AIDS measure wins in Assembly

Sacramento — Senate President Pro Tempore David Roberti's measure to combat AIDS by establishing an AIDS Research and Workshop Grants Section in the State Department of Health Services was approved by the Assembly on September 6.

The Assembly voted 45 to 21 in favor of the bill, which now returns to the Senate for concurrence.

"The battle against AIDS is being waged on several different fronts and on many levels," said Roberti.

"By passing this bill, we are elevating the importance of this battle in state government."

The measure (SB910) establishes an AIDS advisory committee to advise the State Department of Health Services. The committee will advise on distribution of funds for educational projects among groups at high risk for contracting AIDS, among health care providers and with the general public.

The measure was carried on the Assembly floor by Assemblyman Burt Margolin, D-L.A.

"Funding local educational and preventative efforts will return a great deal of community benefit without large expenditures of state funds," said Roberti. "This educational effort is important. By spending a small amount on education and prevention today, the state may reduce costs for treatment in the future." ■

Stabbing death on Stockton Strip

By Ted Sahl

Sunday, 3:30 a.m., Sept. 10. A misplaced word, a questioning glance, and an evening of "friendly drinking" took a bizarre turn.

After the 641 Club, located on "The Stockton Strip," closed at 2 a.m., an argument broke out between two men on the sidewalk.

An unidentified witness told how his auto was used as a "battering ram" to bloody one man venting out his anger on another.

Outraged by the brutality one man ripped a board from a fence and everyone chased after the man down Villa Avenue, where a second argument took place.

San Jose police officer Ortiz was summoned to 650 Villa Avenue in San Jose where a disturbance between two men took place.

Police report that Ross Anthony Brooks was booked on a charge of homicide.

After arguing bitterly Brooks pulled a knife and allegedly stabbed a Spanish man in his late twenty's.

The victim was taken to emergency hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Identification of the victim known only as Raphael is being withheld until the family can be notified. ■

AIDS-Panic Robber

New York (IGNA) Police arrested a man accused of robbing 10 banks by panicking tellers with a note that said he was suffering from AIDS and had a gun.

Garnett Wilson, 36, of Manhattan—who does not have AIDS—was arrested at his apartment after police received a tip.

Detective Joseph Pollino said the robber took about $15,000 from the banks by handing tellers a note that said: "I have AIDS and I have less than 30 days to live."

"He said he did it to get sympathy, not to create fear," said Pollino. "But he created panic in the tellers."

Clergymen back Gay bill

Sacramento (IGNA) A group of Northern California clergymen, declaring that the Bible does not condemn homosexuality, launched a campaign recently to support a bill making it illegal for most employers to discriminate against Gays.

The group of 29 priests, ministers, and rabbis, representing 10 denominations or religions, said they have sent letters to several hundred clergymen, asking them to participate "by giving sermons and writing newsletters in support of (Assembly Bill) 1, holding ABI letter-writing or discussion meetings after worship."

The bill by Assemblyman Art Agnos (D-San Francisco) would make it illegal for private employers to discriminate against homosexuals when hiring. Employers would be subject to fines.

"We take this stand directly on the issue of civil rights for all persons," said the Rev. J. Ogden Hoffman of the Trinity Episcopal Church in Folsom during a press conference. "This is not a religious issue," he said.

Several clergymen acknowledged that the bill would not affect non-profit private institutions, including churches. These will be allowed to continue to discriminate against Gays.

The clergymen decided to take an active role because of opposition to the bill from several fundamentalist religious groups that claim homosexuality is an "abomination."

"Much of what we once thought to be an injunction in the Bible against homosexuality we now see as mistranslation or misinterpretation," said the Rev. Merrill Follansbee, a Presbyterian minister.

Similar legislation by Agnos has failed three times in the last three years. This year, however, the bill has already passed the Assembly and two state Senate committees, and is awaiting action on the Senate floor.

Agnos said that he has 15 or 16 "sure votes" of the 21 he needs. But only one Republican, Senator Milton Marks, has indicated his support. Agnos said that if he does not have the assured votes before the legislature adjourns for the year on September 15, he will wait until next year rather than take a chance and lose again.

AB-1 may go to Senate floor this week

As reported in the last issue of Our Paper, the statewide Gay civil rights bill, AB-1, was cleared through the Senate Finance Committee and is now ready for a vote on the Senate floor.

Sponsors of the bill have changed their minds several times about when to bring the bill to a vote.

At press time, however, Our Paper had received phone calls from Gay political activists in San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Sacramento urging local Gay rights supporters to get phone calls in to Santa Clara County Senators Al Alquist and Dan McCorquodale. AB-1 reportedly will be voted on by September 15.

If the bill passes the State Senate and goes to the Governor's desk, calls will be urgently needed to convince Gov. Deukmejian to sign the bill.

San Jose Senator Al Alquist's office can be reached at (408) 286-8318. Sen. McCorquodale's office can be reached at (408) 277-1470; calls are also needed to his district office in Stanislaus County.

In Hayward, calls should be directed to Sen. Bill Lockyer, (415) 582-8800, to urge support.

Telephone calls and telegrams should also be directed immediately to Governor Deukmejian at the State Capitol.

The following is the latest letter received from Assemblyman Art Agnos, author of AB-1:

We did it!

Assembly Bill 1 just cleared a major hurdle in the Senate — the Finance Committee.

For the first time in the seven years that I have fought for this type of legislation, the bill is now before the full Senate. This is the last stop in the legislative process before the bill goes to the Governor for his signature.

And I have you to thank for this unparalleled victory!

As you recall, we were gearing up for battle in the Senate Finance Committee. But because the bill's fiscal impact is minimal — and thanks to the letters and phone calls from you to members of that committee — we were able to obtain a waiver of the hearing.

As soon as we have 21 votes, I have agreed with Senator Roberti that he will take the bill up for a vote on or before September 15th.

