attaining these most essential goals we share.

I would like to express my appreciation to all of you who have supported my candidacy.

A PERSONAL THOUGHT

In the spring of 1960 I met a man. His charm and magnetism overwhelmed me. He was a man of strength and conviction whose compassion and understanding of all people were reflected in his every word and action. There was no need for bravado nor machismo in his appearance, His masculinity was one of inner power and self confidence. He said what he felt and did what he said.

I, along with thousands of other young Americans, worked long hours that election, performing any menial task asked, helping to elect that man our President. We succeeded and John F. Kennedy became our President, our young Champion of Camelot, who was to lead us into the future brightened by his own special light of love and courage.

In 1963 that light went out, cruelly crushed by an act of hatred and complicity still difficult to comprehend. John F. Kennedy was no more and I, as millions of Americans, wept tears of grief and frustration. The tears for many of us have as yet not dried.

In October 1975 I met another man. A man in my humble opinion much like the other young man I had met in 1960. His name is Joseph Freitas, Jr.

Again I felt the magnetism; the warmth; the honest concern for the people that I had previously recognized in my earlier meeting. I spent more than two hours with Joe Freitas on a much closer level than I could ever have experienced with Mr. Kennedy. We discussed personal rights of all people, and of special importance to me of gay people. I found him not wanting in any of the prerequisites of leadership.

Joe Freitas is a strong man; one who believes in equality for all San Franciscans; one who will see to it that violent crimes against any of us, be we straight or gay, will not go unpunished.

Joe promises no special favors to any group but, rather, he promises that all San Franciscans will be given full and fair treatment under the law. If a law is unfair he promises to support steps to have that law changed. He will concentrate his efforts on victim oriented crimes and most importantly he will prosecute those that do not abide by present statutes prohibiting discrimination against any minority in San Francisco, including our own Gay community.

As in 1960 I pledge my time and full cooperation in helping elect this present leader of conviction and strength who is eminently qualified to be our next Djstrict Attorney — Joseph Freitas, Jr. —

Charles McCabe Himself

The Gay Vote

ONE OF THE more risible things around, if you have my kind of a head, is the spectacle of eight or so mayoral candidates, all sexually straight arrows, knocking themselves out to please our large local homosexual community.

There doesn't seem to be a drunk vote here, or a lawyer vote, or even anything resembling a white vote. There may indeed be something growing which can be called a women's vote, which would be largely directed to the end of putting one of their own sex in office at City Hall. This, however, is an unclear thing at the moment.

What is not unclear is that we have a large gay vote. We are constantly being reminded of this fact by the gay community itself, and privately by the politicians who are deeply influenced by it.

The usually accepted figure for the size of the local gay vote is 35,000. This amounts to 10 per cent of the city's 350,000 registered voters. When one-tenth of the voters goes as a bloe in these days of weakened party loyalties, you may be sure the politicians are listening.

GAY POWER is a real thing. The recent state law legalizing private sex acts between consenting adults, which has so offended the Mormon and fundamentalist sectors of Southern California opinion, could not have been passed had it not been for the gay community of San Francisco.

The measure was sponsored and strongly supported by two men who are now running for Mayor. State Senators Milton Marks and George Moscone. Its principal sponsor was another San Francisco lawyer, Assemblyman Willie Brown, who is also friendly to the gay community.

The San Francisco police department has already put it on record that homosexuals would be welcome in the force, a concession that would have been unimaginable as recently as five years ago.

THE CURIOUS THING about the current courting of the gay vote by the politicians is not that it is earnest and unremitting, which it is, but that the politicians are desperately trying to keep their seductions as secret as they can from the rest of the voters they are wooing

The Momma Mias and the moralistic Irish biddies out in the Mission and in the avenues do not like the homosexual community any more than they ever have. The gays are still called queers, and they are viewed in old-fashioned circles as just that in every respect. Sex still tends to polarize those over 40.

JUST WHO will get the gay vote, if indeed it goes as a bloc this time, is a delicate question. This vote is deeply indebted to both Moscone and Marks, of course. But they are also deeply indebted to Mme. Dianne Feinstein, who has fought effectively to combat discrimination against homosexuals in city government.

In fact, the power of the gay vote first became really known in 1969, when Feinstein was elected supervisor, and in 1971 when Richard Hongisto, got the sheriff's job. Both publicly attributed their election, at least in part, to the support of gay people.

