Deukmejian Galvanizes Gay Community

by Tim Taylor

Call it the latest example of the Law of Unintended Consequences, but Governor Deukmejian succeeded in doing what three months of desultory, lackluster campaigning failed to do. He galvanized the gay community and AIDS activists against propositions 96 and 102.

The announcement last Friday by the GOP governor in favor of the two mandatory AIDS testing proposals on the November ballot was first thought to be a stunning setback to organizers of the No on 96 and 102 efforts who had expected Deukmejian to line up in their corner, if he took a position at all.

But by choosing to ally himself with Rep. William Danenmeyer, tax crusader Paul Gann and Los Angeles Sheriff William Block, Deukmejian prompted an impressive outcry against a proposal that has been widely condemned by public health officials.

And he provided the fuel that sparked one of the most dynamic, spontaneous demonstrations to hit the Castro in recent years.

This week, Surgeon General C. Everett Koop came out against Prop. 102, calling it “against every principle of public health I know.” Koop made his remarks in an exclusive interview with the San Francisco Examiner that was arranged by Mayor Agnos.

If passed, he said Proposition 102 would set back Continued on page 10

Operation Rescue Changes Tactics

Police moved in and shut down the block of the abortion clinic entrance, turning the sidewalk into a street. It was 7 am in the morning and there was a line of police cars and police officers blocking the entrance to the clinic. The police then began to arrest the protesters who were blocking the entrance.

The next day, the police called back in backup units, and at a 4 a.m. no-exit point, the police told the protesters that they were not allowed to block the entrance. The protesters refused and were arrested.

The police have now taken control of the situation and will continue to arrest the protesters who are blocking the entrance to the clinic.

To furniture designer and small businessman Ken Iriand, the new Missouri state flag means everything to him. He says he has been a member of the state flag committee since 1993, and has been instrumental in its design.

Ken Iriand

Iriand is a member of the Missouri State Flag Commission and has been involved in the design and promotion of the new state flag. He says he is passionate about the flag and its symbolism.

Iriand’s design for the new Missouri state flag includes a depiction of the state’s capital city of Jefferson City, as well as the state motto “State of Mind.” The flag also features the state bird, the cardinal, and the state flower, the Missouri goldenrod.

Iriand’s design was chosen by the Missouri State Flag Commission in a competition that drew submissions from across the state. The commission selected Iriand’s design from among 100 entries.

Iriand believes that the new state flag is a symbol of the state’s values and heritage. He says he is proud to be a part of the process that created the new flag.

To fascinate developers and small businessmen Ken Ireland, the campaign to bottleneck the US-Missouri in San Francisco Bay is an irony and an outrage that has left him, as he calls it, "permanently touched."

For the past ten years, Ireland has been fighting for Point Desip, Bay Point, Point Bay, a 150-acre site in San Francisco's Hunters Point, where affordable housing could be built, hundreds of artists and scientists to be housed, a base of horizontal farming tradition and logic and indigenous farming techniques with modern patents and

The decision by Supervisor John McLaren to retire from the Board of Supervisors this January has opened a window of opportunity for two leaders in the gay and lesbian community who otherwise would have had little chance of advancing in this year’s supervisorial election.

In his four-year term on the Board of Supervisors, Mr. McLaren was a consistent champion of gay rights. He was a vocal supporter of the gay community and was a frequent advocate for gay and lesbian issues.

Slow Talk

DAVE FORD

So here's how it stands. It's a couple of days off the election — and we're only a couple of days off. The outcome of Proposition 102 in California will be known on Nov. 6. Fearing Herbert Walker Bushen the Lord may well step into the annals of history as a candidate whose campaign was marked by a controversy over his stance on domestic issues.

Looking at it from every perspective, though, this race is a close one. But you can bet that, That's why we'll call it a battle to the death. And the battle lines have clearly been drawn. So, let's take a closer look at the issues at stake.

First of all, there's the issue of tax cuts. The Bush campaign has promised to cut taxes, while the Clinton campaign has vowed to raise them. This is a classic issue of the campaign, and it will play a key role in determining the outcome.