I believe that we are ready to win!

But now . . . more than ever before . . . I need your letters, telegrams, phone calls and personal visits to the Senators and then the Governor's office.

I am emphasizing the Governor because if and when the bill passes the Senate, there will not be time for further communication from me.

For that reason you must write and contact the Senate and the Governor.

This letter is a call for 25,000 letters to pour into the Capitol in support of AB-1 to the Senate Members and the Governor.

I need everyone! Won't you do your part now?

We are ready to win!

Sincerely,

ART AGNOS

Bible firm censors books

New York (IGNA) In a move long feared by observers of conglomerate takeovers of publishing houses, Dodd, Mead, & Co., the 144-year old publisher, has been forced by its parent company, Thomas Nelson, Inc., to cancel publication of two novels and withdraw a volume of poetry already in print.

Thomas Nelson Inc., of Nashville, Tenn., is the world's largest publisher of Bibles and considered some of the language in the Dodd, Mead books to be objectionable.

After being set in type, Tip on a Dead Crab by William Murray and Skim by Thomas Henege will not be published by Dodd, Mead. In addition, about 5000 copies of The Devil's Book of Verse edited by Richard Conniff, are not being shipped from warehouses any longer, on orders from Nelson.

Lewis W. Gillenson, president of Dodd, Mead, said that Nelson had insisted that certain "four-letter words, excessive scatology and language that took God's name in vain" had to be eliminated before the books could be published. Sam Moore, president of Nelson insists that Dodd, Mead publish books "that will not have offensive language in them."

The language considered not acceptable by Nelson included certain words or word combinations that used God, Christ, or Jesus as expletives. The four-letter word for copulation was forbidden, but the four-letter word for defecation was permitted.

The authors and their agents described the publisher's action as "censorship" and refused to make any changes in their already accepted and edited works.

Author Murray said, "This is one of my mildest books...the twenty words they wanted to change in the book were not in themselves of great artistic importance. But it's the ethics and morality of forcing changes that's wrong."

Murray added, "When I was first told that all I had to do was change twenty words, I said, 'Let me sleep on it.' But then I thought: Twenty words today, tomorrow a chapter. Who are these people to censor my book? It's all part of the conglomerate takeover and management of publishing. Authors who don't resist these censors are doing a great disservice to literature and the profession."

The firm of Thomas Nelson in the past has likewise published several books condemning homosexuality, one entitled Gay is Not Good.

Court victory for gay visitors

San Francisco (IGNA) The U.S. Court of Appeals has affirmed that foreigners cannot be barred from this country just because they are homosexuals.

The three-judge appellate court in San Francisco ruled that Congress requires a medical examination before excluding homosexuals.

A spokesperson explained, "We are here today as feminist womyn to say 'No!' to the war machine.

"We are here to support the free, struggling people of South America, and to say we are determined to keep this in your glove compartment!"

AIDS/KS Foundation Statement

On April 20, 1983, Dr. Marcus Conant, President of the National AIDS/KS Foundation, discussed, before a capacity audience, the developing epidemic of AIDS. He told the very attentive crowd at San Jose State University that grim statistics were showing a doubling of AIDS cases every six months.

At the time of the talk, there were no local (Santa Clara County) AIDS cases in the official statistics. Over the past four months, over 20 AIDS cases have been diagnosed and treated in this county.

Following his talk, Dr. Conant suggested that local chapter of the National AIDS/KS Foundation be started in San Jose.

Simultaneously, a contingent of members of the Gay/Lesbian community, who were aware that there was little help for a friend of theirs with AIDS, made moves to start a local chapter of the AIDS/KS Foundation.

These efforts culminated in the opening of an office at 715 North First Street, Suite 10, San Jose. The office is providing services which cannot be provided by San Francisco, i.e. referral to local physicians and hospitals who are now skillfully treating people with AIDS. The local Foundation staffs a hot line 45 hours per week (9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.), has a Speaker's Bureau, and a Scientific Advisory Board composed of physicians, biologists, immunologists, and other health care professionals.

There are plans for support groups for the "worried well" and for those who are diagnosed as having AIDS. Additional support groups are planned for those related to a person with AIDS (lovers, family, friends, children, etc.).

Our success depends on the willingness of the community to band together, to put "principles before personalities," to combat what has to be the greatest threat to the Gay male population (and, incidentally to the Gay Rights Movement) in the last 50 years. People are working together in the AIDS Foundation who, literally, have not spoken to each other in

Your OpinionsOur Opinions*GAY COMMUNITY-GAY POWER*"Gandhi & Gay Rights"

By Dan Simonski

Mohandas K. Gandhi was the spiritual leader of the Indian campaign for independence from England in the first half of the twentieth century. As a strategist of non-violent social change, he is considered "the father of peaceful resistance" and the inspiration for American Civil Rights Movements in the 1960's.

Let's begin by emphasizing what Gandhi was not. He was not a god or a man above men. He was far from perfect or saintly. According to Eric Ericson's prize-winning biography, Gandhi had very contradictory emotional drives. He could be dogmatic and judgemental, arrogant, proud, and ambitious. He abused his wife and neglected his children. Like all of us, he was a human being. But taking him off that saintly pedestal makes Gandhi a very real person whose deeds we can emulate as we struggle to win our equity as the "last minority" to be unprotected by federal law.

What was Gandhi committed to, and what does that commitment offer as a guideline for today's Gay Rights Movement? Gandhi's legacy to us is threefold: commitment to self, community, and to transcendent truth or values. For Gandhi, any proper political action on the part of individuals or movements required a balance of those three commitments. His commitment of satyagraha-non-violent direct action-was a means of maintaining this internal balance and turning it into a weapon to be used against one's oppressors. If we consider the relevance of our Movement to those concepts, we can better understand how to strengthen ourselves in the struggles to come.

