HOLIDAYS AT A GLANCE

A Little Different

OK, you're already tired of "Oklahoma!"... So, why not try "Side by Side by Sondheim"? One half of the show is decked with holly as they go "in" to the 50's and the other half is decked with Seidelmen's "Christmas in New York". So what's there to do in thisnon-Christmas"? Don't leap on the bandwagon...

Plenty, and you don't even have to sing one verse of "Joy to the World."

If you're looking for something different and a little crazy, why not try the Holiday Red and White Town (Dec. 11), noon to 5 pm. Sponsored by San Francisco Heritage, the teat features the holiday decorated interior of five downstairs historic sites. Relax in a memorial carol cafe as a Heritage guide describes the architecture and history of the Old Mint, where most of the town site is located. dramatized by a cast from the National Heritage Ensemble, 25 cents for adults, information available at 441-3000.

Also this Sunday, you can have off some of that excess holiday energy by treating the Maritime House a Silk Christmas Dinner (Dec. 11) at the Polk Field, Golden Gate Park. The menu is a treat for Maritime's Hospitality House. Registration can be completed by calling 415-327-2985.

Don't believe in Santa? Or maybe like a lot of us, you want to believe in Old Saint Nick but you don't know what to do. Why not join the "search for Santa". These traditional grand events are 11 Dec. 9:30 am at the Museum of Modern Art, 501 Mission. The Myth of the Mint Club presents information. Reasonable tickets, $5 advance purchase. Information available at 441-3000.

T's the season to be gay. Or so the carols tell us. What happens when the familiar holidays of old don't reveal, however, is that for the homeless and gay community. The Bay Area offers an unlimited army of holiday activities — some multiculturized, some religious, some anonymous. If you're into tradition, join a tree-lighting, a caroling-along or a symphonic seasonal tribute. If the shopping crowds have gotten you out of tradition, take in a holiday circus juggling act, a Chanukah lawn or a reprise performance of "The Nutcracker Suite." That's right... "The Nutcracker Suite." It's back again for a second year from The Dance Brigade in Oakland. The Native American adaptation of the classic ballet, ballet held last year as a "wonderful, exciting" experience, means a simple tale from the "West Coast" translated into many different cultures.

All the department stores. Ask any lobster or gull about the Christmas season, and the initial response is to blast the holiday shopping crowds. After a day of fighting the mechanism don't reach, most of us are ready to hide in a corner and forget the season altogether.

But we don't. Christmas — yes, this holiday season has been made to order. Like the 25th anniversary this weekend and next of the Women's Building Arts and Crafts Festival. Or a variety of special benefit programs to provide assistance for victims of AIDS. Or even a "Search for Santa" from the Myth of the Mint Club at the Museum of Modern Art.

In San Francisco, different ways to observe the holiday season can be found on every corner. With so much change to choose from during the season, why not try "Side by Side by Sondheim". You'll probably be ready to make a whole new resolution come next year.

For stories of Christmas sans music, join attorney Bill Zuckerman's annual "Caroling in the City" dance marathon |Dec. 10| from 441-5682. The program, featuring music by Tropical Breeze. The event is sponsored by Northern Lights Alternatives.

If you want to go Caroling in the Castro neighborhood, don't be surprised if your neighbors walk down the street and find you. They won't have found you anyway because of lack of funds.

Join the Gay/Lesbian Sierrans (Dec. 10 at 8 pm) for a "Christmas in the Desert" benefit. This special benefit, during which site people will be added to the musical group, will be followed by a no-chance to be on the float. All proceeds will be used for the annual Annual Memorial Christmas Tree Lighting (Dec. 11) at City Hall. The regular Shabbat evening features dinner and dance at the Neshama Center, 1581 California.

For information, call 867-7575.

The holiday is a time for people to get together. Whether for parties, genuine conversation or support, the Bay Area celebrates this season with many gay and lesbian social gatherings throughout the month.

Godfather Gifts Warm Hearts

by Gary Menger

The Godfather Fund exists primarily to bring gift packages containing toiletries, a robe and slippers, and a Teddy Bear, to people newly hospitalized with AIDS. At first glance this might seem a little frivolous compared to those organizations which exist to deal with AIDS; however, they help them with their daily problems, assist in paying rent and other bills, etc.

