Local Lesbians Uneasy Over King Affair

San Francisco: San Francisco's local leaders of the women's liberation movement were extremely critical of the recent announcement by Mayor Joseph P. Alioto to replace PDF's Mary King with her secretary, Catherine Canaan.

According to Norma Paris, who speaks for the San Francisco chapter of the National Women's Political Caucus, King's replacement would mean the end of a positive influence that has lasted more than a year. Ms. Paris said, "The issue is the establishment of a strong women's presence in Alioto's administration. Mary has been the only woman in the mayor's cabinet, and her presence has enhanced the women's role in city government."

The announcement was made by Alioto at City Hall on Wednesday afternoon. The mayor said that Canaan, who was a legal secretary in the Alioto office for the past two years, was suggested by the department heads for the position of first female deputy mayor.

In the past, Canaan has served as a legal secretary in the Alioto office for two years and has been involved in various women's rights issues. She has been a strong supporter of the Women's Liberation Movement and has actively participated in various conferences and workshops.

The move has been met with some disappointment by lesbian leaders and women's groups. "We are concerned about the lack of women's representation in the Alioto administration," said Paris. "Mary has been a positive role model for women and has brought a new perspective to city government."

On the other hand, some women's groups have welcomed Canaan's appointment. "Catherine is a strong and capable woman who has been involved in the city's political arena," said one group member. "She will bring a new perspective to the mayor's office and will be a strong influence in promoting women's rights."
"We have over us an administration that has seen fit to support Latin American tyrannies that have violated every principle of liberty. . . . This hypocracy should be the gravenest concern to gay men and women."

Centro Decline

Bobby

We would like to take the opportunity to respond to the article written by Bob "Bobby" in the "letters" column of the most recent issue of the News. Bobby, your view that "people are not interested in what the Centro is doing" has little or no basis in fact, as I've seen you in Centro activities and I've been approached by many, many Centro members and active participants who are interested and committed to Centro. Centro is the largest Latino gay and lesbian organization in the US. It is striving to make a difference in the community, and people are interested in what they are doing. In fact, Centro has been very successful in achieving its goals. For example, Centro has been able to organize successful pride parades in San Francisco, which have attracted thousands of people. Centro has also been successful in organizing other events, such as conferences, workshops, and concerts, which have brought people together and provided opportunities for community involvement. Centro is an important organization and it is important that we continue to support it.

Upper Case "Gay"

Rosario

There is a lot of energy about gay rights these days. This is great, but we can't lose focus on the real issues. For example, there is a lot of talk about discrimination in the workplace, but we need to remember that discrimination in the workplace is just one of many issues that need to be addressed. For example, we need to address the issue of lack of housing for gay people and the lack of affordable housing for gay people. In addition, we need to address the issue of homophobia in schools and the need for more gay and lesbian teachers in schools. There is a lot of work to be done, and we need to focus on all of these issues, not just on one.

I support the idea of a national gay pride parade. It is important to raise awareness about the issues facing the gay community and to show solidarity with other communities that are facing similar issues. However, I am concerned that some people may see the parade as a way to gain attention for themselves, rather than as a way to support the cause. In addition, I am concerned that some people may use the parade as an opportunity to discriminate against others, such as the elderly, people with disabilities, and people of color. We need to make sure that the parade is inclusive and that everyone is welcome.

CITY HALL REPORTS

Supervisor Nancy C. Walter

On Monday, April 26th, the Board of Supervisors approved the proposed changes to the City Charter. These changes would make the City Charter more transparent and easier to understand. The changes would also make the process of amending the City Charter more democratic. The Board of Supervisors also approved the proposed changes to the City Budget, which would increase the City's spending on education and health care. The Board of Supervisors also approved the proposed changes to the City's tax code, which would increase the City's revenue and provide more funding for the City's programs. The Board of Supervisors also approved the proposed changes to the City's planning code, which would make the City more environmentally friendly.

ANSEL ADAMS
photography from within

S. Moore

I would take a photographic course or read and reread the classic essays of the photographers who came before me. I always enjoyed it, but never had the desire to pursue it as a career. I was always more interested in what I was seeing than in how to capture it. But after reading about Ansel Adams, I realized that there was a world of photography that I never even knew existed. The drama of the scenes, the beauty of the landscapes, the pure joy of creation - it all poured into my soul with a force that was irresistible.

Ansel Adams, famous for his photographs of the American West, was a photographer who captured the true essence of a landscape. He believed that every photographer should have a personal vision of what they want to capture in their photographs. Adams was a perfectionist, and his work showed in the clarity and beauty of his photographs.

Adams explained his concept of the "photographic moment." It's a moment where time, light, and composition all converge in perfect harmony. It's a moment where the photographer's vision and the natural world come together in a way that is both profound and beautiful.

Adams was not only a master photographer, but also a master teacher. He taught his students the importance of a personal vision, the need for patience, and the value of a photographic moment. He believed that every photograph should be a masterpiece, and he would spend hours perfecting each one.

One of the things that I learned from Adams was the importance of composition. He believed that composition was the key to the success of a photograph. He taught his students to look at the scene from different angles, to study the light, and to look for the perfect composition.

Adams was also a great thinker. He believed that photography was a form of expression, and he used his photographs to express his love of the natural world. He believed that every photograph should be a statement, and he used his photographs to speak to the world about the beauty of the natural world.

