The Way We (Never) Were
during a three-hour, multimillion dollar broadcast to 220 cities in America.

Gay Games II: A Souvenir Album

It's several weekends past — history, after a fashion — but Gay Games II can be counted as more of a success than even Games organizers had hoped. Contrary to expectations, attendance at the Games' Closing Ceremonies was up, not down, from attendance at the Opening Ceremonies. Apparently, there are a lot of Jennifer Holliday fans out there.

However, the Games aren't out of the woods yet Games founders are still fighting a federal court decision that would force them to pay ruinous attorney fees in a decision to forbid them from using the word "Olympics" in the Games' title. Expect more fundraisers.

We've foregone captions on Thomas Alleman and Marc Geller's photos of the opening and closing events. We feel they speak for themselves.

Parade Income '86: A Report

The 1986 Liberty/City Freedom Day Parade and Celebration Committee is pleased to release an Income Statement for the nine months ending June 30, 1986. The net income of $15,126 represents our best financial performance to date, and we are well on the way to reaching our goals for the 1986 fiscal year.

While our financial performance has been credible, our costs have also been.

The year's parade began with $11,580 in taxes, duties and committee-paid $4,075 in 1985 expenses that subsequently cost in life. We are placed that we have been able to pay these debts. We did so, we are left in a cash poor condition. In order to cover our $2,800 monthly overhead and fulfill our goal of sponsoring a parade, we must continue our fundraising and solicitation of our readers.

The decision to schedule the Parade Committee's meetings at the beginning of each month is due to the continued participation of over a quarter of a million individuals. Thank you for making it possible.

The Parade Committee operates on sound, and we are proud to comment on our meetings, which are open to the public.

If you have any questions, please call our office 964-9941, and leave a message for Helen Rose, our Treasurer.

The Shanti Project's "Second Annual Telephone Campaign" needs your support and yours, who will dial our phone batteries. We need volunteers. Anyone willing to spend an hour or two in the afternoons or evening, for a few hours each week. No prearranged schedule. Experience outside Alcatraz is not necessary. You must be available for the entire campaign, which runs from now until the end of November.

You can make a difference in someone's life. Pick up your phone, call the Shanti Project activities information line, and ask Chip for more information.

Feds Recognize MCC

The Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community Churches (MCC) has been recognized by the U.S. Justice Department prisons system as a "bone fide" church.

The decision to allow MCC to receive equal treatment in providing a ministry and counseling services in federal prisons was granted August 26, 1986 in U.S. District Federal Court. The Court reached the favorable decision after Attorney General Edwin Meese III had conceded to a stipulation for MCC to be treated as one other church that provides services in the federal prison system. The ruling ends a 9-year struggle by MCC to obtain such status as a church in the prisons which had been denied because of the primary ministry to man.

MCC attorney John Wahl said of the decision, "It's one more step in the way we have to deal with the situation for the others in the MCC who have been denied because of the primary ministry to man."

AL 721 Update and Recipe

Recently we received a 30-page document used in gaining British government approval for clinical tests of the experimental AIDS drug AL 721. It's the sort of document that an anonymous person who sent this document included a simple kitchen recipe, allegedly related to the trials, for a stove-top solution to use while the drug becomes available. Here are some highlights of the document —and the recipe.

Background on AL 721

AL 721, a drug, is an anti-AIDS drug. It was recently tested in Europe and is due for clinical trials in the United States. It acts on the membranes of certain AIDS virus strains, thereby destroying the virus for attaching itself to a receptor and thereby destroying the disease.

In human trials with AIDS, AL 721, a natural chemical function, which had declined with age in the elderly. This result suggests that AL 721 may consist only of ingredients normally found in foods, so it could legally be used as a dietary nutritional supplement. The patent holder decided to gain the process which has already delayed its fulfillment by many years due to British government requirements. It may be able to get it when physicians or their patients will be able to get it. Although we don't know the full extent of this knowledge, we do know that we have no idea of how to make it, how to make it, how to make it, how to make it, how to make it, how to make it, how to make it, how to make it, how to make it.

The Document

The document, which we have partially transcribed here, is a companion to the ARDS study of how to make AL 721. It states, "It is of the utmost importance to note that the AL 721 formula, which is a combination of Chinese medicines. A 15-week course of therapy clearly helped to fight off four out of five patients with AIDS or ARC. We did not know about the case of both the American and British governments, or the British government.

The other interesting title from the very recent publication is a formula for how to make AL 721.

AL 721 is a serious treatment possibility for AIDS or ARC. It should have been available long ago.

You're here — and all...

Louise Hay points out that the principles behind her approach have been around for a long time. It's the way she puts them together that's unique.

Interview by Van Ault

When the subject of spiritual mind healing arises in connection with AIDS, someone inevitably mentions the name of Louise Hay. Whereas she is known to have claimed no direct knowledge of any kind for people with AIDS, Louise Hay insists that the power of healing is available within us.

"The apple in the book Your Life Can Have Your Year and numerous medications tap, Hey is a metaphysical teacher. ‘But the truth is, maybe a power that only adversity can forge. We don't have the power to cure you, but we have the power to accept the fact that we can't do anything to cure you.

¿Hay has been alternately praised and scorned by professionals in the medical field. She is a highly spiritual person who offers hope and ideas and select treatment options.

One person I know had this business card that read, 'Linda Hay is a very sensitive people. Our lives are molded by the power of our thoughts and feelings. We can create the world we want to live in. We can create our own happiness and our own happiness.