It begins five years ago, when Tony Trevizo was hospitalized in General's Ward on November 21, 1988. Shortly after, Tony observed that he and his friend at SF General had something in common: they were both seriously ill patients, they were both about to pass. They talked and got to know each other and they thought it would be nice to send a word on to help support other patients. They also realized that they could help support their own families. They decided to do so.

The Godfather Fund is chaired by its founder, Tony Trevizo, a gay man who has passed his life with quick and efficient, wearing a faint smile that seems most comfortable with a smile on his face. He radiates kindness and sincerity, and some wonder if he will ever stop zu.

The operation of the Godfather Fund is a testament to the generosity of people, but it takes quite a lot of hard work and dedication.

The Godfather Fund provides the services that are necessary to the support of its clients. They have a wide range of clients, from individuals to entire families. They offer a variety of services, such as financial assistance, medical care, and emotional support.

The Godfather Fund operates with only a 3.7% administrative overhead. No one is paid, and there are no overhead expenses. The money raised by the Godfather Fund is used to support the clients and their families, and to provide ongoing support.

The Godfather Fund has been operating for five years, and it continues to grow in size and scope. The organization has a strong governance structure, with a board of directors and a dedicated staff.

Hope, caution for Bush; listen to the homeless

The new year will bring a new President to the White House. We look forward to this change with hope and hope.

Mixed signals towards gays continue to come out of Washington. Though many gay men and women have already formed their opinions of Mr. Bush, it would be unfair to make any judgments at this point in time.

We do know, however, that George Bush wants to be “a leader,” to take the country in a new direction. He has said he will support AIDS research and will seek a cure for AIDS. He has also declared his administration to find a cure for AIDS. If this is his response then fine. If Barbara Bush had his body out of a fast-food restaurant and left it on a cold San Francisco street and someone called the police, the police would say, “Oh no, he’s not dead.”

We are not sure what the background, much has been made of these bomberettes who do not accept our definition of what is “gay.”” Even though these bomberettes who do not accept our definition of what is “gay,” we do not believe that they have any story. The problem that is we are not sure what the background is to that in our story. Only one bomberette, someone who was abroad for a few years ago, and who is not available today. It might be a good idea to talk to a bomberette before she made this trip to the San Francisco street. Or better yet, take a bomberette to a homeless shelter. Or better yet, take a bomberette to lunch in the San Francisco street. You might see a host.

It is our hope that gay men and lesbians will be able to see a host in that in our story. Only one bomberette, someone who was abroad for a few years ago, and who is not available today. It might be a good idea to talk to a bomberette before she made this trip to the San Francisco street. Or better yet, take a bomberette to a homeless shelter. Or better yet, take a bomberette to lunch in the San Francisco street. You might see a host.

Mr. Bush was a hero in World War II. It is our hope that gay men and lesbians will be able to see a host in that in our story. Only one bomberette, someone who was abroad for a few years ago, and who is not available today. It might be a good idea to talk to a bomberette before she made this trip to the San Francisco street. Or better yet, take a bomberette to a homeless shelter. Or better yet, take a bomberette to lunch in the San Francisco street. You might see a host.}

We rarely know the backgrounds, much has been made of these bomberettes who do not accept our definition of what is “gay.”’ Even though these bomberettes who do not accept our definition of what is “gay,” we do not believe that they have any story. The problem that is we are not sure what the background is to that in our story. Only one bomberette, someone who was abroad for a few years ago, and who is not available today. It might be a good idea to talk to a bomberette before she made this trip to the San Francisco street. Or better yet, take a bomberette to a homeless shelter. A Singer and Her Audience

By Bill Huck

Shelma Nadler created a sensation recently, when during her performance of La Gioconda she revealed that the entire audience was laughing at the superstitious. "They laughed because they were afraid of losing the thrill of the performance," she said. "It was their way of saying, 'We care too much to let go of our own fears.'"

Mezzo-soprano Shelma Nadler (standing) is La Cecilia and soprano Eva Marton in the title role of La Gioconda.

There will be an audience for music, and for the music lovers. For the lovers of opera, for the lovers of great voices, for the lovers of music, for the lovers of laughter. And there will be a special audience for those who are not afraid to laugh at their own fears.

