The Boys of Summer
Gays and Gallup

You know your time has come when the polls show that a majority of the population. It seems safe to say, to the point that we had best make the roost of the roost. Just as the results of a recent Gallup poll done by Peter M. Blinder and with Dr. William R. Bigelow (August 20) in the New York Times show, people are thinking about us and, on balance, are feeling better about us.

People are feeling better about us and are generally more positive about our future than they were a few years ago. The major thrust of future education in the United States should be made gay. This is essential to fight the hatred and discrimination against gays. Gays around the issue of children for homosexual adoption. We should not teach children to view us as the prejudices and stereotypes that exist about us, but to view us as individuals who are people like them. This is the way in which they are thinking about us.

Finally, the polls show that a majority of people in the country. The polls also bore out that anti-gay prejudice is now generally thought of as a thing of the past. This is not to say that the prejudices and stereotypes that exist about us, including the prejudice against us, are not still felt by a majority of people that we should not be teaching children to view us as the prejudices and stereotypes that exist about us, but to view us as individuals who are people like them.

LAW AND RELIGION

The law and religious influence

Justice...

where the law and religious influence come into conflict.

Religion has always been a powerful force in society, and through history it has played a significant role in shaping laws and policies.

However, the relationship between law and religion is complex and nuanced, and can be influenced by various factors, including cultural, social, and political considerations.

One aspect of this relationship is the issue of religious influence in judicial decision-making.

In some cases, religious beliefs may be considered in court proceedings, while in others, they may be excluded.

This can create challenges for judges and legal professionals, who must navigate the delicate balance between personal convictions and the principles of the legal system.

As society evolves,

the role of religious influence in the law is likely to continue to be a source of debate and discussion.

The law and religious influence are inextricably linked, and understanding their interaction is crucial for the development of just and equitable legal systems.

In conclusion,

the law and religious influence are a complex and multifaceted topic, and continued research and dialogue are necessary to fully understand and address these issues.

George Hughes and the law

George Hughes was an important figure in the law and religious influence.

His work helped to establish the field of legal ethics and the study of the relationship between law and religion.

Hughes' contributions continue to be influential today, as legal professionals and scholars grapple with the issues of religious influence in the law.

As we look to the future, it is clear that the study of law and religious influence will remain an important area of research.

May we continue to learn from the wisdom of George Hughes and other legal scholars, and strive to develop just and equitable legal systems that serve the needs of all.

Legal professionals must consider the broader implications of religious influence on the law.

This involves understanding the historical and cultural contexts in which religious beliefs have shaped laws and policies, as well as the potential for religious influence to impact judicial decision-making.

Through careful analysis and ongoing dialogue, we can work to develop legal systems that are fair, just, and respectful of the diverse beliefs and values of all people.

Together, we can build a legal system that truly serves the people it is intended to protect.

Thank you for your attention.

The law and religious influence are complex topics, and it is important that we continue to engage with these issues in a meaningful and thoughtful manner.

As we move forward,

let us remember the wisdom of George Hughes and other legal scholars,

Vincent Price: Vice versus Virtue

Gene Arceri

Dear Alice,

I hope this letter finds you in good health and spirits. I'm writing to you from my hotel in New York City, where I've been staying for the past few days. I had the opportunity to meet with the film critic Roger Ebert yesterday afternoon, and I enjoyed our conversation very much.

One of the highlights of my trip was the chance to attend the screening of my latest film, "The Masque of the Red Death," which was held at the Plaza Hotel. I was able to meet with the cast and crew, and I was especially pleased to see the reaction of the audience. The film has been well received so far, and I'm looking forward to seeing it in more cities soon.

I must admit that I was a bit surprised when I received your letter, as I hadn't heard from you in quite some time. I hope that you're doing well and that your life is filled with happiness and laughter.

If there's anything you'd like to discuss, please let me know. I'm always interested in hearing your thoughts and opinions.

