HILTON is a young man that Le Salon recently photographed on a beach in the Virgin Islands. He is an Aquarian who inconsistently has a warm interest in the welfare of others and a certain abandon about his personal life. Although Hilton's language is Spanish he does not seem to have much difficulty communicating with English-speaking tourists.

These photographs are a preview of the full set which will soon be available in a Le Salon magazine.

MIDNIGHT - A FINAL VISIT BEFORE SLEEP
TIME FOR READING

David Clayton was raised in Sacramento, the state capital, and later received his law degree from the University of California. He served two years in the Army. While in private practice in Sacramento, he met Earl "Rick" Stokes. The two of them lived with David's family until Rick went to law school at U.C. Davis. David later moved to San Francisco where he has moved up within the Central office of Neighborhood Legal Assistance to become its Director. NLA is a federally financed project that gives free legal assistance to the poor. He also serves as a director of Huckleberry House, a home for run-aways, and as Chairman of the Board of Hospitality House, a center for Tenderloin youth. David is a former Legal Chairman of The Society for Individual Rights (S.I.R.) and has served on the S.I.R. organization's Board of Directors. He is also a Director of the San Francisco Mental Health Association where he was one of those instrumental in getting a statement from that group to the effect that homosexuals are not "sick," that they lead productive lives. (July, 1971, Vector).

Rick Stokes was raised in Oklahoma on a farm where he spent the first 25 years of his life. While David comes from a family of 12, Rick's family consisted of four. Much of Rick's early life was spent with a nearby family and with a young boy 12, whom he met when he was 10. This love affair was to last ten years and took Rick up to the time that he entered the Army. Upon returning he became an instructor for Arthur Murray Dance Studios. He married "because in the atmosphere I was in every young man grew up to get married." Four years and two children later, Rick divorced his wife and moved to Sacramento, California where he had a position waiting for him with a dance studio. Eleven months later, "My search for a companion came to an end. I found David Clayton." Rick and David lived within David's family home. Part of this time Rick was ill with ulcers and his physical problem became a concern of the Clayton family as Rick was accepted as a member of the family. Together, David and Rick formed a homosexual rights group in Sacramento called The Association for Responsible Citizenship (ARC). . . Rick later entered law school at U.C.-Davis and "home" became San Francisco because David had moved there. After Rick taught two years in the public schools, he went for a law degree and he is now a practicing attorney in San Francisco. He has been most active in the homosexual rights movement and served as President of the Council on Religion and the Homosexual. Rick is a Director of the Family Service Agency as a homosexual and was instrumental in having that group reorganize homosexual couples as part of their program (April, 1971, Vector). He is presently a recognized spokesman for homosexual rights and meets a number of speaking assignments each month. Recently Rick and David appeared on the local NBC-TV outlet as attorneys and homosexual lovers.

By Larry Mullen

The warm and friendly colors of the Stokes-Clayton household reflect upon the warmth and cordiality of its inhabitants. Rick Stokes and David Clayton are two successful San Francisco attorneys who have lived together as companions and lovers for over ten years. Their home is a comfortable blending of modern convenience with "old world" decor. Both men are unpretentious, busy, and efficient as they lead their personal, business, and community service lives. When you formed the ARC organization. There were gay social groups but they wanted a group that would openly make the people in Sacramento aware that homosexuals existed and that they should have equal rights. They held seminars and made public appearances. ARC met in the Methodist church where David and Rick were active.

Rick entered the conversation to say that, "times are changing fast. Newspapers are now using words such as "gay" instead of "pervert." Ten years ago a gay joke on television was treated as a put-down on gay people. Today, such jokes indicate that a gay lifestyle may be 'different' but that it is acceptable. Much of this comes about because of the publicity ask them for an opportunity to talk with them they both have to first consult their schedule calendars for the week. . . In September, 1971, Vector presented a talk with Bob Chaplaine and Rick Winter, two instructors with the American Conservatory Theater (ACT). David and Rick are also lovers but they lead much different lives than our ACT friends, as we shall discover.

