Nothing new in Washington. Power-crazed politicians, corruption everywhere and enough intrigue to make political science fiction seem simple and dull.

Nixon's popularity has dropped from 68% approval in the polls in January to 38% just before his firing of Cox. This is the greatest drop yet recorded for any president in a nine month period.

In San Francisco Harvey Milk pushes his campaign for a place on the Board of Supervisors to a conclusion. His platform has transcended gay politics to the point that he is widely referred to as the "people's" candidate.

Nixon's choice for VEEP Gerald R. Ford is a former star player from the University of Michigan football squad. TIME MAGAZINE says he has "never lost his boy scout image." General opinion seems to be that he isn't too bright, but that he works hard. His loyalty to Nixon is total.

Elvis Presley is divorced at 38 from Priscilla 28 after 6 and 1/2 years of marriage. The settlement was handsome, running to figures of well over a million dollars. Also Germaine Greer, feminist, 34, from Paul du Feu, 38, German moved out on Paul six weeks after the marriage in 1968. Now the separation is legal.

Bees inherit their ability for language (a communication made by dancing) one of this year's lede Karl Von Frisch says. There are also subspecies of bees whose language is not understood by other subspecies.

Nicholas Tinbergen, another of the scientists sharing the 1973 Nobel, says that man's aggressiveness began when he gave up the vegetarian existence he had shared with other primates to become a hunter and carnivore. The result was that human developed character patterns similar to wolves, including group loyalties of a fierce nature. Now the characteristic is inherited.

PHRASES OF DAN
by David Rucker

If you want to know Dan it will be impossible, as he's not a happy man, a cheerleader, a good sex partner, a good friend, a good listener, or a good cook.

If you've known him for a month
you know he's dead, or he's just slapping around and not getting anywhere.

Still warm, he's a clown, an artist, an idiot, a charmer, a
screwball, a lovable nutcase.

He's a good man, but he's difficult to understand. His expression is always blank.

He's had a few trips like that, too.
But I was remembering more of being a liberated, gay San Francisco man than of being a gay man. Of course, we've all been when I first met him at a beach party.

He's many things: a clown, an artist, an idiot, a charmer, a
screwball, a lovable nutcase.
If you want to know Dan it'll be, "I'm still afraid to say..."

Though I'm still afraid to say..."

Among his favorite authors now
are Ken Kesey, Susan Brown and Mary Rockefeller.

He admits he likes men older than what I am, "he admits,

He's had a few trips like that, too.

Last Performances Oct 26, 27 & 28. The featured performance was "The Wind." The film "The Wind" was a critical and commercial success in 1928. It was directed by Victor Saville and starred Greta Garbo. The film is known for its stunning cinematography, which was groundbreaking at the time. The film tells the story of a young woman named Rose (played by Garbo) who marries a man named George (played by Fredric March). The couple lives in a remote part of the American Midwest, where they struggle to make a living from the harsh winds that plague the region. The film explores themes of love, resilience, and the impact of the natural environment on human existence.

Salute to the 30's

Come the month of November, with the opening of a SALUTE TO THE 30's, the names of Gemma, Bacall, and Davis will light up the San Francisco Film Festival. The 1930's is a decade that was replete with social commentary that was often critical of the times. The movies of the 1930's often reflected the struggles and issues of the time, and provided a means for audiences to connect with the challenges facing society. The films of the 1930's were also characterized by a shift in the artistic expression of cinema. The films of the 1930's were often more experimental and innovative, and featured a range of styles and genres. The Salute to the 30's will feature a selection of films from this era, showcasing the diversity and creativity of the period.

A good exercise for building up the upper chest area is an Incline Press. However, you must realize that some men are not as capable of doing such an exercise in their chest area. Some men cannot do a true incline with a barbell, and then the "saggy-saggy-looking" look set to around the shape of a lemon.

There is nothing more comforting on the outside, but it is extremely awkward, than to place a pair of dumbbells that resemble a pair of bread loaves on the head. The dumbbells have to be large enough to be lifted to the shoulder area and then slowly lifted up to the head. This is a very difficult exercise to perform and not many people can even do it. However, most people have on the up and hair rather than the Reuben or Battende shape. One muscle is the Hinge block and the muscle has to be activated to allow the dumbbell to be lifted to the head. This muscle is the same muscle that is used in the lifting of the hand. The muscle is the upper pectoral muscle, and it turns you on, well everyone has a different taste. It makes you feel as if you have a bigger chest. A good exercise for building up the upper chest area is an Incline Press. By raising a pair of dumbbells, one can activate the muscle and weight above the chest while lying flat on one's back on an incline board, one can tighten and develop good upper chest. A good exercise for building up the upper chest area is an Incline Press. It leaves one very frustrated to say that there is nothing wrong with doing the same exercise.