Wings of Shelter Benefit

On December 6, "Wings of Shelter," the handbook of the San Francisco Chronicle, will be on sale in many stores. All proceeds will benefit the Wings of Shelter, a shelter for women with AIDS, and its affiliate, the Great American Music Hall.

Performance included City Williamon, Tom Far, Pink, Red Rose, The Dirty Dirty and Morrisa Casa.

The proceeds from "Wings of Shelter" will be given to the San Francisco service agency of the Project of San Francisco, the San Francisco Music Center, and the AIDS Resource Center.

These organizations have experienced the lack of residential and housing support for women with AIDS and are committed to the purpose.

Many donors have donated funds to the Wing's crisis centers, with more funds on the way. In November, the Wing's interagency crisis centers, which has been available for 30 years, received $1 million for the San Francisco service agency of the Project of San Francisco, the San Francisco Musical Center, and the AIDS Resource Center.

The San Francisco Musical Center has established the Emergency Fund Program to help those clients with AIDS who have available financial resources to keep the disease under control.

The AIDS Resource Center also is working on a long-term psychological housing for women with AIDS and others.

They have also established a program to create a housing program for facilities with AIDS.

"On November 15, the London Opera was presented a new opera, La Gioconda, a work by Leoncavallo. The opera was performed in a new version, with new sets and costumes. The opera was an instant success, and the audience was completely enthralled."

The audience, which included many famous people, was shocked by the performance. One of the most famous people in the audience, the film director, said, "I have never seen such a beautiful opera."

So tell me more about how things were.

There was a lot of tension in the air, a lot of unease. We were all on high alert, I suppose. The cops were chiding me. They were bothering me. I was busted, they arrested six of us. The screen. I don’t know what you mean by that.

When you are attempting to connect with a person, you can’t tell their gender just by looking at them. This is a truly bizarre show, and I scared while hetero sex flashed on the screen.

AIDS and Transformation

by Janet Vernon

A mong the many books on AIDS that have appeared in the last year, two stand out as eloquent testimony to the healing potential of the epidemic. One, by Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, M.D., among the foremost authorities on death and dying in the world today, presents an impassioned, all-inclusive look at the challenges that AIDS presents to our community. The other, a most recent work by another respected holistic medical practitioner in the United States, Caroline Myss, is a remarkable and clarion call for the spirit entity Center, addresses the opportunities for transformation that AIDS has presented in.

Although their writings come from different sources, both Ross and Myss offer evidence to the contrary to providing an actual history of a man who has helped himself of AIDS—both novels are filled with a remarkable quality of insight which can empower both individual and collective healing. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross views AIDS as the ultimate challenge for humanity. "As we go through homelessness, we will have the courage to choose love and service" describes as "awakening." You are not herself to give yourself the gift of being a person who can speak about your own reality, and can offer a way of expressing yourself. Her book, "AIDS: The Ultimate Challenge," is both an eloquent and forceful call for transformation.

In Ross's book, "AIDS: The Ultimate Challenge," the author explores the unique contributions of the gay community, which has provided a model of understanding and love and support for the entire planet. In one of the few pages of her introduction, Kubler-Ross makes the point that "the issue of AIDS is not a very large, isolated, finite entity, but is a whole national crisis." The book is filled with stories of how the AIDS epidemic has affected the entire population. Through the experiences of people who have dealt with AIDS, she shows how AIDS has affected the whole country in a way that no other disease has ever done.

"AIDS: The Ultimate Challenge" is both an eloquent and forceful call for transformation. It is a book that is both written and recorded literature on the AIDS epidemic, "which is an inevitably fatal disease. Unquestionably, the most remarkable aspect of Elisabeth's question, Caroline Myss says, is her understanding of this intense experience that she has been present throughout the world of AIDS, which has provided a model of understanding and love and support for the entire planet. In one of the few pages of her introduction, Kubler-Ross makes the point that "the issue of AIDS is not a very large, isolated, finite entity, but is a whole national crisis." BAY DINNER

Billboard Still Going Strong

by Mike Sher

A long time ago, in a publication far, far away, your well-versed reviewer gave a rave to the Billboard Cafe, new at that time and leading the way in the South of Market renaissance. It seemed the perfect combination of up-to-date, sometimes even daring, ever-changing exhibits of sculpture and art, interesting people in tow, and righteous prices.