David initiated our conversation by saying that he has never had a sexual experience with a woman nor has he ever "dated girls." Of his early sexual attitude toward himself, he says "I was a happy child and a homosexual. It never bothered me. I was the youngest of ten children and I was treated like an adult early in life. My sexual experiences were very limited." . . . When we asked David how he "analyzed" the "cause" for his homosexuality he said, "The only reason to analyze why something came to be is to determine why the condition was unhappy or how one can change that condition. I was happy and comfortable with my sexual orientation. Do beautiful people sit around and talk about how they came to be so beautiful? . . . People who want to study homosexuality appear to do so because they want to work out a course of prevention, thus they must determine the 'cause' of it. Thus we have the theories of 'possessive mothers' and 'possessive fathers'."

While in Sacramento, Rick and David

that comes from confrontations makes the public aware that homosexuals exist and that they are often unjustly treated. Homosexuals now exert themselves legally, on the streets, and politically."

We asked both gentlemen what they thought the effect was of the recent militant street demonstrations by the young gay militants. David stressed, "It is important that we have let many people know that there are a substantial number of people who are gay and that they are not ashamed or sick and who are interested in improving their place in society." . . . Rick added, "It is important that the street demonstrations have won support for gay liberation from Third World people. There are times when I, as a militant homosexual, feel that some gay militants are in danger of dissipating their strength by taking up other causes when, after all, the number one battle is homosexual civil rights. However, we can not lose sight of the fact that homosexual civil rights is wrapped up in the struggle for the rights of everyone."

Is the real oppressor, capitalism? David's response was quick; "I don't think you have to be a Marxist to be a true gay revolutionary. However, I favor a great deal more socialization than we have now. A basic industry that exploits our natural resources should not be allowed to do so for profit. Just being born in this country, should entitle everyone to certain basic services. Everyone should be adequately nourished, have good medical care and inexpensive legal services."

Rick states that the gay militant is right when he recognizes the government as the repressor . . . "It is the government that has excluded us from civil service, kicked us out of the military, publicly harassed and humiliated us and denied us general employment by not giving us equal protection."

In discussing their life together, Rick and David emphasize that they frequently reach decisions jointly. They decide what is best for one another and how such-and-such action would most help one of them or both of them to better serve the community. It was such decision-making that resulted in Rick's decision to accept a scholarship to study for one year in Spain, a few years ago. They both felt that it would broaden Rick's experience and thus make him a more creative person.

Rick has known the fear of economic reprisal. While David was accepted as an attorney and up-front homosexual, Rick was still studying at U.C.-Davis. While at Davis, Rick came out openly as a homosexual, speaking on the subject and from personal experience at every opportunity. He says, "I felt that I had an obligation to do so although I was well aware that as a result there was a possibility that I would not be permitted to finish law school and not be admitted to the Bar." Rick did get his law degree and continues to speak openly.

In the course of our conversation, Rick inserted this comment: "I feel that everything that I am and can be has come solely because of David. I had trouble at school and quit with low grades before I met David. It was the result of living in a loving relationship, being needed and loved and loving and being needed in return, that I went back to school and graduated in the top 10% of my class. The capability was there but it may have never been realized if it hadn't been for our relationship." . . . David added the comment, "I depend on Rick for so many things in my life, for mutual love and moral support." He jokes, "Besides it might take me ten years to break somebody else in." . . . Both commented that they think alike much of the time and even sometimes say the same things at the same time.

David reiterates that it is important that homosexuals use every opportunity to speak to reporters or newscasters even though it might result in a possible put-down. Rick agrees: "You never know how the news media will treat you but you must take that chance." . . . They were both pleased with the recent NBC-TV coverage of their life at home together. It was one time, they stated, when it came out well. David says, "this time, I liked seeing myself on television."