Next, there's the issue of healthcare. Both candidates have promised to improve the healthcare system, but there's a fundamental difference between their approaches. Bush has promised to expand the role of private insurance companies, while Clinton has pledged to expand Medicare.

Finally, there's the issue of the environment. Bush has pledged to continue the policies of the previous administration, while Clinton has promised to reverse them. This is a critical issue for many voters, and it will likely determine the outcome of the election.

In conclusion, it's clear that the election is going to be a close one. Both candidates have strong arguments, and the outcome will likely depend on how voters respond to these issues. But one thing is certain: the election will be a turning point in American history, and the outcome will have a profound impact on the country.

Thank you for the opportunity to represent you in Congress.

ERRORS AND INNOCUO.

To the Editor:

Several concerns have been raised about recent endorsements that have been made by our paper. Karen Burton is the author of the letter, which was published in the SF Weekly of October 28, 2003.

Burton claims that she is a victim of intellectual property theft and seeks damages. She also accuses the paper of publishing material that is not her own work.

I would like to respond to these allegations and clarify the situation.

First, the letter was not written by Burton. It was written by someone else who was not authorized to do so.

Second, the material in the letter was not copyrighted or otherwise protected by law.

Third, there is no evidence that the material was taken from any other source.

Finally, I would like to reassure our readers that we take these allegations seriously and will investigate them fully.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Knowing What You Want and Asking the Right Questions

A Masseur’s Guide to the Massage Ads

In the last several years, the gay press have seen a proliferation of massage ads. Unfortunately, the reason the ads have in the past been written, people are trying to explore other safe and sane outlets for their sexual and sexual needs. Also, people have become more aware of the benefits of massage. Knowing what you want and talking about it before you select your next masseur will go a long way.

Among all the ads in the local papers and on the bulletin boards at the gay clubs and bars, there are just a small number of massage therapists who offer services off the beaten path. For a few years now, I have been getting many of the leads from the massage ads that I select in the newspapers. In particular, I have found that by asking the right questions, you can eliminate a great many massage therapists who are not really what you are looking for.

In this ad, I will share some of the questions you want to ask before you select your next masseur, and some of the ways to make sure you will get what you want.

Chinese Medicine and AIDS: What Has Been Learned?

Misha Cohen, OMD, CA, founder and clinical director of the Quan Yin Acupuncture and Herb Center in San Francisco, has worked extensively with AIDS patients. Recently, Quan Yin was selected by the National Institute of Health to outline the most important issues from this work—and also to suggest practical treatment options available now, even for people living in San Francisco who have recently become infected with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

What basic themes or messages are most important to give us in order to prevent AIDS?

We know that Chinese medicine is highly individual, so it is better if people, who have similar issues, refer themselves to the one who is more comfortable with the masseur. It is similar to finding the right massage therapist for you.

We believe that a combination of Eastern and Western concepts is necessary to effectively treat AIDS.

North Beach's Mayakade: Limits Pusher

Though he grew up in San Francisco, my dad is still convinced that the best Italian restaurant is in his native Russian neighborhood. But while he enjoys the food, he's also quite particular about his service. The waiters are friendly but not too attentive, and the atmosphere is casual but not too informal.

Wagner's Pastoral: Behind the Myth

San Francisco Opera's new production of Richard Wagner's Parsifal must be seen from above, because the floor is an active participant in the proceedings. Amfortanz's prayer ring in the first scene, the crucifix emblazoned in the Grail scene, Klingsor's symbol-laden daggers—all catch his otherwise severely stripped-down production and make for the magic essential to Wagner's Zauberlob. Many others have been called upon to correct the design, but not that of H. Daniel Lesbois. Here, the sea-reeds that are so prominent in Parsifal are so appropriate to the musical line. We are, however, a little bit too far from the magic garden throughout most of Act II. Yet nature is Wagner's real concern in Parsifal as it had been in The Ring. The general atmosphere was one of the bar's main advantages, even if the tables were often too close for comfort. The room is large and well-lit, with high ceilings and large windows that let in natural light. The food was excellent, with a good variety of dishes to choose from. The service was prompt and friendly. Overall, I would recommend this restaurant to anyone looking for a nice dining experience in a relaxed atmosphere.
Gay Alien Nation

Halloween night, I was looking at an apparition. Slim’s was packed for an appearance by Sun Ra and his 17-piece Arkestra. Onstage, the 60-year-old band leader, decked out in a blinding rainbow Oike a graduate of a Finishing school run by Moms Mabley and Flip Wilson’s Geraldine) to the leather jacket, arm s folded. As who will be joining the moustache and smiled, “ Gay ping clear off the planet.