No candidate has as yet publicly declared that he has taken part in a homosexual act, but I doubt not that the day is not too distant when not only will this happen, but the candidate will be elected. We live in stirring times, I tell you.

Milk Forum By Harvey Milk

Board of Supervisors stand, on the issues in the current election. The "I" — and my solid opposition to it sums up the case. Proposition "I" discriminates against women, gay people and the physically handicapped. The insensitivity of the present Board's stand to the people who live in the City has been repeated time and time again. their recent cuts in the Budget. How a poker - and does nothing to

There is a great difference between Board which is supposed to be sensitive where I stand, and where the present to the needs of the people can cut funds from San Francisco General Hospital, while at the same time it seeks to Supervisors' solid vote for Proposition purchase buoys for the Marina yacht club, is beyond me.

We have a Board that votes for a Transit First program — and then votes for more parking garages in the downtown area. A Board that lets 100 busses and streetcars lay idle because there are no funds for spare parts but never has it been so blatant as in the and spends $100,000 on a Muni Loves Board's stand against Proposition "I" - You campaign. A Board that winks at with the possible exception of some of the arrest of senior citizens for playing investigate murders. A Board that never thought of allowing the taxpayers to vote, either way, on Yerba Buena but does nothing to alleviate taxes by refurbishing the port and bringing jobs back to the city. A Board that wants to spend money on drinking fountains for the tourists downtown — but has no funds for Fleishhacker Pool for the use by the children of this city.

The list goes on. It amounts to a Board that is insensitive to the needs of the people. It is no wonder that they voted solidly for Proposition "I", which stands for discrimination in job advancement against women, gays and the handicapped.

stand for the needs of the neighborhoods. The needs of those who ride the Muni every day, of those who live and work in San Francisco. The present Board of Supervisors represents one district of the city, one district whose interests they have pushed on important issue after important issue: the Downtown district.

I think there has to be a voice to question their votes and their decisions. think we are not only headed in the wrong direction from a fiscal point of view but from an even more important point of view: a sensitivity to, and an ability to respond to the needs of the people who live in San Francisco.

Follow-Up: In my last column I made this offer: to each and everyone who is supporting to Prop. "B': "You show me one street sweeper who makes - or this year will make - $17,000 and I'll join vour side! If you cannot produce such a person, you may join my side!" Just one person in support of Prop. "B" responded. He said "if" such and such and "if" such and such . . . but as I said that person, nor anyone else, has yet to produce the mythical 17 grand street sweeper. So, I'll not join their side with their wild statements that they cannot substantiate. I'll stand strongly against Prop. "B" and cast my NO vote on "B" along with Willie Brown, John Foran. Leo McCarthy, Phil Burton, John Burton, George Moscone and let those who are in favor of "B" stand with the Downtown Association and the Chamber of Commerce.

I made a simple offer and they could not prove their case. But then the Chamber of Commerce told us how all those high rises were going to lower our taxes. They told us how good Candlestick Park was for us. They told us that BART was going to be a blessing. And how they have convinced the Board of Supervisors how good Prop. "B' is.

I almost find it difficult to believe that our current Supervisors bought the Downtown Association line, hook, line and sinker — but then, considering the present Board's attitude to people it is not too hard to believe. I guess that's why I'm running for the Board. I've had enough of the Downtown Assoc. running our city. Most of them don't even live here.

A Two Party System

The reception was honoring Saturday Review's move to the west coast (the magazine's final splash before it went under). What more appropriate welcome than greeting their transplanted staff on a retired ferry boat. Local "celebs," VIP's, and would-liketo-be's looted the buffet and bar with equal speed. Nobodies were acting like somebodies, and the somebodies were pretending they were almost anybodies. Like some commuter of old, I was leaning against a pillar, a solitary albatross, watching the human current ebb and flow. Off to my left, a young man made an abrupt, yet somewhat shakey, right turn away from the bar. He passed, intently, across my field of vision or one could say the magnetic field I had allowed to arc in front. He made a sudden U turn and braked for an introduction, "Haven't we met before?" He had the same look as Montgomery Clift in A Place in the Sun. A man with a mission — on his way — he had had just a Scotch too many and his defenses were wavering. I felt his managers or aides should have been more attentive, more custodial. Curiosities were rising, and something told me he should be spared. "I knew your father . . . he was a good man . . . " The navy pin-stripe suit stiffened, recovered from the momentary luffing of sail and headed trimly into the crowd. I stood rigid as if nailed to

It was still a time when men with dirty hands couldn't go to white houses. It still is. Yet this week we have acknowledged Gay within focus for a Supervisor's seat: Harvey Milk. More than any effort or benefit ball, more than any protest or PR parade, we need that seat. We are the last of the unrepresented majorities, and that seat is ours

Over the years I have followed Harvey's column in B.A.R. and sense what he stands for: Good things for people. I have heard him speak and read the modesty for strength, the understatement as integrity. I have been told he won people to his side: the moms and the pops of this town to whom a few years ago he would have been just another dirty word.