In Gandhi's terms, no one can act honorably unless his own life is in balance. Therefore, personal commitment includes dedication to physical and mental health, as well as to aspects of spiritual health, such as honesty, responsibility, and self-reliance. Today's Gay health crisis seems to offer an opportunity to reconsider our responsibilities to self, and to reinforce lifestyles based on self-respect and mutuality.

Gandhi did not require that men be perfect in their action and beliefs; but he would urge us to live healthy lives in cooperation with others. At the moment, too many of us live in spiritual and physical imbalance, supported by institutions built around drugs and lifestyles that are competitive, materialistic, and self-centered.

Gandhi rejected any idea that social movements could be built on such foundations of weakness and imbalance. The individual participants would be too fragmented and insecure, the movement's strength dissipated through internal struggles.

At this moment, the Gay Movement, as I have recounted in previous columns, is stronger than ever. Yet we seem divided as ever by racism, sexism, ageism, and "looks-ism." Gandhi would interpret these fractures in our Movement as the results of failed personal commitment. But he would also see them as failures on the second level of commitment to community.

For Gandhi, community meant both the institutions that people invent to meet their social needs and the larger collectivity that we call "society." At times, Gandhi spoke of commitment to the "Movement;" at other times, to community, or culture-as-a-whole. He urged individuals to be part of the Movement through involvement in its organizations and activities.

By the same token we need to support our institutions-financially, as volunteers, as consumers of their services and products.

It is scandalous that none of our national organizations is fiscally stable. Organizations such as the National Gay Task Force, The Gay Rights National Lobby, the Gay Men's Health Crisis, and others can only continue to work for our interests with our financial support and personal involvement.

Similarly, the business firms that profit from our support—baths, bars, presses, major advertisers—must do their share to fund our Movement. All of us share and equal responsibility to the Movement at the heart of the policy agenda.

Gandhi's third level of commitment—to the truth—is harder to translate into contemporary terms, in part because philosophy has been deemphasized in policy debates in contemporary discussion. Gandhi based his political movement on transnational values like truth, love, chastity, non-possession and others, values critically important for their own sake.

But Gandhi also understood that commitment to those values welded his supporters to one another and helped each of them remain healthy individuals. It was faith in the transcendent that created and sustained Gandhi's people in their struggle to be free. Without the transcendent, he feared, the Movement would splinter and weaken; and, indeed, it did so in the years after he died.

Is there a place for transcendent values in the Gay Rights Movement in 1983? I believe that there is, and I believe that our values must be love and brotherhood. Our movement seeks to forge a united Gay Community, and to use that unity to build legal protections and acceptance. We can never become an American majority, and we can't force love. What we can do is transform our lives Foundation administrator, David Steward, all could have answered Mr. Revoir's, or Mr. Rogers' questions. None of us were contacted by either person.

Fact 1. The AIDS/KS Foundation is not a gay organization. It is true that gay men and lesbians have been very generous with time, money and talent in helping the organization. It is becoming increasingly clear that the solution to the AIDS crisis lies not only in one community, but in many relevant communities, the medical, the scientific, public health, and the community at large, as well as in the gay male community.

Fact 2. While cooperation with other organizations is desirable, substantive affiliation with other organizations, either gay or straight, is fraught with problems. The whole issue of "sharing" the Gay Community Center is a "red herring" anyway, as one of the major problems of the Gay Community Center has been a lack of space for its own programs and staff.

Fact 3. As regards the printing budget, we routinely ask for bids for all jobs of more than $50. As far as the scurrilous and most likely legally libelous charge that the owners of a local printing business (whom Mr. Rogers chooses to attack in his article in several ways) have been the low bidders for some of the Foundation's printing. On more than one occasion, their bid was hard to beat. It was $0.00 (that is, the printing, both materials and labor was totally donated).

Fact 4. The charge that there was no literature at the local AIDS/KS office is also untrue. When the former landlord reneged on his agreement to rent us an office, we had already printed brochures with that former address on them. The brochures were painstakingly changed, by hand, by volunteers.

Fact 5. Mr. Revoir, for his own reasons, tried to send over 500 flyers about AIDS, via the Gay Community Center, without the address and phone of the local AIDS/KS office. The director of the Gay Community Center, Frank O'Reilly, with both wisdom and maturity, decided not to send the flyers without allowing the the address on the flyers to be changed to the local address: 715 N. First Street, Suite 10, San Jose, CA 95112. This was deemed especially important in that the San Francisco chapter does not have our list of local physicians who are knowledgeable about AIDS.

It is a basic tenet of elementary journalism to check facts before a story is published. This is especially true when people's reputations, livelihoods, and lives are at stake. It is clear that facts were not ascertained before this column was published. The facts were easily obtainable. Any board member, any member of the Finance Committee, and the health crisis of the century." If there ever were a time for people to rise above petty resentments and to manifest truly selfless behavior toward our brothers and sisters, that time is now. The very survival of some of us is at stake.

Editor's Note: It is our understanding that Mr. O'Reilly's wisdom and maturity were given an assist in the form of a phone call from Phil Conway, director of the national AIDS Foundation, requesting that labels be put over the address and phone number of the S.F. Chapter, and that up to that time, the Community Center intended to mail 750 brochures soliciting donations for the San Francisco Chapter. Subsequently, a Center board member was appointed to the new board of the AIDS Chapter by its nominating committee.

A Thank You

At this time, I would like to "thank" all of you who helped make the first AIDS/KS benefit show held at The Savoy in Cupertino on Saturday, August 20, entitled "Tiffany & Friends Presents: The Stars Come Out," a huge success.

A very special "thanks" goes to Pat, owner/operator of The Savoy bar here in Santa Clara County.

The grand total raised for this three-hour show was $1,328.00.

Sincere appreciation is also extended to Empress 16 Lisa de San Jose, Imperial Crown Prince Dan and also Tiffany's roommate, Imperial Crown Princess Kelly, another roommate, for the many long, hard hours you put into making this a big evening for those attending the show.

