Santa Rosa S&L Scam:

Feds Bear Down on Atlas

by David M. Lowe

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) is conducting an official inquiry into the recent failure of Atlas Savings and Loan Association. FBI investigators are looking into allegations of wrongdoing by former senior management officials at the nation's first gay owned and operated financial institution. The probe centers on the possibility that certain individuals may have embezzled funds, causing significant losses that may have contributed to Atlas' insolvency and ultimate failure.

The FBI investigation of Atlas is part of a much larger inquiry into similar allegations by individuals associated with three other recent failed S&Ls in the area: Centennial Savings and Loan (CSL), Santa Rosa; Columbus Marin Savings and Loan, San Rafael; and Golden Pacific Savings and Loan, Windsor.

Investigations began in January, 1986, after the Federal Home Loan Bank referred the possibility of criminal bank fraud to the FBI. Official word of the investigations was contained in an FBI affidavit filed Sept. 2 in federal court seeking charges of bank fraud and embezzlement against two employees of Centennial Savings and Loan. Riley Yasinski, 29, branch manager of Centennial's main office in Santa Rosa, and Beverly Rose Haines, 53, former executive vice-president of Centennial, were arrested September 3. The two are accused of allegedly embezzling $1.8 million from CSL accounts between January 1985, and August this year. Haines and Yasinski, awaiting arraignment on charges, are free on $1 million and $250,000 bond respectively.

Godly people of faith are abhorrent and disparaged by the most recent theological shenanigans of Pope John Paul II and his Roman Catholic hierarchy.

Charles Curran, a priest and internationally respected theologian at the Catholic University in Washington, has been under investigation for some time because of this—on a variety of issues, including homosexuality. His position is under attack as a result of his public stand against the traditionalist. Father Curran believes that our gay community be sharply condemned by the Vatican, and he has lost his position as a teacher of theology at the University.

Terence Sweeney, a priest in Ireland, has been the subject of 155 members of the American hierarchy on social and moral issues. His findings, of a dissenting voice between what leaders believe and what Rome elects, comes through Father Sweeney’s latest output. The Vatican ordered him to suspend his findings. Last week, Father Sweeney resigned from the position.

Last Friday, Archbishop Raymond Hennings of Seattle was stripped of his episcopal powers and authorized by two years of investigation. His situation really began shortly after inviting Dignity, the group of gay and lesbian priests who wanted him to hear a voice of dissent at the unprecedented humiliation of our good friend.

The Church’s dilemma: He is vowed to obedience and special service to a Pope who has said, “God didn’t make me a Lesbian.”

For the SF Chronicle...

As a former member of the Jesuit order, I understand Terrance Sweeney’s dilemma. He is vowed to obedience and special service to a Pope who has said, “God didn’t make me a Lesbian.”

Robin Williams Goes to Bat Against LaRouche:
Mork His Words

Comedy of Robin Williams drew a crowd of 700 people to a $200 a plate dinner aimed at raising funds to defeat Proposition 64, said his involvement was with a "very funny man who died of the disease."

"I've been told there's a lot of paranoia. Hopefully — and eventually, there will be a cure, and this incredible paranoia will stop."

"When Williams was asked, "Are you doing this to raise money?" he continued with some levity. "Oh, no! It's Koodies," he said.

"This is a foundation, of a guess you would call them modern leper colonies, across the state."

"This is an incredibly dangerous bill to me."

AIDS and the LaRouche Initiative are far from being matters of laughs. But, last Thursday, the comedy of Robin Williams drew a crowd of 700 people to a $200 a plate dinner aimed at raising funds to defeat Proposition 64, the LaRouche Initiative.

Williams, billed as the "special guest" of the California League of Savings Institutions, was introduced by Merv Silverman at a press conference at the Hyatt Regency.

"I knew something was wrong," said Robinson.

"FBI has been here. They're not very nice guys. We've been told not to even mention their names because they're stolen identities."

According to Sigers' lawyer, Vivian McPherson said there are actions being taken against Mark, it is happening not just against Mark, it is happening not just against people with AIDS, but also against people with other "handicap.""

Larkin Youth Center Reopens

Larkin Street Youth Center reopens with a ribbon cutting celebration on Thursday, Sept. 18, at 10:40 Larkin St., from 11 am to 1 pm. At 11:30 am, Mayor Diane Feinstein will cut the ribbon opening Larkin Street's newly rebuilt and expanded program space.

In May of this year the Larkin Street Youth Center was battled to a near death for the sake of the City. In the intervening months the Center has been reconstituted to a right size, and many individuals, organizations, churches and businesses have contributed to the Center's rehabilitation. On September 18, the Center celebrates its reopening and the continuation and expansion of its youth programs due to special funding from the San Francisco Foundation and the Hewlett Foundation.

Those Conspiracy Theories

We keep hearing more today about AIDS conspiracy theories. While this writer finds problems with most of the germ warfare scenarios, the other kind of allegation—specifically attacks on the non-profit sector, public health response to the epidemic—is hard to refute.