Ansel Adams was a true genius of photography. His work continues to inspire and influence photographers today. His photographs continue to touch the hearts of people all over the world, and his legacy will live on for many years to come.

I’LL AGREE WITH YOU on one point: In a city such as this, The City-That-Knows-Hop, why is it that there are so few sidewalk cafes? You can almost count their number on one hand and still have your thumb and index finger left over to pick up your demi-tasse cup.

A DISCOVERY awaits you in Noe Valley. That’s pronounced “NO-E,” Herb. There’s a charming sidewalk cafe called MAGGIE’S in a little yellow-Victorian house on 24th Street. As you know, Noe Valley is one of the sunniest neighborhoods in San Francisco and the folks at MAGGIE’S know how to savor those sunny days.

ON MAGGIE’S REDWOOD DECK overlooking 24th Street you can sip cappuccino and enjoy the afternoon. The daytime menu features a wide variety of omelettes ($3.00-$4.00) that are served with home fries, fruit and fresh baked bread. They also serve an interesting selection of salads and sandwiches, and a choice of house specialties that include Pasta, Seafood and Vegetarian dishes. The Moussaka ($5.25 at lunch, $7.00 at dinner) is done with eggplant and assorted vegetables, topped with a numbing-spiced ricotta custard. A dish you’ll find nowhere else but MAGGIE’S is the Bombay Chicken ($6.25 at lunch, $7.53 at dinner). This boneless breast of chicken cured with vegetables, fruit and nuts, baked in a filo pastry crust and served with mango chutney, yogurt and rice.

THE BEST time of all to visit MAGGIE’S is for dinner. That is when you can really appreciate the interior of this renovated Victorian. There are fresh flowers, antiques, an oriental rug, and a fire in the fireplace. The music tends towards light jazz and classical, and while you wait for your table you can enjoy the wine bar.

MAGGIE’S has a beer/wine license and with this they have created a most ingenious drink list. A favorite for brunch or dinner is the Champagne Magnolia, a mix of champagne, orange juice and Bagetto apricot wine. If you are a Bloody Mary drinker, try the Sake Mary, made with sake instead of vodka. MAGGIE’S also makes the best Champagne Cocktail in S.F. and they’ve been original enough to leave out the ridiculous lump of sugar that invariably lies in the bottom of the glass.

HERB, try MAGGIE’S. We won’t take NOE for an answer. As for the rest of you—discover MAGGIE’S before Herb Caen does.

No doubt about it, the Russian River Resort area is on the verge of a new renaissance. What was a tally of gay resorts and havens along the shoreline is now an outright mushrooming of gay establishments. The Russian River, which has been the center of Sonoma County's gay community for many years, has blossomed gay resorts (see map on page 17), complete with secluded swimming holes, decked out with nude sunbathers, and surrounded by gay patronage.

One real estate agent in the area estimates that easily half of the properties on the river are in the hands of gay owners, and the gay community is taking root all along the river. St. Helena has the largest concentration of gay real estate in the area, and property prices in the river town's local paper took strong exception. Nowhere is the change more evident than in the Russian River Lodge, which has changed hands several times in recent years.

Since the 1990 gay guide to the Russian River appeared, there have been significant changes in the resort area. One recent development is the rise of gay-themed events and festivals. The Russian River has experienced a steady influx of gay visitors, and the area has become a popular destination for gay travelers.

The increase in gay tourism has had a positive impact on the local economy. The Russian River Resort area is now one of the most popular gay destinations in the world, attracting visitors from all over the country. The area has become a hub for gay-themed events and activities, including gay pride parades, festivals, and other events.

Beaching it in San Francisco

One of the major complaints leveled against San Francisco—especially by Southern Californians—is that the City doesn't offer enough opportunities to experience nature in the open. The City is surrounded by water and by mountains. Although the San Francisco-Peninsula coastline along the Northern Cali­fornia coast may not be as beautiful as the Pacific shores enjoyed nearer San Jose, the Bay Area coastline can hardly match some of the most beautiful beaches on the United States. Over the past several years, many more Californians have turned to the Bay Area for its beaches, although not exclusively frequent these beaches as well.

Below the Sentinel office is an official guide to the gay activity frequently enjoyed in the city. The Sentinel is proud to be gay-owned and operated, and we're looking to make your time here a fun and exciting one. For more details on gay activity in the city, please refer to the Sentinel's Official Guide to Gay San Francisco.

The Delta

As you drive north along Highway 1 from San Francisco, the California Delta is one of the first signs of the state's abundant agricultural wealth. The Sacramento River Delta, which is actually the largest estuary in North America, is a network of shrimp-like channels and islands that is the main water source for the San Francisco Bay Area. The Delta can be explored by boat, and there are numerous opportunities to rent anything from a personal watercraft to a small fishing boat with a 6 hp engine for around $20 a day.

Another way to experience the Delta is to walk along the wetlands and see the variety of birds that call it home. The Delta is a birdwatcher's paradise and offers an opportunity to see many species of birds that are not found in other parts of the state. Tuaca
ITS TASTE HAS COME.

Tuaca is a very different liqueur. It costs a bit more but it's worth it. Imagine a big, bold brandy taste lightly laced with a subtle sweetness. Unboring. Unusual. Imported from Italy. Tuaca. It's what's missing from your collection of liqueurs.

Tuaca. The bold but subtly sweet Italian liqueur.