Once again, a very special thanks to the community of Santa Clara County for your support.

To Mr. Richard K., your help and support is always greatly appreciated.

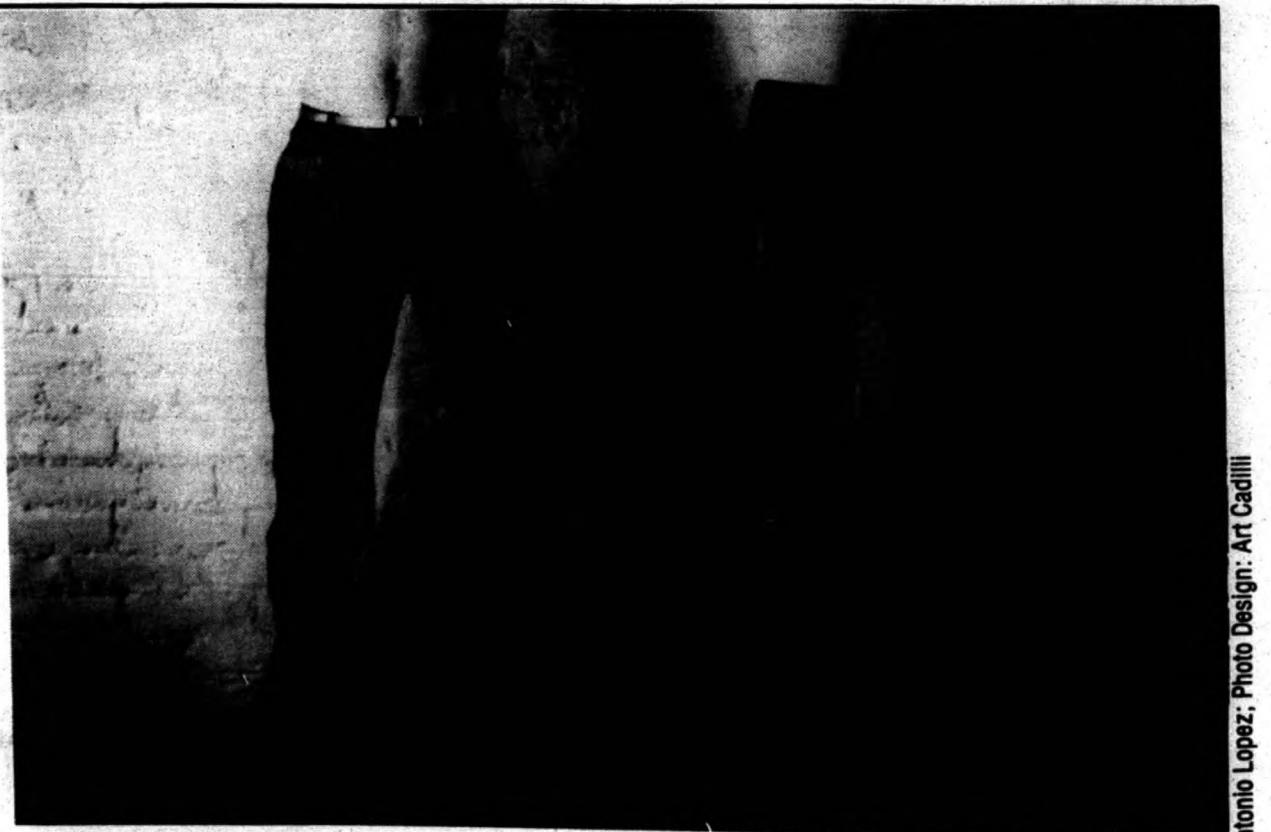

I hope to see everyone at the next "Tiffany & Friends" show to be presented in October.

To Jeff H., I appreciated your help in Stockton; San Jose is alive and we will unite and go places.

Love & Kisses to All,
Tiffany

Canadian province compels doctors to report AIDS

Calgary (IGNA) Acquired Immuno-Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) has been added to the Calgary, Alberta, Canada list of "notifiable" diseases, that is, diseases that doctors are compelled to inform public health officers about if they come to their attention in patients.

Dr. Barbara Romanowski, the province's assistant epidemiologist, said that the inclusion of AIDS does not mean that local boards of health in Canada are panicking about the problem, according to the Calgary Herald. "Let me assure you that AIDS is not being put on the list because we think there are more cases in the province that we know about." Only one man has died of AIDS in Calgary.

Other disease that have recently been added to the notifiable list are toxic shock, congenital infections in babies, Legionnaire's Disease, and Giardia, a waterborne intestinal parasite that has caused "beaver fever" among residents of Banff, a hot springs resort in Canada's heartland.

In related matters, the Gay community of Calgary has started a fund for research and education about AIDS. Ten thousand dollars was raised through recent benefits sponsored by Gay businesses in Calgary. A cross-Canada walk-a-thon is also being planned for October to raise $1.8 million for AIDS treatment and research.

Gay Atheists Attend World Meet

Helsinki (IGNA) For the first time in history there was an openly Gay presence at the World Atheist Meet, held in late June in Helsinki, Finland.

According to Jeffrey Vowles, president of the Gay Atheist League of America, writing in GALA Review, the Gay delegates did not have to "beg for admission" the way the Universal Fellowship of the Metropolitan Community Church has been forced to do to obtain its not yet granted membership in the National Council of Churches.

One of the resolutions passed by the world meet members was that religious repression of human sexuality should come to an end. Two others were secular education at public expense and fair access by atheists to news media.

Media coverage of the event consisted of spots aired on the national television evening news, with the Russian delegate speaking in his native language and Madalyn Murray O'Hair speaking in English.

Vowles said that a major difficulty at the convention was the "lack of a common language or a professional translation/interpretation service." Speeches sometimes had to be translated several times, and often were translated inadequately.