Both agree that part of the negative reaction to the young, gay militants is because they are young and militant, not because they are gay. The straight, middle-class person doesn't like long hair and the absence of a freshly cleaned and pressed suit. David says, "It is also logical that homosexuals who are still in the closet feel threatened by those who are parading in the streets and who are saying, 'Why don't you come out of your closet?' As the young militant tries to change the social structure he scares the closeted ones because this person knows no other way to live." . . . Rick says that there is one obvious advantage to the street militancy because it "stirs people up and they then turn to the more conservative elements in the gay community to come and speak to them. They are not ready to deal with the street people and someone who looks more like him is more acceptable. The answer to our problem is always the same; educating the public." . . . David adds, "We are working toward the day when nobody will have to be in the closet. We are not in that position yet, however."

David is leaving his position with Neighborhood Legal Assistance and he and Rick will practice law from the same office. Both were pleased that NLA was now concerned about seeking an attorney to work in this office that is openly a homosexual so that he might better serve the homosexual clients.

In their practices, both agree that they serve as advisors and counselors in other areas than law when young people come to them for help. David states that he has seen young men weep in his office upon discovering that there are homosexuals like himself and that they are capable of being educated, responsible and yet out-spoken. Rick and David both wish that more homosexuals who are "closeted away" would reach out to the younger homosexuals and in some way help them.

Rick Stokes and David Clayton are living examples of how two men can live together as productive, proud homosexuals. Vector wishes to thank them for their cooperation.

Urbi et Orbi

by Martin F. Stow

In any community the size of the San Francisco homophile, fragmentation is a reality. When these fragments represent a personal diversity of life style (i.e. drag or swag) or in sexual preference (i.e. oral or anal), the variety contributes towards a more highly spiced life. However, when this diversity is manifested in politics it can lead to serious disunity, if we do not take the time and trouble to analyze our differences of opinion. The recent election in San Francisco affords us a good opportunity to better know ourselves.

Officially, S.I.R. and the community generally endorsed three candidates, Dianne Feinstein for Mayor, Bob Mendelsohn for Supervisor and Dick Hongisto for Sheriff. S.I.R. Political Chairman, Jim Foster, warned the S.I.R. membership that the unprecedented switch from recommending all candidates willing to support homophile causes and issues to the narrower endorsement of a selected few would cause difficulty later on in our attempt to initiate and achieve homophile goals. In the hysteria of the hour the warning went unheeded and, in the case of the supervisorial race, we achieved nothing. The benefit derived from the large Mendelsohn vote will not offset the reservation of those elected supervisors who were not "endorsed." We knew that others would win and our full endorsement of them would have allowed us to claim a full part in their victories.

This last minute switch in the rules of the game caused dissension which a minority have voiced clearly and a larger portion of the community feel strongly. In two instances this dissension was not acted upon throughout the community, in the cases of Mendelsohn and Hongisto. One could vote for Mendelsohn and still exercise independent choice for other Supervisors. The City split its vote among Hongisto's antagonists so that the homosexual vote was most significant in the election of Sheriff. The straight majority fragmented sufficiently to allow the cohesive minorities to elect the best man, rather than the man most favorable to the power structure.

The analysis of fragmentation is best studied in the defeat of mayoral candidate Feinstein. If the lesson in this defeat is not understood by the homosexual community we are in line for further defeats. The reaction among Mrs. Feinstein's gay supporters is such as to suggest that the lesson will be difficult to learn. It is in this reaction that we can find some answers for the division of mayoral votes within the gay community. And, let us not fool ourselves, those mayoral votes were divided.

Why is it that we could perceive so clearly the strength for homosexual unity in Mendelsohn and Hongisto yet be so oblivious to the disunity in the "official" support of Mrs. Feinstein? One would think that male homosexuals would be subjectively emotional about male candidates and objectively intellectual about female candidates. Males are supposed to "turn us on" so that we don't think rationally, however in this election it was the female over whom we became emotionally divided. A significant proportion of the homosexual community does not trust Mrs. Feinstein. While we may be able to explain our trust or distrust intellectually in terms, respectively, of her support of pro-homosexual legislation or her over-zealous concern with pornography and obscenity to the detriment of other more important problems, the male homosexual attitude toward Mrs. Feinstein is not based solely upon political factors. There are a good many psychological functions operating as well.

