Houston Gears Up for Gay Rights Battle

by David Lamble

Houston is the nation's fourth largest city and the largest to have the issue of lesbian and gay rights come up for a test at the ballot box. On Saturday, January 19th, Houston voters will decide whether to approve an ordinance enacted by the Houston City Council adding sexual orientation to the list of protected categories of employment in city government with such protection also extended to private companies having contracts with the city.

The issue has come up for a public referendum as the result of 61,400 signatures gathered on petitions circulated by conservative religious groups. Both sides of the ordinance battle are predicting a close vote with perhaps fewer than ten percent of Houston's registered voters expected to come out for the special election.

The closeness of the electoral contest is about the only thing the two sides do agree on. I assign myself this story because I have the privilege of being a United Houston Citizen for a United Houston and the anti-ordination Committee for Public Awareness disagree fundamentally about the choice facing Houston voters. United Houston campaign director Rev. William Oliver considers the battle "an issue of privacy and justice." Oliver notes that the ordinance "specifically prohibits records being kept on sexual orientation" rendering, he believes, largely symbolic the stipulation that the city and its contractors attempt to increase the hiring of lesbians and gay men.

I, reader of the opposition to the organized opposition to the ordinance, question whether gays are trying to get their foot in the door as an officially sanctioned minority.

For the budget minded thrill seeker the Academy offers a variety of low cost cruises. The cheapest for those into the long haul is probably a year's membership at six bucks, combined with a "Fast Pass" (it's sort of a sexual "Fast Pass") for fifteen. The latter will let one roam the corridors during business hours for a month without further toll. Since my wallet couldn't foot the pig and since I wondered if I would ever return for strictly my own entertainment, I decided to get as cheaply as possible: a three dollar, thirty day membership and a simple three dollar entry fee good only for that night.

A moment out for a little bit of "Dangerous Times" or Playing It As It Lays

by David Lamble

It's one fifteen on a miserably rainy Saturday night/Sunday morning in San Francisco and I've got to go to work. Frankly, I'd rather be in bed (with or without company) but if one is going to report on the action of one of this city's few legally operating male sex clubs there's no time like the present.

I assigned myself this story and my editor was adamant: my usually lavish expense account would not cover the outlays involved. Ergo, my first agonizing decision was how much of my own cash to sink into what management chose to call my night on the town.

Houston Gears Up for Gay Rights Battle
by David Lamble

Houston is the nation's fourth largest city and the largest in the Southwest. Lesbian and gay rights came up for a test at the ballot box. On November 15, Houston voters will decide whether to approve an ordinance enacted by the Houston City Council allowing sexual orientation to be a protected class. The ordinance seeks to protect gay citizens from employment discrimination.

The ordinance was put on the ballot by the Equal Rights Political Action Committee, a group of Houstonians opposed to the ordinance. The group is concerned that the ordinance will lead to discrimination against heterosexuals. They claim that the ordinance will lead to discrimination against heterosexuals.

The ordinance is expected to pass, but the appeal of the Equal Rights Political Action Committee is likely to continue. The group has already filed a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the ordinance.

Safe Sex In Dangerous Times or Playing It As It Comes

In a city known for its vibrant nightlife, the AIDS epidemic has cast a shadow over the city's social landscape. The disease has claimed thousands of lives, leaving many others to grapple with the fear of infection.

The city's health officials have implemented measures to combat the epidemic, including mass testing and the distribution of condoms. However, the effectiveness of these measures is uncertain, and many fear that the epidemic will continue to spread.

The gay character has always been under the spotlight, as a source of both good and evil. Some critics are against this in general, as they believe it promotes immorality.

In general, it's agreed to be a large and more visible gay rights movement. Smith describes part of the gay movement "bothering" as young straight kids who are picking up pickets. Smith notes that the cultural alliance that exists between punk knew and straight is but have came back with conservative views about several issues.

Booth Harbers and Paul Fish, both gay rights leaders, are巷 part of the gay rights movement. Harbers is a judge in the gay rights court in the gay area.

Contributions to Civic Concerns are currently being raised. In addition to the gay rights court, a number of other gay organizations have been formed in recent years.

To Booth Harbers a lot of the gay rights movement is just a "Geezer Gay Rights."

The issue is on the table for the coming few weeks. The gay rights court is open to the public at a number of locations.