But I wanted to know more, the intimate, the personal — to observe the man in action. An arrangement was made to travel with him for a morning of campaigning. A mid-week Chronicle article pre-empted many of the questions I had proposed to myself. Questions rose and fell away, and the only one left the night before was, "Harvey, why did you shave off your moustache?" I was beginning to feel I'd never make an interviewer.

Alas, I overslept, missed the appointment, and flung myself about the rest of the day in an almost mortal embarrassment. Harvey for months has covered the city streets with himself and his leaflets, and I couldn't turn out a side for the trick. One man strides ahead in his far sightedness and another stumbles inside his myopics. (the latter a typical Gay malady)

In this, perhaps, trivial, incident: standing up a worthy man for the closer comfort of a warm bed. I sensed I failed the Gay community. As surely will so many of us next Tuesday, by not

Hence, this endorsement flows from a pencil that feels a little poorer in sketching an out-in-the-open-air man who is the richer not for what he says about Gay problems, but by what he is doing for people.

Harvey Milk once did something very nice for me. Last April, at a predominantly Gay reception for Milton Marks - low-keyed, friendly. A Sunday afternoon At-home. No converted ferry boat this time, nor Magnin manikins. No literary groupies nor Alpine politicoes. Not a party to make Womens Wear Daily twit and twitter. At one point the host took me aside, "There's someone here would would like to meet you very much. He's one of your most ardent fans." It was a new sensation. Me . with Fans?

"Paul-Francis Hartmann this is Harvey Milk." A broad mustached smiled, "I can hardly believe it - you're so young. From your articles, I pictured a much older man!" From that moment I became a supporter. For the kind of man I'd like to see around City Hall - a man who can make you bat your eyelashes when you know only too well they could get jammed in the crows feet. Harvey, maybe down deep I didn't need to see you clean shaven, in suit and tie. I have an earlier snapshot and it holds up well.

Coits Election

The Coits of San Francisco, one of the City's oldest gay organizations, has elected officers for the coming year.

Continuing as president is Chuck Demmon. New officers are: Keith Wayde, vice president; Phillips LaKose, treasurer; Jerry Prewitt, recording secretary; and Jim Leuker, corresponding secretary.

The Coits, a club formed to sponsor organized social events and to engage in charitable activities, are in their thirteenth year.

As we all know, Marks, a good person, and a kind person, cannot possibly be elected Mayor, unless the other four biggies drop out, but he will stand for re-election next vear. So, this time around, he will be faced by a real heavy, a person who is a jive-smooth talker, and it will be show time for the gay community. For they will Willie, maybe - for, just maybe, Willie won't make it through the June Democratic primary, as everyone's favorite, Bob Mendelsohn, Supervisorsuperior, is rumored to be planning for a try at Uncle Miltie's senate post. Sabotage At B.A.R.

After the "blinging (sic) glare of the footlights," among other assorted typos in the last installment of "more Lavender, More Politics," I could believe it. That, plus the fact that two days after that article was delivered to B.A.R. at 2:30 am Monday, Oct. 13, and two days before it came out, someone apparently leaked its contents. And at Candidates Night at S.I.R., Wednesday, October 15, at around 10 PM, Feinstein for the first time, took cognizance of the brutal murders rampant in our midst. Had there not been that two day lead in timing such as it was.

'sensational' Sentinel in reporting that Feinstein "blasted" the department, since she merely said that they would be investigated, it is true that as long ago as March or April, when the count was at only 9 or 10 murders, a friend brought me a police bulletin indicating that six months ago the police department, with whom Feinstein has sided so often to our detriment, knew that something more than incidental murder of gays was afoot. Yet it took the threat of making these murders, now at 14 or so in 15 months, a political campaign issue, not a day-to-day human issue, to get Feinstein to take notice. She was a part of the City government that went bananas in theZodiac manhunt (actual murder count unknown), and the Zebra dragnet half the number of gay murders currently committing the issue to print, Feinstein on the books), and a City government would be due an apology, but with that has done nothing about those 14

While I would not go so far as the gay murders over the past 15 months.