Mrs. Feinstein, a most feminine female, was not warmly embraced to the collective bosom of the lesbian community. Evidently they approached her qualifications with the same objectivity that we approached the male candidates qualifications. Mrs. Feinstein was more than a candidate for those who supported her. And whatever this quality was it created the split in the homosexual community. What was seen as positive for one group was viewed as negative by another. The result was that the community lost sight of its cause and became divided over a candidate. This division is obscured by the fact that the visual and verbal segment of the gay community supported Feinstein while the anti-Feinstein forces are found within the unknown gay community. Some will argue that the latter are unimportant, however, the iceberg model serves us well here. Within the total membership of S.I.R. perhaps twenty-five percent are visually and verbally active. Within the total homosexual community it would be generous to estimate that thirty percent are above the water line; at least sixty percent of the estimated 90,000 gay community eligibles are hidden in the murky depths, but, EACH HAS A VOTE!

Continued unity in the homosexual community requires that we continue to support causes, (i.e. mutual sexual consent bills, right to work bills, homosexual representation in public agencies, etc.) which are of general concern to the community, through our support of a coalition of candidates sympathetic and enthusiastic toward gay political goals. The attempt to personify these goals in a candidate or public official can only lead to disunity.

Letters to the Editor

"One should keep sex on a higher plain than just the sex act"

Mr. Mendenhall,

We found one shortcoming in your editorial reply to the letter by Tip Hillan in your September issue. You say, "Socialism may well be our next form of government in this country but we believe in trying to deal with reality." The implication is, of course, that socialism and socialist parties like the Socialist Workers Party somehow do not relate to reality... Dealing with reality for us means fighting to change reality.

David Thorstad
The Militant

Sir,

I saw my first copy of Vector in the Spring of '66. Then and now just the fact of its existence is important.

S.I.R. has grown. Automatically, therefore, Vector has had to expand. You, the present editor have met that commitment. Yet it appears to me that Vector says less about S.I.R. than ever before while S.I.R. is doing more than ever before. It is true that Vector must appear to a larger, national audience but I believe it to be true that that which S.I.R. is doing is (or at least should be) of national interest.

Thank you,
Member Robert Cole

We are beginning to think that this criticism of the present editor has some justification. In attempting to be universal we may have let some of S.I.R.'s endless activities and involvements go unreported and unrecognized. Give us an opportunity in the next few months to correct this.

Dear Editor:

Re: Don Slater's article on Metropolitan Community Church.

Mr. Slater's opinions regarding MCC are of interest to me because he appears to base most of his arguments on sheer emotion. One searches his essay for signs of objective evidence or logic. None can be found. He simply rages.

His declaration that the homophile movement has declined in vitality since MCC arrived on the scene is utterly lacking in foundation. During the past two or three years, S.I.R., for example, has boomed in membership. Gay liberation groups have mushroomed across the country. Several legal suits are before the courts. Where is the so-called decline? Perhaps the deterioration has taken place within Mr. Slater's organization in Los Angeles. I suspect a classic case of sour grapes.

One problem which racks the movement is individuals who waste time and energy attacking other segments of the gay community. Mr. Slater should realize that such a negative approach can only weaken us further. Perhaps he would do well to remember the Biblical passage, "Judge not that ye may be judged."

MCC does not judge the work of other groups but attempts to build on their foundations. We have been able to reach many people who are not encountered in any other gay setting.

Let us remember that straights draw their ammunition from Biblical passages that have been distorted. All anti-gay legislation is based on twisted Christianity. It is here that a major portion of the battle must be fought and won. When people realize that Christ was not anti-Gay, marked progress will result. He said, "Take up your cross and follow me." He added no footnotes to that simple plea.

Cordially,
Frank J. Howell
Public Relations Committee
MCC-Oakland

Meanwhile, in next month's Vector we will present an alternative approach to Christianity in an article on The Homosexual as a Humanist.

Dear George,

My comments which you printed on the unwholesome affect of gay churches on the general welfare of homosexuals were made some time ago. The wordy language reflects my preliminary thinking on the matter. But the essence of my objections to a ghetto institution such as a gay church "for homosexuals" is there for those of your readers who may have troubled to find it.