When I was growing up, San Francisco was an exciting place to be. As a child, I remember running around the Embarcadero, visiting Fisherman's Wharf, and enjoying the vibrant atmosphere of the city. Today, however, the cityscape has changed dramatically. The skyline is dominated by high-rise towers and the streets are filled with traffic. It's hard to believe that this is the same city I grew up in.

Looking back, I can't help but feel a sense of nostalgia. I remember the days when we would spend hours exploring the city, discovering new places and enjoying the culture. The city was alive with energy and there was always something to do. Today, it seems like everything has slowed down. The streets are quieter, the cars are fewer, and the atmosphere is different.

I miss the days when we could just wander around the city, exploring the shops and restaurants. There was always something new to discover, and the city was always full of life. Today, it feels like everything has been toned down, and the city is not as vibrant as it used to be.

Looking back, I can't help but feel a sense of longing. I want to go back to the days when the city was full of energy and there was always something new to discover. But I know that it's not possible to go back in time, and I'll have to make do with the memories I have of the city.

In the end, I guess I'll just have to accept that things have changed, and I'll have to find new ways to enjoy the city. I'll have to look for new places to explore and new things to discover. And I'll have to remember that even though the city has changed, the memories I have of it will always be with me.

Hecker Meets Gays
Washington, D.C. — A meeting with representatives of the National Gay Task Force, Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund and the FARO AIDS Action Committee and the Secretary of Health and Human Services, Margaret Heckler was held on December 4, 1984 — the first time a federal cabinet official has met with the lesbian/gay community. The discussion issue was the need to improve communication between the federal organizations and the lesbian/gay community. "This is part of our ongoing dialogue with AIDS on HIV and other health care concerns of our community," NGLTF Executive Director Vincent M. Apuzo commented. Secretary Heckler assured the representatives that continued accessibility and commitment to working with the gay/lesbian community on the AIDS crisis would be reflected in her administration.

"Unnatural Carnal Copulation"
New Orleans, Louisiana — A suit was filed by the ACLU of Louisiana on Monday, December 3, 1984 which attacked the state's crime against nature law, criminalizing sex acts between consenting adults in which the participation of both sex partners is voluntary. The law, which is also illegal in the state, has been used to prosecute gay men and lesbians. The plaintiffs are two lesbians, two gay men, and an unnamed heterosexual couple. The suit is a class action on behalf of all homosexual adults and married heterosexuals in Louisiana.

Wofsey stressed that homosexual women may be put at risk for contracting AIDS through having sex with bisexual males. She noted that studies have shown that as many as 10-15 percent of San Francisco's gay men have in dicated they have had sex with bisexual men, a practice that is more common among gay men than among heterosexual men. Wofsey said that several cases of AIDS in Zaire from 1979-1980 suggest that it may involve heterosexuals as well. She noted that in 1980 there were five cases in the US with AIDS and through the number is now in the thousands the percentage of heterosexuals with the disease has not increased in the last two years. "AIDS is now seen to be passable from women to men," Wofsey said. "In Zaire studies show that the proportion of women to men is 1:1. And cases within both sexes in Zaire appear to be found in a small number of the population."

The '81 epidemic has been marked by the appearance of cases among heterosexuals in North America and Haiti, according to Wofsey, was simultaneous in 1979. "People are more familiar with the disease and its' symptoms than we are in '81. Today almost everyone knows what the symptoms of AIDS are, but then we looked at patients and we didn't know what this thing was that they were feeling."

Alternative Therapies vs AIDS
Some USA plans a series of articles on cures for AIDS which the medical establish-moment has refused to recognize. The focus will be on treatment involving Vitamin C but we are eager for information on other techniques. If you have any firsthand experience with such therapies, or you know someone who does, please contact us at 415.861-8100 immediately.

Christmas Kudos

by Tom McLaughlin

I like Christmas in San Francisco. I like Union Square; the windows of the department stores surrounding it and the people who eat, sleep, and entertain it and call it home. I hope their Christmas brings warmth and joy and lots of hope for the New Year.

Christmas is the best time of the year to remember, to reflect and reconsider the ways in which we, as a species, have made ourselves to make our lives happier and safer. Eater and fuller in those who give us courage and vision, strength and unity. I hope their stockings are filled to the top, their trees are round with gifts, their day filled with laughter and friends.