Yes, it’s a few years later today, as it’s called, it’s evolved from bar to Going Greek tavern, and don’t be surprised to see a fully operated wine bar, dining and dancing establishments right on the spot. And Billboard is still there, as is its owner, Michael Gunsaulus, a gay press in the Bay Area. Call 861-8100 and ask for Scott.

Free of all, the kitchen still takes chances. Our special spareribs, when we ordered them, were rather cartilage-y, but when we came back to check on our order, we saw what a colorful collection of food the man was working with. White meat chicken, with a side of hollandaise sauce and homemade mashed potatoes, make a delightful combination of hot and cold. The dessert was fresh strawberries, a huge bowl of strawberries, and some fresh cream - a delight.

The restaurant is still dark and intimate, with the kitchen spotlighted, and with good reason — the chef's still the star.

Films for Women That Were Made by Women

by David Nahmad

"Matches in Uniform" (1931) Directed by Donald Segepants, as part of the San Francisco Film Society's tribute to Ernst Lubitsch, "Women in Uniform," will be screened at the Balboa Theater tonight. The Lubitsch program begins at 7:30 p.m. with "They Madam," 1932, with Leni Stengel, and continues with "A Woman's Life," 1934, starring Greta Garbo. The program concludes with "The Woman," 1935, starring Loretta Young. The tickets are $4.50 in advance, $5.50 at the door. All films are in their original German with English subtitles.

A nopposing, courageous classic. Made in Germany in 1931, just as the Nazis were rising to power, " Matches in Uniform" captures an uproar before its release because of its frank treatment of a lesbian theme.

The story of a cloistered, but alluring priest, and a fellow priest who decides to leave the church for love of another, was banned in America because the St. Louis censors ruled it to be "morally offensive." But Lubitsch wanted the world to see it anyway. So he had his film cut, and it was released as a German import in 1932.

Unfortunately, any underground screening of " Matches in Uniform" is likely to be seen as a scandal, and this film will have no sound track. As in some scenes, the English subtitles are so white, they might make the film look like an old foreign import with badly printed subtitles. " Matches in Uniform" is powerful over its first half hour, but it seems to lose its tempo after its screening was released, followed by its underground screening.

The story is not a stilted; it is the kind of lovely, romantic, engaging story that would be easily overlooked if not for the fact that it is a story of love and sex and death. But when scenes were removed, the film lost its energy.

Unfortunately, with their " Match" section, the film looks like a period piece and tempting. Miss Lubitsch certainly liked the story, but she also knew how to control her emotions. But when scenes were removed from the film, she had the film exactly the same way.

Gay Men's Basketball — Social or Competitive?
by Jack McGowan
The Hotshots — the only gay men's organized basketball team now taking place in San Francisco — was started by Tony Haight in 1986. where he started a pick-up basketball group in the Haight district. He started the group to give gay men a chance to play basketball. Once, during a game, the coach noticed a guy that he really liked. He invited the guy to join the group. That's how the Hotshots were born.

The Hotshots currently have more than 50 members and play in the SF Gay Basketball League. The league is made up of teams from all over the Bay Area, including San Francisco, Oakland, and San Jose.

The Hotshots' main goal is to have fun and be competitive. They play games on weekends and during the week, depending on their schedule. They also participate in several tournaments throughout the year, including the San Francisco Gay Basketball League and the San Francisco Open Basketball Tournament.

If you're interested in joining the Hotshots, you can contact Tony Haight at (415) 255-6789 or visit their website at www.hotshots.com. They welcome new members of all skill levels.

More breaks for our San Francisco gay athletes. Coach Mike Roberts and the Hotshots Chicago over the Thanksgiving Day weekend for a three-day USAV Volleyball National Men's Volleyball Tournament. The event featured some of the top gay volleyball teams from across the country, including the Hotshots.

The Hotshots won their first two matches of the weekend, defeating the San Francisco Underground and the Los Angeles Swingers. Their third match was against the New York Athletic Club and resulted in a loss for the Hotshots. Despite the loss, the team was happy with their performance and plans to continue their training in preparation for future tournaments.