Dear Apollo,

As the old saying goes, "It takes two to tango" and I am assuming you are along the building. If two are, then you are safe. First of all, you are medication with a professionally trained group of individuals, without any one of them being able to make out more easily. All I can see is a bunch of gray. Where I STAND

Being gay, I cannot, as so many other candidates in past and present, just promise reform ... I have to fight for complete reform of all sex laws.

Once I take that commitment I then have to fight for individual rights and freedom for all people ... Otherwise I become just another political hypocrite ... Once I fight for individual rights then I have to fight for a better sense of spending priorities where the human being is more important than the highways ... where the need for more nurses outweighs the need for more police.

If Elected

I fully realize that I will not be just another Supervisor ... I know that I will be watched closely by not only my fellow Brothers and Sisters but by the straight community as well ... every statement that I make, every vote that I cast will be closely scrutinized ... people in all parts of the country will be watching City Hall ... It is a heavy responsibility and I fully understand the meaning of becoming the first gay Supervisor of San Francisco.

I ASK

for your support ... your help ... your vote. Please call everyone you know, both straight and gay, talk to people at work and in the stores where you shop, and ask them to vote for me.

When I win I will still need your continued support, for our work will have just begun.

The above are my recommendations for election day. I am committed to adhering to them.

The central reason I urge a vote for Dianne is, she is the best person to accomplish the goals of the Board. I supported Dianne before it became the 'left of the left' to do so. Her commitment to free speech, the First Amendment is the first priority. A founder of the Board, she would bring valuable skills to the Board.

BEXLENNCE

Diane has acquired valuable experience abroad and during her first terms, she has helped to develop the city's policies to encourage the growth of the arts, culture, and to combat discrimination against the disabled. The records show that the police department has increased in the first priority. A founder of the Board, she would bring valuable skills to the Board.

CONTROL OF PESTS

Some of the most common house­hold plant pests are ants, mealybugs, and scale insects. Even though you don't have a great problem to indoor plants, you may have some pests. Here are a few suggestions on how to control them:

1. ants: some of the most common house­hold plant pests are ants. They can be a problem if they get into your plants. You can try using sugar water or a sugar solution as a bait. Ants are attracted to sugar, so place a shallow dish of sugar water near your plants to attract the ants. Be careful not to get the sugar on other plants nearby, as it can be harmful.

2. mealybugs: mealybugs are a common pest in indoor plants. They feed on the sap of plants, causing leaves to curl and plants to become weak. To control mealybugs, you can use a systemic insecticide or a miticide. You can also try a dormant oil spray, which works by smothering the mealybugs. Be sure to spray all sides of the plant, including the underside of the leaves.

3. scale insects: scale insects are a common pest in indoor plants. They can be a problem if they get into your plants. You can try using a systemic insecticide or a miticide. You can also try a dormant oil spray, which works by smothering the scale insects. Be sure to spray all sides of the plant, including the underside of the leaves.

For more information on controlling pests, you can visit the website of the Botanical Society of America.

I started my body building at the age of 12. I was a normal skinny kid who was interested in athletics. I didn't want to be a jock, but I thought it would be nice to have a little bit of muscle. I started to lift weights and work on my body. It was hard work, but I enjoyed it. I wanted to be strong and fit, to have a good physique. I wanted to be able to do things that were difficult for other people.

I started to eat more properly and workouts three times a week. I would go to the gym two months ago and now I have been working out every day. I feel better and I look better. I am happy with my progress. I want to continue to work on my body and to get stronger. I think that body building is a good way to improve your health and to feel better about yourself.

Chapter 2

During the week Peter stayed in Salt Lake City, Mike fell in love with him, reaching out for their first kiss. Mike's love for Peter was more than just physical; he was drawn to Peter's gentle nature and the way he made him feel safe and loved. The two spent many evenings together, walking through the streets of Salt Lake City, hand in hand, their heads close together as they laughed and talked about their dreams for the future.

One day, as they sat on a bench in the park, Mike looked into Peter's eyes and declared his love for him. Peter was shocked but touched by the words, and he responded with a smile, saying, "I love you too, Mike. I never thought I could feel this way about anyone, but you make me feel alive." The park was silent as they both basked in the warmth of their newly shared emotions.

Mike leaned in for a kiss, and Peter responded, his heart racing with excitement. They kissed gently, their lips moving slowly as the world around them faded into a dreamy haze. As they pulled away, Peter whispered, "Thank you, Mike. I never thought I could be loved like this." Mike smiled, his eyes shining with happiness, "You will always be loved, Peter, more than you know." And with that, they knew their love would be a forever bond, a treasure they would cherish for the rest of their lives.