Let's begin with Mary Dunlap and Paul Boreen, the Co-Chairs of the National March for Lesbians and Gays which was held on the eve of the Democratic Convention. On one hundred thousand lesbians and gays marched across the streets of millions of Americans, thanks to network TV. and earned a page in our history books) who concerned (David Hummel and his "Thank you for coming out") proving to them and to the world that there are several ways one can resist when they are faced with the need of the closet and of themselves to make our lives happier and safer. Supporting and fellow in those who give us courage and vision, strength and unity. I hope their stockings are filled to the top, their trees are round with gifts, their day filled with laughter and friends.

Mr. Dunlap has already received two of his gifts. He has won all of his Democratic opponent in every election district where there is a strong presence of lesbians and gays. His years of service and loyalty to our community was shown in color in our home town of Evanston. Mary Dunlap has filled to the top with any of his presents in any of the homes of millions of Americans. His years of service and loyalty to our community was shown in color in our home town of Evanston.

Lighting the Menorah

by Jeffrey Wilson

I wish I could give an opening on the Board of Supervisors at Pat Norman. For her race of one year, while ending to do her a personal victory for her. Her strong showing, despite spending considerably less than her victorious opponent, has placed her in a position where she will be a leading candidate in the next race, if she chooses to run. Hopefully, at that time, some of the incumbents will have moved to other places to pursue their careers and this seat will be open to new leadership. I think Pat will pull it off next time.

Christmas wreaths in Supervisor Renée, the amazing heroine, who nearly upset John Molinari in his race for President of the Board. And thank you to Carol Ruth Silver, I hope she always finds a parking space, for her work in making it easier for us to find one. Also, to Bill Maher, let's wish him luck in his battle to bring affordable housing to the city and reverse the flight of the middle class to suburbia.

Holidays remain, in our democratic clubs, under the leadership of Carole, Sal and Paul. They are always in the spirit of giving and a special who will be at his side to share his gift. He ran well ahead of his goal, and with our encouragement, our gratitude. We should tie the biggest and reddest of bows around Art Agnos' present. After several years of perseverance, he finally feels the victory of seeing AB-1 pass the Assembly. Yet, he had to suffer, along with the rest of us, the hiatus of defeated. His years of service and loyalty to our community was shown in the present he deserves — our support, and of itself, AIDS was not listed among leading causes of suicide in the year 1982. But in 1983, in our community, it was.

I came away from this seminar with the impression that trying to deal with the deadly effect of AIDS is now in the open, and can be discussed. The potential victims of this disease in our community tend to be young, holding negative attitudes regarding their sexuality, and also feel the hostility of the non-gay world more acutely in their lives. Oddly enough, in and of itself, AIDS is not listed among leading causes of suicide in our community. It is a disease that from this seminar with more questions than answers, and perhaps that is how it should be. When one is in a gay and health-care professional, do we in the gay community have the courage to reach in to desperate hearts and help re-kindle that light? Do we in the gay community have the courage to reach in to desperate hearts and help re-kindle that light?

Suicide Seminar Focuses on Two Taboo Subjects

by Bill Nelson

On December 8, 1984, Suicide Prevention of San Francisco held its first seminar on suicide in thegay-lesbian community. Suicide! The mere mention of the word stirs so many emotions in the human heart. It speaks of separation, inability to cope, vulnerability, and deep-rooted hurt. We in the human family are alone. We are alone. We have failed or why could we not effec­

Do we in the gay community have the courage to reach in to desperate hearts and help re-kindle that light? Do we in the gay community have the courage to reach in to desperate hearts and help re-kindle that light? Can we overcome our own fear and fear, and help a broken heart or broken to face truths with courage and hope? As shall the "SAD's" taught. Come, we have found our friends and resolution and the broadened.

A Different Color. Mainman's "Mr. May" has turned his back on us, but there are eleven more where he came from (Mainman Products. $7.95).

Latin Lovers Note. The graphics may leave a lot to be desired; not so the men. Marc. "Mr. March", graces the cover of The Latin Male (Bravo. $7.95).

Among treasured holiday traditions, we must include the annual crop of male calendars — and we don't mean the recent fashion for "real men" photography. After all, who wants a real fireman when you can get somebody gorgeous to dress up like one? The hunks of '85 don't do much dressing actually, that's why our panel of experts picked them. Here then, our choice of the best — if not necessarily the brightest — of the new year's men.

