Duarte, Legan vie for county supervisor seat

I intend to be a full-time supervisor because I feel representing this district is a big job that requires total commitment.

To communicate, to listen to the people, and then after listening, to act effectively. I think I combine both of those qualities.

Out of the streets . . . Into the House

By Konstantin Berlandt

New York (GPA Wire) The crowd of several thousand gathered at Sheridan Square, lining up with banners and candles down Christopher Street in front of what was once the Stonewall bar, proverbial birthplace of the modern Gay Liberation movement. Posters in the air sang the slogan: "Fighting for our lives!"

As demonstrators proceeded down Bleecker Street early this month for the Federal Building in Federal Plaza, marchers added the chant: "What do we want? Money for AIDS! When do we want it? NOW!"

A golden dollar sign held high at the front of the march led the way, the imperative from the already ill and among the worried faces those who may not know it yet.

"We never know who or when it will strike," said rally M.C. Jim Fourat on the rally platform below the government headquarters, stark against the night sky as the dark monolith in "2001."

"To be healthy today is no guarantee," Fourat added. One hand-made sign near the stage: "Man: The Next Endangered Species."

The Hearing was on fiscal year 1984 funding for the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and was one of the many AIDS-related measures being lobbied by the AIDS Project of the Gay Rights National Lobby.

Apuzzo proposed several specific steps in her testimony. "Today I call upon the Congress of the United States to appropriate (funds) for a comprehensive and coordinated program of research on AIDS in order to stop this frightful waste of lives and resources . . . I call upon NIH to speed up the procedures for reviewing AIDS research grant requests and to release funds already available."

"I call upon the Assistant Secretary for Health to make public his agenda for dealing with this crisis. We need to know if the government has a plan, and what it is, in order to coordinate private efforts."

DONOR CUSTODY RIGHTS

Dear Editor:

I'd like to congratulate you for running this important piece about AIDS, something I hope I can do, as a lawyer, to contribute to. As a member of the legal community, I've seen how often people are not able to make decisions about their health and the health of their families. This is why I've been advocating for greater support for AIDS research, education, and prevention, and the importance of creating a strong infrastructure to support the work of those affected by AIDS.

In particular, the state can begin to focus on ways to help women who have been affected by AIDS. Women have been a significant part of the AIDS epidemic, and it's important to recognize the ways in which they are affected by it. It's important for women to be able to make decisions about their health and the health of their families, and to have access to the resources they need to do so.

A NEW BEGINNING

As all those who have worked with the San Jose Volleyball Club, the Donor Custody Rights case has been a significant step forward for the Asian-American community. The San Jose Police Department has taken steps to enhance the rights of donors who have donated sperm to the San Jose City Council, and the San Jose City Council has made significant changes to the city's in vitro fertilization (IVF) program.

I am also of the opinion that it is crucial for the donor to have a relationship with the recipient. Without this relationship, the donor may feel as if he were not the natural father of the child, thereby creating a sense of abandonment.

Politics is fun... and rewarding, exciting, exhausting, frustrating and worth every minute you put into it.

In the penultimate stretch of the 1984 primary season, candidates for all levels of government have been BUSY trying to win their party's nomination. However, in the local politics, we can see the effects of this national trend. There is a strong push by many local politicians to attract the attention of the national electorate.

Last Wednesday, Cler J. Jones, the Democratic candidate for African-American, was at the NAACP headquarters. He was there to talk about his campaign and to get support from the local organization. Cler Jones is running for a seat in the state legislature. He is running against an incumbent who has held the seat for many years. The NAACP is supporting Cler Jones because he has a strong record of fighting for civil rights.

The two candidates debated in the NAACP meeting, and the audience was enthusiastic. Many people came to hear Cler Jones speak, and they were impressed by his passion and dedication.

The debate was held in the NAACP headquarters, and it was well attended. The candidates were given a chance to present their views on a variety of issues, including education, healthcare, and the economy. The audience was asked to submit questions in advance, and the candidates were given time to respond.

The debate was very political, and the two candidates were very competitive. However, both candidates were respectful of each other, and they avoided personal attacks.

In the end, the audience was impressed by both candidates. Cler Jones was seen as the underdog, but he gave a strong performance. The incumbent was seen as the favorite, but she did not take him lightly. The debate was a great opportunity for both candidates to present their views to the voters.

The debate was a great success, and it was clear that the NAACP is committed to supporting candidates who are passionate about serving their communities. The NAACP is an essential part of the democratic process, and it is important that we continue to support organizations like this one.

The debate was well attended, and it was clear that the voters were interested in the candidates and the issues. The debate was a great opportunity for the candidates to present their views and to connect with the voters.

In the end, the debate was a great success, and it was clear that the NAACP is committed to supporting candidates who are passionate about serving their communities.

Gay Press convenes in Philadelphia, elects Segal press president

Gay Press, a leading media organization for the LGBTQ+ community, gathered in Philadelphia to elect a new press president. The event was marked by a vibrant celebration of the media's role in advocating for LGBTQ+ rights and fostering a supportive community. Attendees included prominent figures from the LGBTQ+ press, such as John Anderson, keynote speaker, and Bobby Dean, who added to the festive atmosphere with a lively opening dance party.