However obscure my point, I will not take the blame for making the observation: "The movement has lost the creativity of its early philosophy which was: we don't want what heterosexuals have; heterosexuals should not want what we have." My comment on the whole of organized religion was over the marriages and sex lives of heterosexuals was: "heterosexuals should not have what they have."

Keep up the good work.

Cordially,

Don Slater

Sorry, our typewriter makes mistakes.

Editor, Vector,

We wish to thank you for the smashing article that you did on us in the September, Vector ("Bob and Rick"). The response has been over-whelming; many people have actually talked to us on the streets to find out if they were the ones in the article. Several of our straight friends are sending small contributions to S.I.R. to show their appreciation.

Here is something you might be interested in: I recently applied for credit at a bank and was told, "we are not sure we can give credit to a single man. It has been our experience that —" It smelled like a stacked deck to me to imply that single men are not reliable and that one needs a wife and a child in order to run ones self into debt. I would appreciate hearing from your readers about this. I asked the clerk if he thought homosexuals were a bad risk and he just blustered and foamed.

One word to all of the Gays and Straights in San Francisco: We have the greatest, one of the most liberal (and it can be more so) and most beautiful places in the country. Feel grateful and happy every day you are here and not back East, which we visited this summer. We are truly happy to be back here at work with ACT and loving our new flat and adopted city.

shame. We will have lived our lives without dignity. Are we, like the straight man, to go to church and praise his God and then condemn others that were made with the same hands?

We must embrace our black brothers and sisters. We can and will receive the same embrace back if we are sincere.

We must remember that our black friends have a double load to carry. They are condemned for being "queer" as well as their race. We can learn something from our black friends: We have a long way to go because it is legal to be black but look at the oppression that our black friends experience. Let us think about this.

Editor, Vector,

As far as getting involved in other issues is concerned, we feel that he who wants liberty and justice for himself but is indifferent or hostile to the struggles of others to be free is at best lacking in integrity and at worst a menace to society. However, we also feel that for a gay organization to endorse a basic economic program (capitalism vs. socialism) would be divisive and detrimental to that group.

We do hope to see more people from all walks of life support the legitimate aspirations of all people everywhere.

Editor, Vector

The professionalism and quality writing in the articles you print is very much appreciated.

Let me comment on two things. First, Dr. Paul Roberts' articles are fantastic. At last we have an article of a religious nature (October issue) where there are facts and documentation, rather than merely some one man's ideas or what "the Church says." Listen, keep printing Dr. Paul Roberts! (Did you know that the clergy is the profession with the highest rate of homosexual tendencies, according to one psychology book I read? Religion is one of the chief factors in the oppressive mental conflicts that trouble some homosexuals. And many of us do enjoy following this aspect in Vector.)

Second, I know I can't be the only person who really gets angry upon reading accounts such as "Victim Bacigalupi" (page 11, October). If anything motivates me to get up and do something, that does. There must be thousands of us whose blood boils over today's "justice." BUT WHAT CAN WE DO? Get practical; what can we do? One, we can send money. Two, we can what? Write to persons in high places; Who, then? To say what? Send gift subscriptions of Vector to politicians? No, you do that, I presume. I guess there's not much we can do, or you'd be telling us. But if you do think of anything — anything I can do to help, besides financially — let me know.

Even still, regardless of the injustice of the police, I think all persons should remember if they're going to walk up to a stranger and start playing with his penis in a public place, they should full-well know they are taking chances. I will never be arrested for having sex in the park, because I am not willing to pay the high cost (not willing to gamble with the odds). Apparently, Bacigalupi was willing to pay the high cost (willing to gamble with the odds), for having sex with a stranger in a public park.

The police action is unforgivable and grossly unjust. That's what gets me angry. Very angry. But just because it is unjust does not mean we can pretend it does not exist! Those who ignore the possibility may get zapped but good! (If it was announced that all the poisonous snakes in the zoo got loose and were roaming around in Dolores Park, I would not stroll there as usual, just because it really wasn't fair for the snakes to be there in the first place. Better, that I would help see that the snakes were rounded up first, rather than stroll there as usual.) Everybody knows cops like to practice their cruelty in the park.