Space oddities: Sun Ra and members of his Arkestra play at Slim’s.

Gay history is the other history, the hidden dharna, that has underground streams. What we know about ourselves we’ve had to find out from places other than the standard textbooks.

Gay Wrestling

Last Saturday afternoon provided one of the rarest of Halloween sights outside the Gay Games that gay wrestlers had an opportunity to compete in a sport where it is more common for them to be the object of their teammates, but also the targets of their opponents. This was the case at the Gay Wrestling Club's Tenth Street Survival Tournament, held at 205 Tenth Street. The tournament featured a total of 17 matches and drew a record number of spectators.

Mickey Bailey of San Francisco said that he was in attendance to support gay league bowling. He observed, however, that the atmosphere on the mat is different, with the noise and excitement making the matches more intense.

League Bowling's Real Nitty-Gritty

Playing on league bowling, many opportunities are presented for satisfying the competitive aspect of one's nature. Weekly scores of inspired players make this competition meaningful. However, league service is a facet of league bowling that frequently goes unappreciated in spite of the numerous demands it imposes on individuals' time and energy.

The San Francisco Fall Fair's full 1988 season has only two more weeks of regular play before crunch time - the playoffs! In the Div I the Delano Rangers took a firm立足 at lead going into the final round of the season. Delano in the Delano Cust-Cust (1-1-2) with Jim Delano and John Delano both making a statement. The final week will be the best of five games to determine the champion of the season.

Meanwhile, the Providence (2-1) and the North Division (1-1) have two playoff games against each other. Providence is leading 1-0 and the North Division is leading 1-0. After two playoff games, Delano will host the Providence Cust-Cust (1-1-2).

Division Three is a variation of the skit, "Who's On First?"

The final week will be more intense with the top two teams vying for the final playoff game. This week's games are:

Delano Cust-Cust vs Providence Cust-Cust

Special captain Dick Glass is on the lookout for the top two spots in the season and has put his team to the test.

San Francisco Sentinel • November 4, 1988
The Alice B. Toklas Lesbian and Gay Democratic Club is proud to present the following recommendations for the November 8, 1988 election. All of our recommendations have been made to further our goals of creating a city which leads the country in economic strength and commitment to human rights.

Board of Supervisors

PAT NORMAN
For Supervisor

Pat Norman is a local and national leader for civil rights. Pat Norman will bring San Francisco humane fiscal management, job growth with small businesses, and regional planning, in which San Francisco acts to protect the environment while meeting the demands for growth.

HARRY BRITT
For Supervisor

As an incumbent Supervisor, Harry Britt has worked to protect renters against soaring rents and unfair eviction, led the nation in war against AIDS, fought to enact pay equity for women and minorities, stopped highrise overdevelopment, and expanded youth and senior services.

TERENCE HALLINAN
For Supervisor

As a supervisor, Terence Hallinan will make the defense of human and civil rights his key priority. Terence Hallinan will use his years of experience working on citywide issues to make San Francisco the kind of city we can stay in.

MICHAEL DUKAKIS
For President

Imagine George Bush as president. Imagine Dan Quayle a "heartbeat away." Imagine four more years of Jerry Falwell setting social policy, William Dannemeyer setting AIDS policy, James Watt setting environmental policy, and Eddie Meese determining "justice." We need Michael Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen to appoint judges, stand up to the Pentagon, and reach out to local communities.

LEO MCCARTHY
For U.S. Senate

Lt. Governor Leo McCarthy is a staunch environmentalist, supporter of lesbian and gay empowerment, and a firm advocate for the right of women to have control over their own bodies. Leo McCarthy's opponent supported Robert Bork for the Supreme Court and nominated Vaughn Walker to the Federal bench.