In the keynote address, Anderson spoke about the importance of the LGBTQ+ press in advancing equality and exposing repression. He also highlighted the need for the media to continue to serve its readers not by giving comfortable platitudes, but to give Baldwin's best quote, "you can't have the truth, to ideas, to follow them over the United States as well as the world." Anderson's speech was met with enthusiastic applause.

Following Anderson's address, the Hot Line board members stepped down from the position to make way for a new president. The election process was held in a fair and transparent manner, ensuring that the选出的 president is the best choice for the organization.

The new president, chosen in a secret election, will step into their role with immediate effect, taking over the responsibilities of leading the organization forward. The new president will work closely with the Hot Line board of directors, which is comprised of dedicated LGBTQ+ advocates committed to supporting the community.

The Hot Line organization is a crucial player in the LGBTQ+ community, providing a platform for voices and stories that are often marginalized or silenced. This election signals the community's commitment to continuing this work and advocating for the rights of all LGBTQ+ individuals.

Gay Family Day By Ted Salt

Hello, Mr. & Ms. Gay America, San Jose —

The second annual "Gay Family Day" event was held at Stanford University, Palo Alto.

Rico Hinch, member of the foray nominating committee for the first time, explained that after ten years the organization winners known as the "Gay People's Finest" of the Gay Men's Health Crisis, a group providing counseling, education and support to those affected by HIV/AIDS, to the Gay Men's Health Crisis, a group providing counseling, education and support to those affected by AIDS.

Segal pointed out that while the Gay Men's Health Crisis, a group providing counseling, education and support to those affected by AIDS, to the Gay Men's Health Crisis, a group providing counseling, education and support to those affected by AIDS, and other contributors who had no coverage.

Endean also reported that the anticipated "Gay America Awards," an all-gay after-dark event co-sponsored by a group of gay publishers, editors, writers, photographers, and representatives of the gay media, will take place on April 15, the day before the Gay Pride Parade in New York City.

The Gay Pride Parade was held in New York City, with a special performance by the King Brothers Barnum & Bailey Circus at Madison Square Garden as a "gay". A group of gay publishers, editors, writers, photographers, and representatives of the gay media, will take place on April 15, the day before the Gay Pride Parade in New York City.

At the May 1 business meeting of the organization, the membership also resolved a motion regarding the organization's name and the times for the annual convention. The meeting was held in a closed session, and the membership was not disclosed.

The Gay Pride Parade, which concluded with the First Annual National Gay Leadership Press Conference, was attended by representatives from various gay and lesbian media organizations across the United States.

While gay rights and civil rights are becoming increasingly important, gay and lesbian Americans are still working hard to gain recognition and equality. The Gay Pride Parade is a testament to the resilience and determination of the LGBTQ+ community.

Our Paper/May 18, 1983*Page 13
In the last several months, I have come to recognize more and more how important the concept of support is to our community and how critical it is to our sense of community and safety. This support can come from a variety of sources, but one of the most important is the AIDS support groups. These groups provide a network of people who can help each other deal with the challenges of living with AIDS. They also offer a sense of community and belonging, which is especially important for those who are living with AIDS and their loved ones.

One of the main goals of these support groups is to provide a place where people can go to talk about their experiences. This is important because it can help people to feel less alone and to know that they are not the only ones going through this. It also allows them to connect with others who are going through similar experiences.

In addition to providing a place for people to talk, these support groups also offer other forms of support. For example, they can provide information about resources and services that are available to people living with AIDS. They can also offer emotional support and help people to cope with the challenges of living with AIDS.

Overall, support groups are an important part of the AIDS response. They provide a way for people to connect with others who are going through similar experiences and to access the resources and services that are available to them. They also help to build a sense of community and belonging, which is essential for people living with AIDS.
Strengthen The Ties: Break The Chains

The Association of Lesbian and Gay Actors (ALOA), Bay Area Black Lesbians and Gay Men, and Two Sisters (2SW), Our American Indian Gay/Lesbian/Alliance (OALGA), Old Lesbians/Gay Men/Allies Group and the Pride Centre have combined their energies to present the Lesbian/Gay Pride Guide Resource Directory on June 10, 1983.

This free resource directory has been developed by Tower Press since 1981 and is issued in conjunction with the annual Lesbian and Gay Celebration held in New York on June 26, a common goal. I think that traditionally, people tend to see our community as a collection of diverse backgrounds and places. However, if we work together, we can strengthen the ties to make this a most visible and exciting event.

The proceeds from the sale of the Guide Resource Directory will benefit the Outreach Sub-committee Co-Chair, enthusiastically applauds the title of a talk to be given by Dr. Vogel.

Dr. Vogel is on the clinical faculty of the Stanford Medical School and was the pioneer of the Stanford Medical School. He is on the editorial board of the Journal of Homosexuality, and has been a guest in the United States and Canada. He has worked extensively in the area of human sexuality, which he believes is a human right.

More interesting and useful products and services will be offered to the highest bidder. Alameda County Supervisor John Conner, Assistant Sheriff Paul Lee, Supervisor David W. Tremaine, Supervisor Yvonne Faithon and Andrew Washbourn will be among the auctioneers.

Items to be auctioned include artwork, clothing, pet supplies, grooming, legal consultation, home products, and entertainment. These items will be of great interest to a wide variety of people.