Vowles said that his experiences with Russian atheists convinced him that "unbelievers from countries with established monotheistic religion can expect little or no help from the bureaucratic atheists of the Soviet Union." He was far from impressed with Victor Gadjadja, the Russian delegate who heads the government-financed Atheist Institute in Moscow. Vowles' complaint was about Soviet reticence and passivity, especially considered in the light of Ms O'Hair's verbal attacks on the sanity of President Ronald Reagan.

Not all anxiety ridden people are gay men, however. Gay Switchboard has had frantic calls from grandmothers who fear they may catch the disease after learning their grandsons are gay. One married woman telephoned a hospital to ask if there was any chance her husband might be secretly bisexual and pass AIDS on to her.

for discussion at the 1984 conference in Helsinki.

Business meetings included the strengthening of IGA structures and finance committees. The most active countries were the Scandinavian and Dutch. Only two British groups (CHE and Gay Medical Association) were present, with CHE not participating this year. A separate group of Scots arrived in a minibus.

Since the World Psychiatric Association was meeting in Vienna at the same time, the IGA delegates sent a delegation to express Gay concerns.

International Gay Association holds annual conference

by Michael Brown

Vienna (IGNA) Vienna was chosen for the annual IGA conference this year, in IGA's continuing effort to unite Gays internationally, to put pressure on homophobic governments, and to work on matters of worldwide concern, such as AIDS.

In some places, the laws are so harsh that Gays cannot organize, and here sometimes outsiders can help.

Eastern Europe was represented as were the Third World countries of Indonesia, Venezuela, and Brazil.

A variety of topics was discussed, from Gay health to the situation in Communist countries, to the admission of South Africa, as well as S & M, religion, and changing the World Health Organization's classification of homosexuality as an illness.

The stormiest debate took place over the admission of South Africa's Gays to the organization. Leftist delegates worked to attach anti-apartheid conditions to the admission of GASA (the Gays of South Africa), but the IGA constitution forbids adding conditions. A group must either be accepted or rejected.

South African opponents tried to associate GASA with South Africa's white supremacy policies, for example by pointing out that the GASA paper is written in (IGNA) Fear of catching AIDS is causing more harm in Britain than the disease itself. People are literally worrying themselves sick with little reason and may need psychiatric help, say doctors and voluntary workers.

AIDS phobia in England

People are so frightened by newspaper and television reports of the disease that one London hospital alone, St. Mary's of Paddington, has reported hundreds of patients suffering from AIDS-related anxiety, some to the point of being suicidal.

Three cases of "severe psychiatric illness with fear of AIDS as the dominant feature" were reported in August in the British Medical Journal by Dr. Jonathan Weber and Dr. David Goldmeier of St. Mary's.

All were unable to work because they feared they might pass on the disease. None had any of the physical abnormalities associated with AIDS, of which there are only 14 confirmed cases in Britain.

Worst hit by this new stress syndrome are gay males, responding to reports that they are most at risk from the disease.

Tony Whitehead of the Terrence Higgins Trust, a London-based organization set up to fund AIDS research and support sufferers, said, "Very often people are simply being sensible and checking just what the risks are and what they can do to reduce them. But where you have people who haven't accepted their sexuality, the combination of guilt feelings, scaremongering reports, and general anxiety can be explosive."

Not all anxiety ridden people are gay men, however. Gay Switchboard has had frantic calls from grandmothers who fear they may catch the disease after learning their grandsons are gay. One married woman telephoned a hospital to ask if there was any chance her husband might be secretly bisexual and pass AIDS on to her.

One of the highlights of the meet was a demonstration by Indian atheists to expose the fraud of holy men.

Foreign translations

(IGNA) In an effort to provide modern English translations of hitherto hard-to-obtain works by early Gay liberationist Karl Heinrich Ulrichs and others, a translator has made 20 translations of works originally written in Dutch and German.

Michael A. Lombardi says he has undertaken the translating chores because it "will benefit the entire community...by handing down the lists of the victims of homophobia as well as the lists of heroes from past centuries."

There is also a translation of a 1904 speech by Anna Reuling the brings Gay rights and women's rights under one umbrella.

Most of the basic writing on homosexuality has been concentrated in the past 100 years, and for the first 50 years the major contributions were in German—until the rise of Nazism. Magnus Hirschfeld, Karl Ulrichs, and Kurt Hiller all contributed to the Gay cause by writing and speaking on

Part III

Although the official press conference has been postponed until Tuesday, September 20, Jim Reber has indeed found his pot of gold. The following announcement was received at press time...

"San Jose Repertory Company and San Jose Symphony will host a news conference on Tuesday, September 20, 1983 at 10 a.m. in the Ridder Lounge (at the San Jose Center for the Performing Arts), located at the corner of Almaden Boulevard and San Carlos Street in Downtown San Jose.

*"The news conference will provide details of the largest corporate sponsorship of a performing arts event in San Jose's history by Merrill Lynch. The Merrill Lynch Grand Performance will take place in May, 1984 at the San Jose Center for the Performing Arts. The Merrill Lynch Grand Performance will be William Shakespeare's The Tempest, produced jointly by Richard H. Wright, the Symphony's general manager, and Reber.*

"Attending the news conference will be members of the Rep and Symphony staff, Maestro George Cleve, the play's director (to be announced at the conference) and representatives from Merrill Lynch.

*The Merrill Lynch Grand Performance will be the largest theatre production in Northern California next season. The Tempest will be a*

'subscribers only' event."

So, you see, there's more to theatre than meets the audience's discerning eye. With the Symphony and Rep's capture of

the door to future corporate giving to the arts has been flung open—wide! Congratulations are certainly in order for Richard H.

Wright, the Symphony's general manager, and Reber.

"This series will continue..."

The Love Twins, Laurnea Wilkerson and Phil Gibson, stood in for India at Desperados' "Red Party" on September 4. For more info, read "Vectors."