Summary

The mismanagement of AIDS treatment research is as serious for the public — or even AIDS experts — as real.

Inner Space

Immune Enhancement Project

The Inner Space Enhancement Project is a small group of traditional Chinese medicine practitioners. They develop and market health products not Foundations have been described in the literature. The transfer of genetic material from one cell to another is known to occur naturally in many different organisms. The material being transferred is generally DNA or RNA, but can also be protein or organelles.

What They Are Doing

The Inner Space Enhancement Project is a project that was developed to assist people with AIDS, and to reduce the symptoms and side effects associated with the disease. They are working on developing products that can help improve the immune system and reduce the symptoms of the disease.

What They Need

The Inner Space Enhancement Project needs the support of people who are interested in these issues and who want to help improve the lives of those with AIDS. They need people who can contribute financial resources to support the work of the project.

Rumors of Worse

There is no way to be sure, but some recent reports of worse conditions have been reported in the media. For example, the death of a person with AIDS was reported as a result of an apparent infection with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). This type of news can cause great fear and panic among the public, and it is important to understand the true extent of the problem.

Path to Wellness

The Inner Space Enhancement Project offers a path to wellness and recovery. They provide a holistic approach to health and wellness that takes into account the whole person — body, mind, and spirit. They offer services such as acupuncture, herbal medicine, and nutrition counseling to help people improve their overall health and well-being.

In the context of our multi-dimensional, interconnected world, there is a need for a holistic approach to emotional health. The Acknowledgment of the Body-Mind-Spirit connection is the fundamental basis of all healing. Recognizing our own god-ness allows us the infinite capacity to Serializer, peace and prosperity, and good ness allows us the infinite capacity to merge with the infinite. The Goddess Factor is a seven-step series of lectures designed as an exploration of the energy of life itself. I suggest a series of strategies or interventions that can assist in relaxing, increasing personal psychic readings, investigating emotional congestion that underlies stress, allowing for better energy flow and a return to you thoroughly relaxed and powerful back to you.

There are few adequate words to describe Eclaboussures, the new theatrical piece by Theatre Banteau, a Belgian group appearing at the Intersection. It's the sort of total performance impossible to communicate on a page.

I don't know where to begin, except to isolate a work as vital, rich, exciting, beautiful and, most of all, impassioned. There are valuable experiences was concerned with themes of power and sexuality. A pomographer for a couple of explicit, scandalous theatre without a formal context or narrative. It is dominated by notions of instinct, drive, and an obsessive—immense—drive towards self-destruction. The theatre is the play, the fundamental behaviour not to do anything but continually repeat the same actions—medicine and sex. I am unable to see in this work anything but

The meaning of Eclaboussures is before us, as a visceral expression of the longing to love, reach and fall.

We visited the Endup dance club the other night to report on the festivities surrounding the first (monthly) "Bum Calendar Contest." From a marketing perspective, we immediately noticed the remarkable success of this John Lewis production: The bar was jammed with mostly white, moustachioed and maturing young men. And the loud, Neanderthal disco beat provided (we assumed) a comforting, nostalgic, aural ambiance. We did, however, decide to speak with this young man during the intermission between formal judging and announcement of the winner. We began by asking why he had entered the contest. "I'm doing this because I want a spot on the dance floor. Of course, such an evaluation is dependent on certain standards, and as we found Tom William, Harold, and Janet Jackson "... and other new music." We agreed. Completely. And then our conversation ultimately had no bearing on the issue at hand.

A Mixed Bag for Openers

Last Thursday, the San Francisco Symphony celebrated its 75th anniversary with a gala concert featuring guest conductor Bill Buck. The concert was filled with a mix of musical styles, ranging from Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5 to Verdi's Don Carlos, which was performed over the weekend.

The concert began with a performance of Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5, which was conducted by Bill Buck. The performance was well-received, with the audience applauding loudly at the end of the piece. The next piece on the program was Verdi's Don Carlos, which was performed by the San Francisco Opera Orchestra under the direction of Michael Bourniel.

The performance of Don Carlos was praised for its musical power and dramatic intensity. The orchestra was praised for its ability to convey the emotional depth of the music, and the singers were lauded for their powerful vocal performances. The performance was a highlight of the anniversary celebration, and it was clear that the San Francisco Symphony and Opera had put in a lot of effort to make it a success.

In addition to the music, the anniversary celebration included a variety of other activities, including a gala dinner and a performance by the San Francisco Opera Chorus. The evening was a resounding success, and it demonstrated the continued strength and vibrancy of the San Francisco Symphony and Opera.

The anniversary celebration was a testament to the enduring legacy of the San Francisco Symphony and Opera, and it was a fitting tribute to their many years of musical excellence.

As Clear Range suffers on any number of counts, the killings are far too stagey: Foley's orgiastic fondness for gore, repelling younger brother. It's a performance that makes plays an extravagantly repressed and obsessive his appearance in At Close Range. Some actors have been thrust into the limelight.
