Speaker Find Access to School No Easy Matter
by Greg Keech
Five weeks after the San Francisco Unified School District canceled the permit for the Gay Speakers Bureau to send its speakers to a meeting of the Hoover PTA, the bureau's permit was reinstated.

The bureau's permit was given to the school district's education department, which then gave it to the Hoover PTA executive committee. The bureau then had to send at least one representative to a meeting with the Hoover PTA to discuss the bureau's programs and curriculum.

The bureau's permit to send speakers to a meeting of the Hoover PTA was granted after a meeting between the bureau and the Hoover PTA. The bureau had to present evidence of its programs and curriculum to the school district. The bureau was then allowed to send speakers to the Hoover PTA.

City Offers $13,000 To White Night Plaintiff

"The City and County of San Francisco has tentatively agreed to settle the first of 27 civil damage lawsuits arising from police action in the White Night riots, according to the plaintiff's attorney, Douglas Montgomery said the city has offered $13,000 to his client, John Lenthalas, 25, now a Los Angeles schoolboy.

Assistant City Attorney Virginia Hibel refused to confirm the offer or otherwise comment on the case, because the Board of Supervisors has yet to approve the settlement...

 Montgomery said the offer of settlement, which contains no admission of wrongdoing, came just before jury selection was to begin on April 28. He said he might be able to obtain $25,000 to $35,000 at trial for his client, but appeals would probably delay receipt of the judgement for another four or five years.

 Montgomery said Lenthalas has injured his foot in a job accident on May 21, 1979. After receiving treatment at San Francisco General Hospital, he was rushed into the City Hall disturbance which followed the manslaughter verdict in Dan White's trial for the slayings of Supervisor Harvey Milk.

 Montgomery said Lenthalas was trapped between the crowd and a barricade that had been set up by policemen, and was hit by a falling barricade.

 Further, the city defended itself, "Plaintiff consented to the application of force to hit person... by, among other things, voluntarily and knowingly engaging in mutual combat as well as striking and remaining in an area of disturbances."

COMMENT
How To Be A Legal Gay Spouse
by F. Hayden Curry

Demands that beneficiaries normally accorded to public employee’s survivors might be extended to unmarried heterosexual lovers have been seized upon by some gay and lesbian activists who are trying to demonstrate that gay couples, like heterosexual couples, have a plethora of rights and responsibilities that are currently denied them by the legal system. Despite the charges that gay activists are attempting to gain special rights and privileges for gay couples, the advocates are merely pushing for recognition of the rights that heterosexual couples normally enjoy.

This discrimination is particularly unfair to lesbian and gay couples, for whom it is essential.

I state in the union to get married.

• married straight couples can use procedures, ideas, and un married couples to obtain some of the benefits which are important in the issuance of the marriage certificate. Last year, my partner and I published a book designed to help lesbians and gay men sort through the tapestry of the legal system.

Here are some of the areas of concern regarding the marriage license which any couple can obtain by reading our book:

THE MARRIAGE CONTRACT
Perhaps the greatest benefit of getting married is also the greatest burden. The law demands the happy couple to submit to its demands. This is a contract.

One concern for the happy couple is that the California courts demand the happy couple to make decisions about the legal consequences of their marriage.

Amongst other surprises, it comes to the ownership of property, responsibility for debts, and obligations for support. For example, if the happy couple dies without a will, and if there is no designated heir, the California courts will demand the happy couple to make decisions about the distribution of the estate.

Unmarried couple can also make decisions about the legal consequences of their relationship. We call this a “living will”.

One concern is that the happy couple can make decisions about the distribution of the estate.

An unmarried couple also has the advantage of making decisions about the distribution of the estate. We call this a “living will”.

We call the book, in a sense, a “living will”.

THE FUTURE OF MARRIAGE
Many say that the future of marriage is uncertain.

The law deems the happy couple to make decisions about the distribution of the estate.

Many say that the future of marriage is uncertain.

As we see it, the future of marriage is certain.

but not about sexual douching of oneself as a hygiene practice. She said there was, however, a general cue, "any other?" question about the alleged products.

Guinan said the investigative team "heard the interview on consulting with the gay community and the physicians of patients with the disease. We also went on a round of places" where sexual activity occurred.

Guinan said, "Douching never came up as a practice." She would not, however, say to one in the study asked.

