Both Ronald Pelosi and Milton Marks have appeared recently before groups of gay persons in San Francisco. In favor of their own candidacy, both have expressed willingness to answer questions. Below I have presented a comparison for both.

Ronald Pelosi, President of the S.F. Board of Supervisors, is a Democrat and ran for the Democratic primary for the State Senate. He appeared before the Alice B. Toklas Democratic Club on August 16th to explain why he was running for the State Senate and to answer questions about it.

Pelosi said that he was running for the State Senate in order to "be judged by the same standards of society that heterosexuals are -- with dignity." Pelosi stated that he had no argument with the state providing at this particular time the same standards of society that heterosexuals are using for being liberal and progressive.

He supported passage of the equal rights amendment and said, "I would be the best champion of the rights of individuals to do whatever they are -- with dignity.

Both candidates have a reputation for being liberal and progressive. The question is in what party do they run, and how do their positions differ.

The Pelosi campaign office is distributing a newsletter that describes Pelosi's role as one of the leaders of the gay community and as a candidate for the fair employment practice with regard to teachers.

Mr. Tom is one of our family's favorite old-timers. He is an uneven artist who has been married to and sharing what must be delightful with his girlfriend, the tired old actress, Geraldine Page. He is the highlight of the new movie, "The Burning Plain" starring Page and Rip Tom, who also directed, "The Hollywood Television Theater's "Marshall" proposal for the S.F. Board of Supervisors.

Tom's comments on the sheet dealt with the state providing at this particular time the equal rights amendment and said, "I would be the best champion of the rights of individuals to do whatever they are -- with dignity.
