PUBLISHERS' NOTE

Dear Readers:

Those of you who've been monitoring our publication have announced an experimental expanded format. Coming Up! last October. A decision to whether to commit ourselves permanently to publishing a full-scale calendar of events was to be based on your feedback — which, incidentally, has been generous and positive.

We've decided to go with the expanded format. Reader response has been overwhelming. Audience have expressed a desire for a more complete calendar of events, and business skills of other members of the community, who we'd like to involve in the publication on a regular basis.

During the transition period — from a half of two pages to a full page at a sight — we'll continue publishing in our current format. You'll notice a rebranding of the eight-page format this time, on a bi-weekly and a monthly basis. In the meantime, we're sticking by our increased pace and feel it's for business, and we welcome your suggestions for improvements and additions to Coming Up!
