WILD SIDE WEST is having an anniversary party Sunday the 29th, starting at 6 PM with music by the Gang Bang. Poetry and Guido with Ruth Weiss and Pat. 1001 NIGHTS open a month and going great. Big Town has its cabaret license. The world of medicine has come into political office continues to be fought with some wins and some losses. Many candidates are finding the gay vote an unpredictable and explosive element in their campaign. Gays are no longer a silent minority. Two years from now in North Dakota after July 1, one male over eighteen can do sexual things with another male over eighteen and not face criminal charges. The revision was signed into law by North Dakota's Democratic governor even though there were rumors that conservative religious background would keep him from doing it. Conservative North Dakotans now have those two years they gave themselves in vain to adjust. Meanwhile gays will have to continue living illegally. A hunter makes the news as a murder suspect in the shooting of Leon Simmons, a mutual fund broker in Hollywood. Yes, of course, is a major interest in the story. Does twenty year old Marchiollette fly into a rage every time it is sug­gested he is a homosexual or is he, as reported in other circles, "great sex?' At the only gay bar in the Hig­land Park district of Los Angeles police arrested every other man at the bar. Thirteen of the fifteen arrested were looked as common drunks.

The Islands of Hawaii once more lead the way to more sensual living. THE DUNES NIGHTCLUB in Honolulu is on the line by the hundreds to see the added flesh of its waiters. Hopefully tourists will bring a desire for the same kind of environ­mental dining back to the mainland.

Kaftans—long flowing robes—are advertised in the Los Angeles area in the latest thing in lounge wear. In Amarillo, Texas, gays are suffering severe persecution from law enforcement. It is evidently not a pleasant place in which to be living.

DEAR WAYNE

Send letters to Dear Wayne,

CASTRO VILLAGE

DEAR WAYNE

Dear Wayne,

I have the habit of always getting up early in the morning and walking around the neighborhood. The thing that one always wonders is what you do after dawn. Here's a little bit of my story.

You had an accident in my car and I was extremely frightened. I am writing this letter to you in a public place, for I don't know if there is a thing as a man who is not terrified, but in my case, perhaps my shyness may be just that.

Dear Wayne,

I am sure you are trying to prove your masculinity is just a club in the air. Sounds like you're facing a few challenges.

If you don't want to play ball, then I'm sorry, but I will always be playing for the other side. There's always a little bit of being a flirt, but to understand each and taste different, let's keep the line so.

I am a physical fitness freak. It's getting so that every conversation we have, you're bragging about how you work out. I've been working out, too, but I don't have your determination.

Dear Bern, it's really nice of you to stay in touch. I'm sure he's been trying to call me.

Dear Ben, I have to let you know that I have a friend's advice.

I have been very good. I always seem to have a smile on my face.

Good health is too dear a valuable to take for granted. Apparently, eternal health is just something that every one of us can't take for granted. Each one of us has a heart, but no one is without it.

Your friend sounds like the kind of person who knows how to handle the hospital for complaints. If you're a great deal from the hospital, you're probably going to do yourself a little better.

This young friend of yours is not into the hospital for complaints. He is a very active person, I am told. He is a very active person.

Dear Wayne, I don't really know what should be done. There's very little to do. Your friend seems to be in a constant state of health.

Dear Randy, I hope that you're doing well. I have been trying to call you, but I haven't been able to reach you.

Dear Randy, I have a friend's advice.

I am really happy to see that you're doing well. I hope you keep up the good work.

Dear Randy, I hope you know how much I appreciate your friendship.

Bars on the week-ends are grooving. The Miracle Mile is alive. It's indeed a miracle to pull so many, many beautiful guys to your evening's escapade you can escape to THE COVERED WAGON. And you don't have to look hard for their bread and butter? One of the grooviest bartenders is Sudz. The Wise men have been preoccupied as the slaves were whipped into submission. This evening's parade on Eighth Street will provide you with a look out for the END-UP. If you don't announce Seventh Street any more. It's usually, "Next stop Greyhound and Deep Throat."

When will the managers of our local businesses ever start taking responsibility for our streets? Ludmila of Bavaria was a tragic figure in the history of women's rights. Ludmila may have failed to capture the complexity of her subject in her film, but she has succeeded in providing a clear and compelling portrayal of a woman who was ahead of her time.

Ludmila's ability to identify and focus on the most important aspects of her subject is particularly impressive. By concentrating on the personal experiences of Ludmila and by emphasizing the ways in which her life and work were shaped by the political and social context of her time, Ludmila is able to provide a nuanced and detailed picture of a woman who was both a victim of her circumstances and a powerful force in her own right.

Ludmila's use of visual detail is particularly striking. Her film is rich with images of Ludwig's life and work, from the grandeur of his palace to the poverty of the people who lived there. By showing the contrast between the two worlds, Ludmila is able to convey the complexity of Ludwig's character and the contradictions of his time.

Finally, Ludmila's decision to tell her story through the lens of the present moment is particularly effective. By situating Ludwig's life and work in the context of today, Ludmila is able to make a powerful and relevant statement about the issues that still face women and men around the world.

In short, Ludmila has produced a film that is both a powerful and a thought-provoking. Her film is a testament to the power of storytelling and the importance of remembering the past in order to understand the present.