Directors Chosen

David Lemos, Producing Director for San Jose Repertory Company has finalized the choice of directors for the upcoming 83-84 season at the Montgomery Theatre.

Lemos will direct the season opener: The Dining Room (Nov. 26-Dec. 11). He will be assisted by Equity stage manager Peter Buckley. Tom Ramirez will direct The Miracle Worker (Jan. 7-22). Peter Nyberg will stage How the Other Half Lives (Feb. 11-26). Buckley will direct Nuts (March 17-April 1). And Julian Lopez-Morillas will head the production of The School for Scandal (April 14-29).

Lemos, director of A.R. Gurney's The Dining Room, joined the Rep in 1980 to create its production team. A theatre arts/television graduate from the University of Santa Clara, he is an accomplished actor, choreographer, publicist, writer, and director. In addition to directing productions of Starting Here, Starting Now and Applause, he has directed San Jose Rep's critically-acclaimed productions of Moliere's Tartuffe and Michael Cristofor's The Shadow Box.

Ramirez directs his first Rep show, The Miracle Worker by William Gibson, after several successful seasons with the company as an Equity guest artist. He appeared for two years at San Diego's Old Globe before spending six seasons acting and directing at California Actors' Theatre in Los Gatos where he directed their well-received production of Spokesong. Ramirez has worked on the Pan-Andreas Theatre in Los Angeles, narrated for the San Jose Symphony, and was a company member of this summer's Sunnyvale Summer Rep. In addition to playing major roles at the Rep, Ramirez has produced and directed San Jose Rep's "Studio Stage" productions of The Dock Brief, Under Milkwood and Pleasure and Repentance.

Nyberg returns to the Rep to direct Alan Ayckbourn's How the Other Half Loves after directing last season's The Lion in Winter. Nyberg was the co-founder and artistic director of California Actors' Theatre in Los Gatos. He has worked with the Repertory Company at Lincoln Center, San Francisco's American Conservatory Theatre, and Ashland's Oregon Shakespeare Festival. He has also worked extensively in television and film in Los Angeles. Nyberg's production of Beyond the Fringe is currently playing in San Francisco.

Buckley, who is a director, actor and playwright as well as San Jose Rep's production stage manager, will direct Tom Topor's Nuts. He has worked with the California Young People's Theatre, the Aquarius Theatre, and the Pacific Arts Center in Arcata. A theatre arts graduate of the University of Santa Clara, he served as artistic director of the Collective Arts Theatre Company and wrote The Jumping Off Place for the Saratoga Chamber Theatre.

Lopez-Morillas, director for Richard Brinsford Sheridan's The School for Scandal, has been an actor and fight master at Ashland's Oregon Shakespeare Festival. He has a degree in English Literature from Swarthmore College, and did graduate studies at Carnegie Mellon University and Yale. His most recent work has been as an actor and director at Berkeley Shakespeare Festival where he directed Twelfth Night, King Lear, Pericles (which won a Bay Area Critics Award) and this summer's critically acclaimed production of King John.

The five productions will be staged in the Montgomery Theatre in Downtown San Jose. The director has not been announced at this time for San Jose Rep's sixth show: Shakespeare's The Tempest done in conjunction with the San Jose Symphony at the Center for the Performing Arts.

women's dancing choruses were fine, with special mention going to Steve Completo and Dennis Hersey. Barabra Valentes choreography was clean, apt and well executed.

The orchestra was spirited, but not overbearing.

Cole continues through September at the Saratoga Civic Theatre. Don't miss it.

The earliest surviving musical composition that can be attributed to any one individual was written by Richard the Lion Hearted, the Gay English King.

DOUBLE TROUBLE is what Disco singer India ran into when his agent booked him for two performances on Sunday, September 4—one at Desperados, the other in Hawaii! Club owner John Snell (about to embark on a tour of his own!) was able to get the Love Twins to stand-in at the "Red Party" Labor Day weekend. India has promised to book another date; and, while Jon's in Europe, manager Dennis Reitano is holding down the hacienda...

In the Groove

The wine is open and breathing, the chicken is in the oven, company is coming! "Oh no! What do you put on for music?...A disco tape won't do, and I'm tired of the sound track to One From The Heart and nobody will come back if I put on another musical..."

Ever feel like? Your tastes are all encompassing but you've spent your last fortune on Donna or Diana or Irene. Well, have no fear, with the holidays coming (Christmas, not Halloween) there is already a plethora of excellent contemporary music flooding the record racks. Here's a mini-sampling of some records to brush by...

ELTON JOHN/Too Low for Zero/Geffen

This album will probably be neglected by most because of that single that radio is playing to death. "I'm Still Standing" is my least favorite cut on the LP. Bernie Taupin is back with E.J. for their best writing since Goodbye Yellow Brick Road. The whole band has never sounded better. Check out "Too Low" and "Guess That's Why They Call It The Blues" for my raves. Worth the money to add to your Elton collection.

VAN MORRISON/Inarticulate Speech of the Heart/Warner Bros.

The last record I bought by Van Morrison was Tupelo Honey. I've played it so many times I could read a newspaper through it. Every cut is superb. This album is no exception. It has a sultry silkiness about it, like the Moments album by Boz Scaggs. "Higher Than the Mountain" is my favorite cut. The whole LP flows like a cool breeze on a hot summer night. Lots of instrumental cuts, too!