Six months after the police knew, and two days after it had been committed to paper as a campaign issue. Feinstein told us she had ridden around for four hours in a police car one morning (a far cry from manhunt or dragnet, and funny you should ask; I didn't know what for), eliciting the apt question — "Did she catch 'em?"

From that, Feinstein at that same candidates night made much of her "anti-discrimination in employment on the basis of sexual orientation" ordinance,, following closely on the heels of the police department, an agency of the same City Government that adopted that 'ordinance,' statement of adamant refusal (among other sordid comments about us) (the statement has since been modified) to hire gays, not to mention (actual murders unknown, but the the reaffirmation, with impugnity, not six dragnet went out on the count of 7, $\frac{1}{2}$ months ago, by the telephone company that they would not hire gays (ordinance or not ordinance). So her 'ordinance' has become nothing more than another of her nice little resolutions that mean nothing to us or for us, and she does not even bother to protest when the telephone company and the police department flaunt that oridnance.

Not long after, at that same candidates night, Moscone, bitter and angry, denounced us and Feinstein, attacking her for her stand on porno and us for even considering voting for her. Loved the attack on her; wasn't too happy with the putdown to us. (He was right though, The Examiner, which ran the last "cleanup" campaign in 1966, has repeatedly castigated us in its coverage and editorials; Charles Gould. its published, has reportedly said to gay leaders in San Francisco, that he wished and was sure that we did too, that homosexuality didn't exist) AND, The Examiner, early on, ENDORSED Feinstein for Mayor and that should tell you something. If it doesn't, there ain't no way you're gonna find out until it happens.)

Despite his raving attack at us and Feinstein, Moscone's most memorable moment came in yet another putdown to us, in response to the impertinent question — "Why is his family never at gay functions?" An impertinent question because it is really not our business to know "why;" it is enough to know that his family never is at a gay function. An impertinent question, to which Moscone snapped — "My family's private; I'm public," and go tell that to the neighborhood groups who attended candidates nights as husband and wife and children. More correctly, to us his family is private, but with the emphasis laid on politicians to be "a good family man," you can bet your ass he's not telling Mr. and Mrs. Familyvoter at the All-American Club Candidates Night that his "family is private." Puhleeze. Just how gullible are we supposed to be?

Feinstein rode around in a police car and helped enact a nice little resolution; Moscone is holding his family "private" (to us), and that brings us right back to the only candidate for Mayor who has treated us with the same respect and cordiality as he has other groups and other voters — Senator Milton Marks.

Senator Marks spoke early in the evening at that same candidates night. and he was the ONLY candidate who did not have to defend himself on any issue — we know where Senator Marks stands. No games; no politics with human life; no toothless 'antidiscrimination' ordinances; no obligation to Charles Gould or The Examiner; no bitterness; no anger; no putdowns; no 'private family.' Senator Marks stood where he has for the past several years - for us, with us, among us.

There, then, our choices for Mayor a woman playing slight-of-hand politics with us (in 14 cases, with a life); a man with a "private" (to us) family; or a man who stands solidly for with us and among us. MAYOR MILTON MARKS!

Harvey Milk has carried his campaign across-the-board to straights and gays alike and he has done it as an open, upfront gay. Harvey Milk has probably met as much opposition from gays as from straights, an opposition that has all too often amounted to little more than a petty jealousy that should be buried for the good of all. Harvey Milk should be elected to the Board of Supervisors as the first upfront gay politician in the City that leads the world in gay concerns.

You should not vote for all six seats on the Board of Supervisors, since its unique election structure converges to put unexpected people in unexpected positions of power, but you should vote for gay representation on that Board of Supervisors. HARVEY MILK

It is not just that Hongisto has done, or tried to do, what he promised when we first elected him, nor is it just that Hongisto is as relaxed as Marks in a crowd of gays, but anyone who can keep The Entrenchment as stirred up as he has for the past four years MUSI BE DOING SOMETHING RIGHT! MAYOR

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

I am Lady Sequoia, a representative of The Covenant of the Goddess. The Covenant was formed as an umbrella organization for witch covens and pagan groups in the California area. Although we ordinarily avoid publicity we feel that at this, our New Year, it would be good for the general public to be aware of the origin and reasons for celebrating the holiday now known as Hallowe'en.