Winsome, or what. December's Christopher Byars looks like he needs a lot of understanding (Image Is, Sterling Specialties, $7.95).

Hello Kitty. Upfront's Mr. January may not show much personality, but he's kind to pets (Landmark Calendars. $8.95).

In her annual appearance at the Great American Music Hall (Embarcadero or less) in jazz by performing songs recorded 25 or so years ago. (like a funny “Most Gentlemen Don’t Communicate with her face and body as a substitute for words.”)

I always loved Tabor’s best known event, the long overdue SF debut of Sylvia Syms. Her performance showed the greatness of the great lyricist Johnny Mercer (“Skylark,” “Satin Doll”) which, given context by her informative, often intimate mannerisms without underdressing her interpretation. But her set, her singing, delighted her mannerisms without underdressing her expertise these days is the only way to continue savoring their music.

For it, Rickie Lee wrote a pop-meets-atmospheric, general present. And the music, which is tightly intertwined with the images and music, the music being an album of original compositions with which I was so impressed, and which I think lacks the power of invention and which is tightly intertwined with the images and music, the music being an album of original compositions with which I was so impressed, and which I think lacks the power of invention.

Church Pillar Topples

by John Wetel

James Sholer, 35, had been looked up to as a pillar of his South Bay community. He had been praised as a family man, a churchgoer, a rival talent to heterosocial values. Last month James Sholer pleaded guilty to felony charges of child molestation--charges that criti­ cized with them a six-year prison sentence. Friday he entered the California Correction System at the Vacaville facility.

The charges were a tie in the life of a man who, as recently as 1980 in a sermon, fervently in the successful as­ pect of conversion to the Lord of Santa Clara County's gay rights law as a convert to his minister, Marvin Rickard, San Jose's most politically outspoken, and best­ connected, fundamentalist preacher.

"They accused him of touching the boy's penis," said Sholer's attorney Cyril Ash, who had fought the case in court which ended in a guilty plea against Sholer. "He pleaded guilty because the punishment threatened to bring charges.

Donna Summer: Friend or Foe?

by Jeffrey Wilson

Recently, accusations based on an off-the-record report have been launched in former disco queen Donna Summer's Bay Area Reporter, a San Francisco gay periodical. It was noted by a B.A.R. staff writer that Donna Summer is now a victim of backlash for an alleged statement reported nearly eighteen mon­ ths ago referring to the gay community using, "AIDS is your sin..." B.A.R. further noted that Donna Summer's B.A.R. motion and that his opinion is not an end, total::$2,000.00 for Gayi

Whether a problem of one person.- Dennis Kostich, is not a vice president. B.A.R.'s source, Craig Lefler, manager of Tower Records' Sunset Boulevard store in Los Angeles told Sen­ tinel: "We are carrying all of Donna Summer products from the Los Angeles store in Los Angeles were defaced.

Donna Summer products from the Los Angeles store in Los Angeles were defaced.

If you think she is a pedophile and that she should be purged, you are wrong. She is very painful for Mr. Sholer and his family.

During Attorney Paula Kary, "This is an old and dired as any child molestation. Mr. Sholer will be eligible for parole after he serves his term for a maximum of three years. If he violates it, he will face additional proceedings again.

Sholer was a member of the Los Gatos Christian Church Congregation, a congregation that had been advocated by influential fund­ raiser and minister Marvin Rickard, who, on one course to Jerry Falwell in philosophy.

Accusations of another source, church members and clergy are "tainted evidence" of Sholer's connection with the Los Gatos Christian Church, but generally felt that as a con­ gregation member Sholer will be redeemed.

Apparently Sholer, a graduate of MIT and Hastings Law School (1975), had woven himself into the bosom of the church, meanwhile, has refused to comment on the press.

A Pip of a Year

by David Lamble

Popping through our back pages, it was a pip of a year. The past twelve months were a wonderland for the mind. Pornographers and political protesters are among the few who were able to keep up with the relentless flow of new ideas. A remarkable number of new books are on the market, and it is impossible to keep track of them all. This is why we have included a section on "A Pip of a Year" to give you an idea of what is happening in the world of books.