"Til next time, see you at the clubs... ●

FORTUNES

By Tycho

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) Changes that you've considered making in the past may now present themselves as absolutely necessary. A decision that requires no looking back may take you into some strange and unfamiliar territory. Be the brave explorer. The time has come.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) You've got secrets to conceal; or one part of you that was once concealed is now out front and obvious! For anyone who thinks the closet is no more, this could be a very surprising time. This process always continues. Move right along, please.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) Scorpions love their privacy, but you may have to forego some of that for now. You'll be with others, like it or not. Taking care of their needs, joining in on their activities, you could make some new contacts that will prove very important. Seek, don't hide.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) Others may marvel at and even envy the adventure that your life is becoming. Remember that not everyone shares this sense of romance and excitement; don't show off! At the same time, there's not a thing to be ashamed of. Enjoy this run of fun you're having.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) Someone who looks up to you as a big brother or sister is going to need some special attention. Your judgement and experience will be demanded. You'll be asked to consider how deep your love is. Sex? That may be confusing, but delicious, all the same.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) Time to do a bit of explaining and cleaning up. Your home life is important to you, but the problem is that there's someone or something else in your life that's also very important. Straddling the fence can be painful. Which way now?

PISCES (February 19-March 20) It's difficult to make predictions or plans when things are changing so rapidly. Hold on to your sense of relative importance, because the winds of change will blow you this way and that. Learn how to fly with both feet on the ground. It ain't easy, but you can do it!

ARIES (March 21-April 20) You are working for and with others. Having made up your mind about something you were unsure of, you move forward with a great deal of tenderness, compassion, and strength of purpose. Someone with even more idealism than you will be attracted.

TAURUS (April 21-May 20) If it weren't for your love life, things would be fine. This battle that you and a loved one are having will soon come to a head. You're in the position of making big decisions, and once you do, you'll be able to get on beautifully with your life.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) Be open for that sudden inspiration. Don't go around closing any doors on anything or anyone. Since you've got such charm and sexy ways, you'll have plenty of openings to consider—so get ready to venture out on an unbelievable adventure.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) With more energy than you've had in a long time, you're thinking and working for definite goals. No more wishy-washy! No more of the "What'll I do?" syndrome. You know what you're headed for, and with some careful attention to detail, you'll get it.

LEO (July 23-August 22) You're getting close and closer to what you want. You can almost feel it. If you don't let your incredible ego get out of hand, it will soon be yours. Keep in touch with your soft and gentle side. "Firm, but yielding" are the key words.

A very well rounded LP. All her albums have been both great and under-rated. Dig past her hits, this lady gathers up some great tunes to cut. "Telephone" will have everyone shaking up the champagne. "Almost Over You" will have you misty-eyed (we've all been there!). One of the fall's best Pop offerings.

MADONNA/Madonna/Warner Bros.

If your group will be more into party than parry, this is the LP for you! The talk of New York is Madonna, the blonde bombshell that looks like a cross between Marilyn Monroe and Jean Harlow, except neither of those girls ever wore a dog chain around her neck. Her 12" debut hit Everybody sold over 150,000 copies across the U.S. The follow-up album comes through like a champ! Get this LP, you won't have to make a party tape.

SCOOPS!

Michael "Maniac" Sembello has an album due next week. Bossa Nova Hotel is produced by Phil Ramone (Flashdance) and is it HOT! Jennifer Holliday spent her days off from Dreamgirls in the studio. The result is a sultry single "I Am Love" and a hot album produced by Maurice White (E.W. and Fire) called Feel My Soul. It's due out mid-September.

We have a dream, too!

by Ted Sahl

Hello Mr & Mrs Gay America—
San Francisco, CA. The Jobs, Peace and Freedom March took place in San Francisco to commemorate the dream of Martin Luther King Jr., who twenty years ago marched on Washington with 250,000 people.

Twenty thousand marched in San Francisco. Most marched down McAllister to the steps of City Hall to hold a rally.

Songs such as "Reagan, Reagan, he's no good! Send him back to Hollywood!" were sung.

Marching along side "straights," Gay men and Lesbians held their lovers—and a sign... "We have a dream, too."

Political groups, unions, religious organizations, and people from the anti-nuclear movements marched side-by-side for Jobs, Peace, and Freedom. ● for the clarity of her writing, gives you a great foundation for the full scope of Mexican cookery. By the way, this is also a paperback edition.

However, once you've gotten that down to a science, go on to try Diane Kennedy's The Cuisines of Mexico. Kennedy will amaze you with some combinations of flavors that are as elegant as the more highly regarded disciplines of French and Chinese culinary art.

Speaking of Chinese food, I have a rather unpopular opinion in that area. There are no good books on the subject for the beginner. Chinese cooking requires techniques of the most basic sort—heat sources, for example—that cannot be learned outside of practical, hands-on experience. I recommend taking a course in cooking for those who want to be masters of the wok and the Manchurian barbecue. After that, continue your experience with a book known to your instructor for what kind of cooking.

It's also clear, step-by-step guide to every basic technique that you'll require to make almost any dish. A super bonus for me is a table of equivalents that lists possible substitutions for those embarrassing moments when you've run out of a necessary ingredient.

But I take along a cookbook or two to study while I sun. That's the secret: by the time fall comes, I've found some new recipes that wow my guests. Besides, I've found that it's a lot easier to follow the plotline of a recipe than a murder mystery when there are so many distractions about.

Just so you can do the same thing, I thought I'd clue you in on some of my favorite recipe sources. Many of them are old standards, but indispensable ones. Some are a little out-of-the-way.

You can tell from the stained pages that those are my most-used sources. The New York Times Cookbook, or anything by Craig Claiborne, merits high marks. The Tassajara Bread Book, a paperback from Shambhala Books in Berkeley, Ca., gives easy instructions for breads of all sorts, as well as some delicious ideas for pastries, pancakes, and desserts.

I have dozens more, all of which wouldn't be seriously missed if I could keep the ones I've named. The most serious fault of inexperienced cooks is overambition. Once the basics are learned, you can go on to your own ideas with confidence, creating dishes that you'll want to keep a file of. Write your own cookbook!

As a matter of fact, that goes for almost any kind of cooking. Everyone in my house is crazy about Mexican food, and until I discovered Elena's Secrets of Mexican Cooking by Elena Zelayeta, what we had at home was easily outclassed by Taco Bell. Elena, a remarkable woman whose blindness may be the basis of my idea of the cookbook that everyone should own is The Joy of Cooking, by Irma Rombauer. It's now out in paperback from Signet Press, but even if it weren't, it would be worth a hardcover price. No matter how advanced I think my skills are, I still find basic information for a beginner.