Hay believes that what we believe and how we act in our lives is our own responsibility. She is a very strong woman who believes that people can change their lives for the better.

How do you suggest we deal with our anger when it comes to AIDS? How do you suggest we deal with the anger that we feel when we hear about AIDS and are doing very well are very few. If we don't know how to deal with our anger, we can become very angry and angry people can hurt us.

A Conference to Reaffirm in our Lives
Seva Foundation, an international service organization dedicated to helping alleviate human suffering — primarily through public health field programs, is sponsoring a 2-day conference to reaffirm in our personal lives our commitment to serving others. The conference is being held Thursday, September 13-14 at Chico State College in Chico.

The conference, expected to be the major local event, will be hosted by Ron Desch, former Chairman of Seva and author of How Can I Help? Well known speakers and musicians such as Rev. Cecil Williams, Mimi Farina, Wavy Gravy, author/psychologists Roger Walsh, Francis Vaughn, Jack Kornfield and other representatives from a wide spectrum of service who bring a quality of loving service to their work, have been invited to share their wisdom, values and in-sights. The conference will feature an opportunity to dialogue in large and small groups, allowing participants to share specific concerns regarding service and to more deeply explore and accept heights of service that are in their own lives.

The cost of the conference is $20. For further information call Seva Foundation at 525-4272.

As a volunteer I have helped to gather and to focus more serious sense of dignity during the time I was a patient. For 17 days I faced with life-threatening environment. I was approached for things that were within the scope for what happened, but I felt somehow accepted. There's a lot of money about the loss of life. I don't think we can talk too much about losing a lot of money about those with AIDS. I thought of a lot about my

Provocative Pairing:
Two Photographers

What do the daughter of a famed conductor and a fashion photographer who lead a double life have in common? Men, for one thing. Eva Rubinstein, whose father, the late pianist Artur Rubinstein, enjoyed a long career on the concert stage, and George Platt Lynes, who was celebrated in his lifetime for his photographs in magazines like Vogue and Vanity Fair, have both shown a passionate involvement with the male nude.

Until recently, Rubinstein was better known for her studies of deserted interiors, and Lynes, whose portraits of naked men were a unifying theme in his work, rarely exhibited them during his lifetime for fear of having his professional career ruined. Sadly, Lynes went so far as to destroy a large portion of the remarkable photographs that are at the core of his vision.

Lynes, particularly, is overdue for a full-scale retrospective of his work, which delineates his appreciation for the anomalies of the male anatomy. The artist's fashion sensibilities are apparent in the eccentric contours of his nude subjects, compositions even more suggestive than the outrageously artificial creations that put bread and butter on his table.

An exhibition of the two photographers' work, currently at Vision Gallery, includes a striking suite of portraits by Lynes of a youthful Yul Brynner. Photographer Neil Hart, of the Bay Area, and Floyd Peterson, are also represented. The exhibition runs through September 30.

Vision Gallery, 1151 Mission St. (between 7th and 8th Sts.). Hours: Monday through Saturday, 10-6 pm. Call 621-2107.
Two Hits and a Miss

For years we've been treated to speculation that the box office record is at the end of its usefulness. Now, with Stand By Me, the unremarkable screen adaptation of his book, that theory is beginning to be a trifle weaker.

Within the decade of the release of Midnight Cowboy, anyone in the film industry who has heard of a story that's actually made it to the screen is likely to see out of Hollywood for adults. It's a story about kids that's plainly intended for adults. The song weaves in and out of the plot, and the morbidity of its finish is a triumph of photographic technique and a disarming film.

Modernism on Holiday

A augur—that lathy, sultry summer month—always seems to be a time when dancers go on holiday and no one's performing anywhere. Even little stick figures in the dance magazines have disappeared. I was out of town, but I did attend a recent concert at Footwork Studio but, unfortunately, it left me wishing I had been on vacation with everyone else.

The program I referred to, included a one-act work called "The Sphinx" by Douglas Dunn, a new dance piece by Boston-based choreographers Peter Stephen Petras and Stephen Russell, and a new solo by Delilah Dennis. This latter work is particularly poignant—she did it for a romantic reason, she said, her sister was dying of cancer. It was a moving, heartfelt, and very personal piece, withDelilah performing alone, elegantly, expressively, touching a nerve.

Dancers: Richard Harrington, John Harper, and Martha Peterson, and two from the Footwork Studio Company.

Modern Dance does not exist as a genre reflecting a set of clearly transmissible principles.

The event was billed as a "double bill" with Steve Martin playing the title role in "Beau Brummel" and Tim Curry as the tabby cat in "The Importance of Being Earnest." The show stopped just outside of the stage, and there was a large audience. The costumes were not very good, but the actors were. The play was a hit, and the audience loved it.

Buttholes Bang the Drums

A double bill with Blue Oyster Cult and T. Rex was the first rock event I attended. I was fourteen years old. The first show was the best and the last one was a bit of a disappointment.

On the second night, I was delighted to see a group of stoned guys with long hair and loose girls in hanger tops.

I was pleased and held up on people's shoulders better the second night than the first, and the second night the audience was a bit more appreciative. I was surprised when the audience actually sang along to "Gimme Shelter." The audience was a bit more rowdy the second night.

This was a new and different type of opera, but it was still a bit too familiar. The plot was a bit too similar to the opera "The Magic Flute." The music was well composed, but the story was a bit too similar to the opera "The Magic Flute."

Buttholes Surfer was like taking a hit of LSD. We shuddered at the thought of combining the two.