It is hoped that you will, after reading the enclosed short tract, share our feelings and give it exposure in your publication. If you feel that somehow it would not fit as a topical article we would like, as an alternative, to have it published as a letter to the editor.

May the Goddess smile upon you for your help in this matter. Blessed Be.

/s/ Lady Sequoia

P.S. If you have any questions regarding this matter I may be reached at 752-6496 in San Francisco.

Why do we celebrate Hallowe'en? It is neither a Christian nor a national holiday, yet every year at this time the stores around with pumpkins, costumes and black-and-yellow candy. What is the origin of these customs?

Hallowe'en is the oldest holiday we have. It was celebrated in Medieval Europe and in Roman times, back before the birth of Christ. It was called Samhain buthe Celts, and it was one of the most important holidays (holy-days) of the year, for Samhain is the Feast of the Dead. It is a time for feasting and merrymaking, since the harvest is in and all preparations made for winter. At this time, it is believed that the veil separating the world of the living from the world of the dead is at its thinnest; the spirits of relatives and friends who have passed on are honored, and invited to the feast. Together we remember the joys we shared in life. Traditional Samhain games like apple-bobbing are still being played today.

It is also a solemn festival, where prayers are made that the winter will not be too harsh, that the spring will return, that the kindred will survive the dark time. In token of our faith, we give each other gifts.

When children dress up like ghosts and go trick-or-treating, they are carrying on a custom that is so old that most people have forgotten why they do it. And the real reasons behind this day are almost lost.

We are of the Wicca, and we still celebrate Samhain in the old way, with feasting and prayer. It saddens us to see our most holy day treated as a time when childish pranks and vandalism are tolerated and even encouraged.

We do wish you a happy Samhain. And on this, our ancient holy-day, we wish you the blessings of our Lady, who is the Mother of all.

(Editor's note: Some Christians do celebrate the same festivals for the dead, but on the two days following 'Hallowe'en: Nov. 1, All Saints Day; Nov. 2, All Souls Day, followed by the Rogation Days. See Dictionary for meaning.)

Endorsements and Commentary, 1975

Well folks, it's election time again, and this is our Special Election Issue or something like that, so just this once I've decided to dispense with the satire and, along with so many other columnists, commentators and kibbitzers, offer my views regarding the upcoming ritual we call the November 4 Elections.

This year, as in previous years, my position on those running for elected office (Mayor, Supervisor, DA, Sheriff) can best be said when one quotes that age-old saw about artichokes, to wit: One has to go through so much, in order to get so little.

In each election, there always appears in front of the Gay community, one or more candidates for some office or other who exhibit a large amount of charisima coupled with some small concern about the plight of Gays according to The Law. These people are taken in and welcomed as "freedom up looking wrong.

prices may surprise you.

By Mark Owens

fighters" or "crusaders" by a small group of Gays who purport to be our "leaders and spokesmen." As examples of these so-called "leaders and spokesmen," I cite the members of the Alice B. Toklas Club who wrangled that endorsement

As examples of the charismatic "freedom fighters," I cite DA candidate Silver, Mayoral candidate Feinstein and Sheriff Hongisto. Like the groundswell for Father Eugene Boyle during his Assembly campaign last time around, it has become very vogue to endorse these three candidates, most especially Silver, who appeared to have simply come out of the blue to take on incumbent Ferdon. I know knothing of her, except that SIR, Toklas and several others say that voting for Silver is the "in" thing to do. Neither do I know too much about Joe Freitas, though I have been able to talk to him briefly in the Financial District, where he was handing out literature. Therefore, in all honesty, I can endorse no one in this particular race. The only endorsement I can muster is this: Vote for one or the other, but don't elect Ferdon. Him I know about! In the Supervisor race a long time ago, I swore that I only would vote for one candidate - but those days aren't these days. This candidate, once a real fighter for both the Gay community and the San Francisco taxpayers, has, quite simply and in words of one syllable, sold out. I refer of course to Harvey Milk and his recent marriage with the Organized Labor Machine, which he once crusaded so violently against. Since that marriage, Harvey has come out against Proposition B (He neglected to mention that the AFL-CIO was, quite coincidentally, against that same proposition, in last issue's column. Check the Voter Handbook and see for yourself.), and dropped any reference of his homosexuality from his literature and personal appearances

Harvey Milk has degenerated from an upfront fighter that any Gay would be proud to endorse, to (and he coined this term himself; how ironic that he must be classified this way) an "Auntie Mary," the Gay equivalent to an "Uncle Tom") A Funny-Yoo-Don't-Look-It homosex-

