The Tax Revolt

Gayzette feels that not all of the heat of the community should be focused on the police and that the concern and interest of our readers should be directed toward the discriminatory taxation with which most of you are burdened. The following information is edited from Sylvia Porter's column in the financial pages of a recent S.F. Chronicle.

The penalty for being a "single" taxpayer can be as high as 20%. For instance, using the standard deduction, a married couple earning $10,000 this year will pay $230 less than the single individual. At $20,000, the difference is $580. At $30,000, the difference is $1,700. As you can see, the financial pages of a recent S. F. Chronicle.

This nonpartisan, nonprofit organization is called CO$T (Committee for Single Taxpayers). Co-chairman of the board are former Senators Murphy (Calif.) and G. McCarthy (Minn.). They explain some of the problems of the single taxpayer and the goals of their organization.

The Tax reform bills are pending with considerable support from legislators. The major inequity in today's system is in the area of income-splitting—which has been part of our tax laws since 1948—and which got into our laws by accident, court rulings involving community property. To achieve some kind of uniformity, Congress wrote into law that all married couples filing joint returns could enjoy the benefits of income-splitting—which has been part of our tax laws since 1948—and which got into our laws by accident, court rulings involving community property. To achieve some kind of uniformity, Congress wrote into law that all married couples filing joint returns could enjoy the benefits of income-splitting. This solved the problem of married couples, but it didn't touch the tax burden carried by single citizens. While it is often argued that income-splitting helps married couples finance the costs of bringing up children, the truth is the law gives a couple this benefit whether or not they have children.

Response to CO$T's goals have already been considerable. It intends to maintain a consistent and powerful campaign in Washington so that the single taxpayers' voice will be heard before Congress. In the meantime, they will continue the fight in the courts and in other public forums.

Gayzette encourages you to lend your voice in support of equitable taxation by addressing your Congressmen.

It Could Be You

An Actual Experience.

It's nighttime, I had just taken a friend home and was beginning to pull out enroute to San Francisco. Suddenly, three police cars pull up with spot lights directed toward my car. It was the San Mateo County Sheriff's Department. One of the officers informed me that the San Francisco Police Department had a wanted man for my arrest. I was told to exit the car and place my hands on the hood of the car and to hand over my car keys. Should I have any belongings, I was told to put my luggage behind the back seat and to place me in the back seat of the car. Once inside the car, they told me to empty my pockets, take off my belt and then strip. After this I was processed and placed into a tank cell for overnighters (I was allowed to make two phone calls at the time of booking but only made one.) I was DEEPLY informed of my rights.

The overnight tank was in the basement of a police station. The tank cell for overnighters was allowed to be closed MONDAYS.

ần: What will the Critics say? "The Coup's" at the Encore is a very grand performance that I have seen yet. The program is splendid and the production is excellent. It is a success story in every way and should be enjoyed by all who have the opportunity to see it. The scenery is magnificent and the acting is superb. The audience is drawn into the story and the drama unfolds in a most captivating manner. The music is excellent and the singing is beautiful. The entire production is a joy to watch and should be seen by everyone. The Coup is a masterpiece and should be enjoyed by all who have the opportunity to see it.

The Orford league was the only one of those to win in the challenge series.

The Orford league's Captain Kirby did not exactly like the way the series were run.

"If we were to have a challenge series, we would like it to be more like the outdoors. If you were to have a promotion as the outdoors and did not have a promotion in the outdoors, we would like it to be as close as possible to the outdoors.