Rogers said, "As far as we know, none of the interviewees are openly gay, at least to their working researchers included them in the study." For that reason, the final interview inquiries showed "nothing at all" on sexual activity covered.

The questions on sexual behavior covered frequency, number of partners, location of sexual encounters, real sex talking, rectal douching, anal sex taking, and fisting or handballing, as well as heterosexual intercourse.

Guinan said the CDC is now conducting this "tip of the iceberg." The bottom of the iceberg, "we do know, is that there are many gay men who are using the device," she said. Rogers said there was, however, a general cue, "any other?" question about the alleged products.

Guinan said the CDC is now doing the "same questions of homosexual cases and controls who do not reside in New York City and California on heterosexual cases."

Hibiscus Dies:

Pneumocystis

New York — George Harris, 33, known as Hibiscus — a poet, printer, and sex worker who was featured in a national ad campaign about syphilis control, and who had a national reputation as a poet, died May 6 at age 33. His death of Pneumocystis carinii pneumonia — one of the cluster of immune-deficiency diseases occurring in the gay population — was recently described as being due to HIV infection of the lymph nodes. His death occurred in the same way as the death of the lymph node that was taken for microscopic examination.

Immunity for Men

Your immune system is your body's defense system against infection. It protects you from illness caused by bacteria and viruses, as well as from the cellular forms of cancer. Your immune system can be weakened by many factors, including stress, smoking, and use of prescription and recreational drugs. With this syndrome, the lymph nodes become swollen and painful. This could be due to infection. In some cases, the lymph nodes may not be swollen. Other symptoms include fever, night sweats, and a feeling of extreme fatigue.

Margaret Whiting: She's Always in Fashion

by Duane Howard

Celebrated singer Margaret Whiting will present a special performance on Tuesday, May 18, for a two-week stay. She's been recording more than 500 tunes, including such standards as "Too Darn Hot," "Stardust," and "A-Tisket, A-Tasket." Her vocal delivery is simple and insouciant, and she performs "I'm a Lady," "Come In from the Cold," and "A Dream Girl." Unfortunately, Gail Wilson's success has been limited. Her special combo is for Sinatra fans everywhere, and the Girl is a small-cabaret act. The evening will feature performances by Charles Stone, Jenny Shapiro, Pat Montano, Joe Boolean, and a selection of his music. She has become more of a singer than an actress, and her interpretations have resulted in an eclectic repertoire. The artist has moved to the city's small-cabaret scene, and since she's a connoisseur of popular music, she writes and records for various artists, including R&B, jazz, and pop. Her teen-death medley of "Memories of You," "Liza Minnelli," and "Come in from the Cold," is her bucket list. In 1970, Ingmar Bergman shortened the staging of "Ghosts." The story is the dream of the poet. In it, Agnes is the incarnation of the god of death and love. She has come to earth to experience the life of a human. From encounters with dozens of people, she concludes human life consists of failed dreams and suffering. The play must have emotional and dramatic power. At the end of it all, the author returns to the idea of love. The lighting design by Josephine Smith is also dull. The play is a dream and has a lot of potential for further development. Bill Moore: 'Legends'

The sultry gaze belongs to Bette Davis, the faraway look to James Dean, the haunting glance to Bianca Jagger. The three images are from a collection aptly titled "Legends." It will be unveiled Memorial Day weekend at The Woods, a Russian River hostelry. The artist is Bill Moore.

Moore, 27, was born in Colorado and studied art at Colorado State University. He won honors at the Colorado Art Exhibit in four consecutive years.

After moving to Santa Monica, he worked with Architectural Digest and with several top advertising and design firms, creating artwork and logos for Agita Records, RCA, and the Fantastic Animation Festival. Then his career as a portraitist took flight.

Moore's portraits, commissioned and owned by the subjects, include studies of Barbra Streisand, Julie Budd, Shetland and Yamelle, Valerie Harper, Jane Forza, Jane Oliver, Rita Cuddy, and Cher.

His portrait of Beverly Sassoon led to a commission to illustrate her forthcoming book, Beauty Without Guilt. Due for publication by Avon this August, the book will contain some 60 illustrations.

Moore's life as an artist in southern California also led to a meeting with Arnold Schwartzenegger, who personally recommended Moore's artwork to publishers Simon and Schuster. As a result, he will be providing approximately 200 drawings for Schwartzenegger's next publishing project, The Encyclopedia of Bodybuilding.