In all honesty, he is the best of the three candidates running; Edwards is for 'n order, which we clearly don't need, now that we know the SFPD Chief's idea of "Law 'n Order," and Thomas platform is just plain silly. But I can no longer, in good conscience vote

That leaves us with the non-Gay contenders. The first thing to do is to not vote for any incumbent, or if one has to vote for any incumbent, then vote for Molinari. Second, there are a number of fairly good challengers, with regard to Gays. There's Enola Maxwell and Arnold Townsend, both of whom have netted several endorsements from various Gay groups; Sylvester Santos, who argues Gay Rights in the muy macho Filipino community; Espinola Jackson, and possibly Ream or Tepper, both of which didn't mind being endorsed by Gay Community Liason to the HRC, Jo Daly, in print (again, the Voters Handbook).

But then again, I could just find myself voting for someone like Bill Clark, simply because I find it amusing, in my own bizarre way, to have a Street Artist Artist Board of Supervisors.

Now we move on to the next office. and the next "vogue" candidate - the office of Sheriff, and incumbent Hongisto. I have never believed that the Office of Sheriff should be held by a cop. Sheriff is an administrative position, and the Sheriff does not run catching criminals like the cop on the beat does. That task is left to the Deputies, and members of the Sheriff's Department. After all, this is San Francisco, not Therefore, let us exise all cops from consideration. That includes Nevin (the so-called "Better Man" who walked out on the people by taking part in the illegal Police strike). Geary (the Vice Squad member ogled by dizzy queens, hecause he is "such a hunk," who uttered his now famous policy statement, "Jails are for punishment, not rehabilitation"), Bigarani (whose last assignment in a long line of Entrapment Squad jobs was cruising the toilet stalls at Macy's) and Senior Deputy Rabenorth.

This leaves only one other contender, and the only person running for any office this year who is truly worthy of voter support. His name is Gene Prat.

I support Prat because, for the first time in God knows how long, I can elect an administrator to do an administrator's

I support Prat because the very productive farm system and egg ranch at County Jail #2 would be reinstated. Besides supplying the inmates with fresh eggs and vegetables, it provides a cut in an already sky-high Sheriff's Department budget

I support Gene Prat because, as an educator, he is capable of turning the iails into centers of rehabilitation, rather than of punishment.

I support Gene Prat, because Hongisto is not worthy of support.

I support Gene Prat because Hongisto says he doesn't need us.

Lastly, we have the Mayoral race. Like the Nixon/McGovern election in '72, we have to decide on the least of a pack of evils. I think that Dianne Feinstein fits into that category, but I'm still not going to vote for her.

Now we come to the initiatives. These are always a relief when compared to shopping for candidates, because there is always a clear-cut "ves" or "no" to every iussue. . . Well, most of ecome a member of the anti-Street them. This year's ballot sports a great number of propositions, so, rather than go into them all, let us touch upon which have become centers of attention of late. Proposition B: "Prevent City Strikes!" the sign reads, urging a "no" vote on B. Unsaid: "Give the unions control of San Francisco." This is what Porposition B is about. It is an initiative designed to let San Francisco handle its own affairs, instead of having them dictated to us by the Organized Labor Machine. I'll agree with H. Milk's last colum that one would be rather hard-put to find a street-sweeper who grosses $17,000 per year, but it is not hard to turn up one plumber in the city who makes 60% more than another plumber, on salary. This system is unfair, and Proposition B would do something Proposition D: this is a sticky one, last time. but I'm afraid I'm going to have to side against all of those impressive names and urge a no vote. Expanding the Police, Fire and Civil Service Commissions from three members to five serves no useful purpose, unless of course the Commissions are loaded down with more work than three can handle. Otherwise, it fails on two points. If passed, it would let the mayor stuff City Hall with six more cronies, costing year. Both sides are way off the bat. an extra $7,000 plus out of the taxpayers pocket. Second, the Mayor if fully empowered to appoint a woman to the Commission under the present Charter. What I think they are afraid of is that a woman's vote carries more weight whenit is one out of three, instead one out of five.

Proposition E: No, plain and simple. Having the SFPD handle the SF this International Airport just serves as another excuse from keeping them from S. doing their long-neglected duties locally. Violent crimes are increasing in number, and I feel it is high time to get the SFPD out of every little namby-pamby affair, and back on the beats, fighting crime the kind of work they were supposed to have gotten their raise for.