Sincerely,

Gene Arceri

TRIVIA MADNESS

You now know that Stevie can make you cry by adding that one question that you hope you know but the answer is tied up in knots that you can't get at it. I know of questions that have gone on the radio where one of the phrases had the same to ask a trivia question that really needed the public to know. Here are the rather entertaining answers to the questions that were asked one last time.

1. Bonnie & Clyde. She was named after the movie stars, and is veteran several times during the course of the movie.
2. 47,000. This is the number of tons of ice used in the Night and the Noon.
3. 100. Idaho is the only state ever to have a state song that starts with "Oh, Idaho!"
4. It's the name of the only kitchen in Las Vegas with a doorknob.
5. Ruby Grisson, also known as "The Mississippian".
6. A doozy of a recipe forTabasco sauce.
7. It's the name of a show.
8. They're always on top of you, and the only kitchen in Las Vegas with a doorknob.
9. Any of the spouses had the nerve to add something to the menu... and serve it to her favorite several times during the course of the movie.

You close kitchen door. As you make your way into another kitchen top through the dangers of Clove Chinkins's little walk-in wardrobe, you can see that the place is well-worn, and the walls are covered with various degrees of condiments and spices. And then, as you pass the wall, you can almost hear the sound of a siren in the distance, and you can't help but think... "Is this the only kitchen in Las Vegas with a doorknob?"

Grease returns to A.C.T.

"Grease," currently the longest-running musical on Broadway, has been presented at the Geary Theatre in San Francisco for the past six years. This summer, it returns for four more weeks, from August 16 to 28, with tickets on sale now until July 19.

A joint venture of the teenage life style of 1950s America, "Grease" was presented here for a sold-out run by the American Conservatory Theatre last year. In 1974, the Geary Theatre was used to present the Kenneth Waitema and Maxine Ford production, under A.C.T. sponsorship.

Directed by Tom Moore, who staged A.C.T.'s sold-out production of the Jules Feiffer comedy "Knock Knock" last season, the exuberant music and dance, which make "Grease" a hit, are credited with reviving interest in the "nifty fifties," as evidenced by the television series "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley."

A summer of the bonfire, sock hops, and the American Bandstand rather than war demonstrations and student riots.

Good seats are available daily at A.C.T.'s Geary Theatre and Northern California agencies. Tickets may be charged to all major credit cards by calling (415) 824-2743.

Bones and Elyse & Company

So many good things are going on at Bones. A new light show, fantastic disco music, hot barbenders and hot owners have made Bones one of the best places in town. I will be writing more on Bones in the future in two weeks, but must mention Elyse & Company. They are a must to see. I saw them two weeks ago at Bones. They are so good, I was on the floor dancing, not passed out for two hours solid. Don't miss them this August 10th, Wednesday, at 10 pm.

Integrity National
Philadelphia, Pa., June 27, 1977... The third annual national convention of Integrity, an Episcopal Church group made up of gay personnel and friends, will be held here on the campus of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, August 31 to September 4.

About 220 delegates from the 35 chapters of Integrity will attend workshops and religious services at the University Christian Association and St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 7th Street and Locust. The convention is the third to be sponsored by the Integrity/Philadelphia group, which was founded in 1974 as a support group within the Episcopal Church.

The convention, which is open to all Episcopalians and non-Episcopalians, is designed to help all attendants deal with the issues of their own lives and that of the church.

The convention will also provide a setting for the national organization to deal with the theological, social, and political issues of the gay rights movement.

The Integrity/Philadelphia group has offered a place on its staff for two members who were dismissed from their church because of their relationship with another member.

The group has been active in last year's Episcopal General Convention and in the spiritual and religious services at the University Christian Association.

The Integrity/Philadelphia group was founded in 1974 as a means of promoting the Gospel message through the medium of music and the arts.

The group was one of the first to address itself to the ethical implications of human sexuality.

Integrity's 1977 Convention takes on another dimension this year when it starts at the University Christian Association, the student group which has a long tradition of supporting the gay rights movement.

The convention will conclude in a Solemn High Mass at St. Mary's Church, which has a long tradition of supporting the gay rights movement.