Lifestyle

RIP-OFFS AND ROSES

"A Friend to Cuddle With"

If you're a sedentary type, you won't be too enchanted with the hyperactivity of a Doberman, for example.

Once you've picked a specific breed, familiarize yourself with sources where you can obtain it.

It seems to be a dog in every block, towing along a reluctant owner.

Pet food is a multi-billion dollar industry in the United States.

It seems that everyone in the country owns or is in the process of buying a pet.

By all means, stay away from "puppy mills" and grand-size pet stores. Prices may be right, and it could be attractive to be able to see several different dogs at the same time, but the conditions in which these dogs are raised make them an unhappy source for a pet.

Many dogs, even of the most expensive breeds, are confined in cages for the duration of their breeding existence, and have never had any real human contact. Their pups are sold to big stores and pet chains.

The attractions are obvious: a pet is always there for you, it never has headaches, and it doesn't ask embarrassing questions when you stay out late.

On the other hand, it can't tell you when it's sick, it may require more care and grooming than you're willing to supply, and it may not be able to complete its daily exercise.

However, once you've gotten that down to a science, go on to try Diane Kennedy's The Cuisines of Mexico. Kennedy will amaze you with some combinations of flavors that are as elegant as the more highly regarded disciplines of French and Chinese culinary art.

Speaking of Chinese food, I have a rather unpopular opinion in that area. There are no good books on the subject for the beginner. Chinese cooking requires techniques of the most basic sort—heat sources, for example—that cannot be learned outside of practical, hands-on experience. I recommend taking a course in cooking for those who want to be masters of the wok and the Manchurian barbecue. After that, continue your experience with a book known to your instructor for what kind of cooking.

It's also clear, step-by-step guide to every basic technique that you'll require to make almost any dish. A super bonus for me is a table of equivalents that lists possible substitutions for those embarrassing moments when you've run out of a necessary ingredient.

But I take along a cookbook or two to study while I sun. That's the secret: by the time fall comes, I've found some new recipes that wow my guests. Besides, I've found that it's a lot easier to follow the plotline of a recipe than a murder mystery when there are so many distractions about.

Just so you can do the same thing, I thought I'd clue you in on some of my favorite recipe sources. Many of them are old standards, but indispensable ones. Some just because they are gay."

COURT VICTORY

The court decided that Congress intended the INS to get a medical ruling that a person is homosexual before the service could exclude him or her. Just an admission from the person would not be sufficient.

Before 1979, Public Health Service doctors routinely gave such examinations.

But the service discontinued the policy, saying that it no longer considered homosexuality a mental disorder.

The ruling closes a chapter in the gay rights movement, the effort to obtain equal access for gay foreign visitors. However, some groups have been petitioning for quarantines and other medical surveillance of gays because of AIDS, and the Public Health Service retains the right to examine people for diseases considered to be a threat to the public.

HE TOOK THE CHANCE OF GETTING HEPATITIS B— AND LOST.

NOW THE CONSEQUENCES ARE JUST BEGINNING. CHRONIC ACTIVE HEPATITIS, CIRRHOSIS ... OR DEATH.

You undoubtedly know someone who's had it. The "bad hepatitis" that can keep you in bed for weeks and out of a job for months—that can cause lifelong disability and even death from cirrhosis or cancer of the liver. Where do you get it? From people who have become carriers of the virus. Today, it is estimated that at least 100,000 gay men are carriers of the hepatitis B virus and spread the infection through intimate contact. That's the main reason why more than half of all gay men will sooner or later become infected.

How can you tell who's a carrier? You probably can't. Most carriers seem to be perfectly healthy, and many are themselves unaware that they harbor the virus.

Once you get hepatitis B, there's no specific treatment for it. But now there's something you can do to help protect yourself.

DON'T TAKE A CHANCE— CONTACT YOUR DOCTOR OR CLINIC AND ASK ABOUT THE HEPATITIS B VACCINE.

It is highly effective in those who receive all three shots. Do it today because you never know where or when you'll make contact with a carrier.

If you'd like more information about hepatitis B and the vaccine, call The American Liver Foundation at (201) 857-2626.

This message is brought to you as a public service by The American Liver Foundation.

Studies showed that the vaccine protected against infection caused by hepatitis B virus in 85% to 96% of those who received the required three shots.

Hepatitis B virus is an important cause of viral hepatitis, a disease mainly of the liver. Even mild forms of this disease may lead to serious complications and aftereffects, including liver cancer. There is no specific treatment for viral hepatitis.

Vaccination is recommended for persons who have a higher risk of becoming infected with hepatitis B virus because of frequent, close contact with infected people or exposure to body fluids from such people. It will not protect against hepatitis caused by viruses other than hepatitis B virus.

Because of the long incubation period for hepatitis B, it is possible for unrecognized infection to be present at the time the vaccine is given. The vaccine may not prevent hepatitis B in such patients.

In three studies involving 3,350 persons, the overall rate of adverse reactions did not differ significantly in those given vaccine and those given placebo (an inactive substance). As with any vaccine, broad use often reveals rare adverse reactions not observed during clinical trials.

Over 200,000 people are estimated to have received the vaccine since its release, and the vaccine continues to be generally well tolerated. Hepatitis B has a long incubation period, and unrecognized infection may already be present at the time the vaccine is given. Thus, reported cases of hepatitis are to be expected and do not appear to be caused by the vaccine. Reactions such as fever, nausea, vomiting, headache, and local pain have occurred. Joint pain has been reported; rash has been reported rarely. Serious illnesses affecting the nervous system—including Guillain-Barré syndrome—have been reported rarely, but no cause and effect relationship has been established.