Proposition J: Very much so Yes. This measure, allowing candidates to file petitions instead of paying filing fees, is the first real step toward non-elitist government in San Francisco. The next step is to eliminate filing fees entirely, but for the nonce, I'll be satisfied with what together hand in hand, yet they couldn't be much further apart in intent. Both measures concern the Street Artists. L, written by the Supervisors, would act to repeal last year's Proposition J, passed overwhelmingly by the voters last year. M, written by the Street Artists themselves, would provide reasonable regulation of artists, assure that all things sold by artists are hand-made, and would insure that nothing like last Christmas season, in which the Supervisors went lax on checking street artist product authenticity, allowed anyone to sell anything -

and then had the audacity to blame the resulting chaos on the street artists would happen again. Yes on M, and tell the Supes, "L No," just like you did the

Now things get tricky, because we are now into Propositions N through S, all of which deal with last August's Police and Fire strike. These retaliatory measures by the Board of Supervisors (N-Q) and Alioto's last big show for his Union sugar daddies (R-S), are, I believe, measures which would have never been brought about if the strike hadn't have occured during an election allowing emotion to overcome logic, and their porpositions show it.

However, I do agree with the Supervisors that if another strike should ever occur, the Mayor should not have the rabbit-in-the-hat that Alioto pulled this year. Therefore, I can confidentaly support a Yes vote on Proposition N.

Otherwise, the line-up goes like

NO FOR Propositions: O, P, Q, R,

It is quite true that legislation of some sort is needed in order to prevent future strikes, but I'll wait until June for cooler heads to prevail.

And that in a nutshell, is election. A very large nutshell.

PS: Good Luck and my best wishes to Jess Retorrick, whichever one of you becomes Mayor.

Stage: Camelot

The Civic Light Opera is winding up its pretty dismal '75 season with Lerner & Lowe's musical fairy tale, Camelot. Thanks to Douglas Campbell's smooth direction, Robert Randolph's handsome sets and the firstrate costumes of Frank Thompson, it's a visually opulent production that dazzles the eye. The score by Lerner and Lowe is less than memorable and the book by Lerner has always been a tour de force for the role of King Arthur and one-dimensional caricatures for everyone else. Camelot, on, off or under Broadway, has never been anything more than a spectacularly pretty snore, but the current cast at the Curran is giving their best to pump some life into the legend of King Arthur, his round table, his curvaceous wife and his

The final scene where a defeated idealistic King Arthur clings to young Tom of Warwick as the hope of the future is a killer of a finale and almost worth the two-and-a-half hours of uneven interest. Unfortunately, Edward Mulhare walks through the role as if awaiting a call from his agent that will take him away from all this. He's a dull actor, a so-so singer and an apathetic Arthur. He's also - forgive me for mentioning it - too old to be playing a youthful idealist, so we must suspend credibility right from the start, but that he does nothing with the opportunities the script presents him is unforgiveable.

By Donald McLean Mulhare has a certain matinee charm, but charm is a poor substitute for a listless performance. And without a strong, magnetic Arthur, a good portion of Camelot goes right down the drain.

Fortunately, Anne Rogers is a perfect Guenevere. The lady is a shrewd actress, avoiding the pitfall that befell Julie Andrews in the role; her Guenevere is never bitchy, Miss Rogers cutting back and underplaying the acid-tongue Lerner invested Guevenere with. Rogers' Guenevere is pert, intelligent and possessing a rollicking sense of humor. but she's also immensely likeable and appealing. Anne Rogers possesses a lovely clear soprano voice and gracious stage presence and she makes the most plus a little more of what the role allows her. You can ask no more of any Lancelot has got to be one of the deadliest prigs ever written, although he does get to sing two of the better songs in the score. Ron Hussmann also has managed the neat trick of bringing a ringing voice and lowkey wry humor to the role to undercut Lance's insufferable goody-goody stiffness. Husmann sings well, and plays Lance with conviction and almost succeeds in making Lancelot into a human being, instead of a symbol.