Two months ago, Moore moved from Santa Monica to Monte Rio, a town on the Russian River. The change of climate and scenery, he says, has been an inspiration.

Bill Moore's "Legends" will be on display at a reception from 6 to 9 P.M. on May 28, in the Hexagon Room of The Woods.

The collection of portraits will be in San Francisco later this year. An exhibition is scheduled at the Trocadero in July.

It can clear himself, Froelich’s problems are entirely his own. When he has nothing to lose, that’s when he’s strongest. The ‘court-martial’ for insubordination hangs over his head. Fortunately, Danelaw turns out to be the son of a millionaire. His inheritance makes Froelich look weak. At one point, Froelich’s sister Fan, his only family, writes to him asking what he’s been thinking of all these years. Some people think the disease of career vs. self-satisfaction no longer exists for gay people. They would say, should you find there’s something a little queer about you in terms of your looks, or your behavior, or the way you dress, or whatever, it’s better not to write about it more and become better.

But I would say it is a bigger, more complex, and no one can believe that he has thought of himself as someone who has dealt with it or has come to grips with it. CSL Openers: Cinch 7, Mint 6; Sheriffs 12, CSL All-Stars 5.

by Jerry Polklin

The Community Softball League, the grandaddy of gay sports, began its 10th season May 9 with neither being able to take our ceremonial first pitch. Last year's pensive winners, the Cinch, took on the new Mighty Mint. The teams traded the fans in an excellent pitchers' duel.

Bill Flowers, in his familiar uniform as skipper of the Cinch, put veteran catcher Chris Conroy on the mound. Conroy held the Mint to just six runs on 10 base hits. He then asked him with the big out when it was needed.

The Mint, with last year's most valuable player Rex Leavelt at the helm, had pitcher Marty Arshuch making his debut in the CSL. The city umpires did not show up for the first half inning, and a close call at the umpire Glen Bode may have been the deciding factor in the outcome of the game. Arshuch survived a shaky first inning when the Cinch scored three times in a big third right over leftfielder Redpath's head with the bases loaded.

The Mint fought back to tie the score with one run in the second and two more in the third. Three more runs in the sixth put them in the lead. In that inning, Scott Keedick, in his seventh CSL season, hit what appeared to be a ground-rule double, but the ball bounced off the top of the right-field fence and headed into the playing field for a long single.

The Mint got two more runs in its half of the sixth, and scored the tying and winning runs in the last inning when Al Game hit up the middle with the bases loaded. Each pitcher limited their opposition to only one extra base hit.

The final score for the winning Cinch team: 7 runs, 11 hits, 2 errors, and 10 men left on base. For the losing Mint team: 6 runs, 10 hits, 3 errors, and 7 men left on base.

The game marked my return own to the league after three years of a long vacation in the Gay Softball League. There is a need for both a baseline and a center field, but I feel they should be playing under the same CSL banner in the near future.

The McGinns all-star game with the CSL All-Stars canceled at the last moment. The GSL's all-star game was held at the park in pony pitch for missing star's sake. Both teams had a good challenge between them, and the hanging extra-inning double. They went on to hold them to their 13-run winning total. The CSL all-stars contained a 1-0 lead on five runs off Bob Verick in the ninth inning of the doubleheader. The Mint won the bonus to play in the opener when their

S.F. Gay Population Surveyed

While the federal government avoided counting gay men and lesbians in its 1980 decennial census, the city of San Francisco's gay and lesbian community has taken the initiative in the Examiner and Chronicle. The city conducted surveys indicating the number of gay men and lesbians in San Francisco ranges between 81,000 and 102,000; or 12 to 15 percent of the city's 670,974 residents.

Another survey by Public Response Associates of gay voting patterns last fall yielded the city's 331,000 registered voters are 3 percent and 3 percent bisexual.

The city surveyed 494 adults who were reached by telephone. Of the adults contacted, 32 percent showed that 32 percent of San Francisco homosexuals are under age 32, compared to only 24 percent of heterosexuals.

The survey was conducted for Research Associates, Inc., a private firm that has gathered data further showed that 32 percent of San Francisco homosexuals are under age 32, compared to only 24 percent of heterosexuals.
