ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The editors would like to thank all the participants and audiences in the two symposia in 1972 from which this volume sprang. We are also grateful to those whose enthusiastic interest followed the sessions and encouraged the publication. A great debt is owed to Evelyn Seelinger for her aid in compiling and editing the manuscript. We would also particularly like to acknowledge the encouragement of various Berkeley faculty members in our efforts, and to the officers of the Kroeber Society for making this publication possible. A special thanks to Julie Rake and Michael Stephens, editors for the KAS, whose persistence was the key to our completing this work.