Gale Gordon has no such problems. Pellinore was written as comedy relief, and Gordon sinks his experienced teeth into the part and gets the maximum effect by playing Pellinore as a sharp old coot with a quick wit. He doesn't dither, bluster or mug, Gordon simply attacks each line with incisive bite; his second act

For two tedious acts, we watch given an exciting production, A.C.T.'s Daniel Kern, as the young son Eben bent presentation of Eugene O'Neill's Desire on avenging his mother and gaining Under The Elms is a dull production of a control of his father's farm, grab at straws. He slides in and out of a New Granted that O'Neill's 1924 play England accent, his outward intensity is ering passions, about greed and lust and a zealous, revenge-obsessed young man reduces Abbie and Eban to looking like up in the attic wrapped in a cellophane

> While Kern pouts, I don't know what Megan Cole is doing. The new wife Abbie is supposed to be a lusty widow emotionally frustrated who sells herself for the promise of security. Miss Cole plays Abbie as a dewy ingenue being led astray by her own sudden lust; rather than setting out to seduce young Eban to protect her claim to the farm, Cole plays it as a young innocent being seduced by his physical appeal. Since Abbie is the catalyst of the play, and for two acts the strongest of the three, propelling the action to its disastrous climax, Cole's sweet, endearing innocence coupled

She seems motivated in spite of herself, not as a driving force, and while Megan Cole is undeniably a talented actress, the entire characterization and concept is so far astray from O'Neill's Abbie that the focus of the play makes old Ephraim a villain and Abbie and Eben his victims. Wrong!!!

As the lonely old farmer seeking someone to give his life meaning, Ray Reinhardt never is the crusty tyrant we are told is such a monster to his sons, but he does manage to delve deeper than his cohorts to give a compassionate portrayal and evoke our interest. O'Neill's play is about three basically unattractive, selfish people; Fletcher's production seems bent upon showing us how really nice deep down they all are, so he directs in the shadows instead of the light, and the motivating passion never erupts. His pacing could be beaten out on a drum, except then we'd have Emperor Jones

At the end of the first act, the two older sons, well played by Raye Birk and Rick Hamilton, take off for greener pastures. I wish I could have gone with 2500 Market 863-1990 San Francisco for the purpose of raising money for the Denny Beller Defense Funds. This fund is to help Denny in his current "predicament."

Many of you may know Denny as the President of the Monterey Dons. What you may not know about Denny is that he is currently serving in the United States Navy with more than fifteen years of Honorable Service, and that action is now being initated with a vew toward administrative separation for reasons of unfitness (in common terms he is gay).

Denny has retained Richard Fox from Los Angeles as his lawyer. It is our opinion that this is a fight against unfitness charges and undesirable discharges for being gay.

For this fight these committees hope to raise money through different events to be held in San Francisco on Nov. 15 and Monterey on Nov. 23rd.

We need your support and participation in these planned events. For further information and/or donations to the Denny Beller Defense Fund contact John of the Monterey Dons at 648 Lobos, Monterey, Ca. 93940 or phone (408) 373-8137

Beaux Arts Ball

As thousands of on-lookers stared. open-mouthed, a dazzling array of persons brightly costumed, strolled into the lobby of the lavish Hyatt Regency

Hotel for the annual Beaux Arts Ball, on Sat. October 25th.

With well over 1200 people in actual attendance at the Ball, the festivities got underway at 9:30 pm, being directed by Dick "Cristal" Nelson and Archie "Ms. Olsen" And while those being introduced didn't always hustle fast enough in order to get the next group on stage, famed entertainer Michelle, kept everyone highly enterone which certainly was the most realistic, was the lavish production of tained with her wit and humor. One high-light of the evening was when Michelle introduced the Board of Supervisors' President, Dianne Feinstein, escorted by Supervisor Quentin Kopp, proceeded to give a certificate of honor to Oliver Sipple.

The candidates for Empress XI were introduced by Michelle. A most colorful entry was presented by Flame, who was entourage. And this was the winner. carried onto the stage by scantily clad young men, and had quite an entourage original, and very clever, and won the of associates colorfully costumed. Then came, Dolli, who entered to the tune of Hello Dolly and was accompanied by several young men in waiters' outfits, handing out tidbits and drinks. VooDoo's entrance was quite in- see-though costume, which was quite teresting, and she looked quite stunning in her new gown

Several uniformed men, wearing black military hats and brown shirts with Tenderloin. bloused boots, very grim looking, prepared the way for the entrance of their candidate, Jane Doe.

Then came Ginger, whose group the show rolling right along. was attired in multitude of colors which were matching, and looking quite certainly deserve great applause for the gingerish and spicy. Very original and time and energy spent in preparing for contestants for Empress, and the race for Politicians were all over the place. which is a credit to the hard work of Empress XI is now on, finally. But back to the fun part of the Cristal and the other Beaux Arts Ball evening, with the many different Committee members.