Editor, Vector,

I am a member of S.I.R. and I had read about the Senior Citizen Lunch that S.I.R. gives each Wednesday but like others I just took it for granted and I let other people worry about it. One day recently I talked with your Public Relations man, John Callahan, who said that I should come down and see for myself on Wednesday afternoon so I bought fifty candy bars for the luncheon people and came down.

I watched many old, retired people really and truly enjoy themselves. First of all they saw a movie, then they had a good meal that even had a dessert that was fruit salad topped with whipped cream. Then there was Bingo and people ate the candy bars I had brought.

I now have even more respect for the people who work so hard down at S.I.R., including those who make the lunches and arrange these programs. It brings a little happiness into the lives of some lonely people.

For every good movement there must be some responsible people and they are down at S.I.R. Center. They deserve a great deal of Thanks from us all. We should all support the S.I.R. lunches and everything else that they do to help people. Why don't you send in a contribution today?

Dick Hongisto

"I feel I lost because I started too late, had a non-professional campaign and pragmatic opponents. Those things I can accept. But I think I lost the most votes because I am a woman. And that tells me I've got lots and lots of work ahead."

Discouraged but not defeated morally, Dianne Feinstein began to pick up the pieces this month after being defeated by Mayor Joseph Alioto. The mayor was re-elected with less than 38% of the vote due to divided loyalties. The real victor, as far as the gay community was concerned, was the gay community itself. Never, in the history of the United States, had the homosexual been openly recognized as a major political force in a city. This has now been accomplished due to the efforts of The Society for Individual Rights, the Ad Hoc Gay Citizens Committee, the B.A.R. publication and Vector. Behind the scenes, S.I.R.'s Jim Foster and the Ad Hoc group's Bill Beardemphl, former S.I.R. President, were significant political forces recognized by the candidates.

The gay community endorsed Dianne Feinstein for Mayor, Robert Mendelsohn for Supervisor and Richard "Dick" Hongisto for Sheriff. Mrs. Feinstein was defeated but remains a significant force as a member of the Board of Supervisors. Supervisor Mendelsohn came within a hair of receiving the most votes, which would have entitled him to be President of the Board... which was what the gay community had hoped for. Dick Hongisto, running with a minimum of money and a coalition of minority groups, was the most surprising victor as he defeated a 15-year-veteran sheriff, Mathew Carberry, a former narcotics chief, Mathew O'Conner and a Vice Squad officer, William Bigarani. The election of Hongisto was especially significant because among the candidates, there was more unity in the gay community behind him than any of the others.

Some tension was created early in the campaign when the S.I.R. membership reversed its policy of previous years and endorsed candidates instead of just giving them "stamps of approval." Also, in previous years, the "stamps of approval" were given to almost all candidates who appeared at S.I.R.'s famed annual Candidates Night but this year the membership was more selective. It only gave three "endorsements" and then selectively gave "stamps of approvals" to some others. The result was that some of those who spoke at S.I.R. and who said they were 100% for the homosexual rights program, did not get endorsements - and some were angry about it.

The homosexual vote was recognized in the community in a San Francisco Chronicle front page article (repeated in full in last month's Vector), in Time magazine and in the Wall Street Journal. The Journal article reported, just before the election: "All of the city's mayoralty candidates, appealed openly for the backing of the Society for Individual Rights a large homosexual group here. Citing a health department report that puts the city's homosexual group at 70,000 to 90,000 people, Mrs. Feinstein says she's "very pleased" with the support. There are homosexuals working in her campaign." The Los Angeles Times referred to San Francisco's "30,000 homosexual voters" as a significant factor in the election of Dick Hongisto.

While the gay Tavern Guild did not endorse candidates many of its members became active in the campaign. Feinstein-Mendelsohn-Hongisto political auctions were held in several gay bars, including Toad Hall, Kelly's, the Orpheum Circus, and The Mint. The Mint had a special auction for Hongisto alone which netted over $1,000. Including donated talents, advertisements and cash several thousand dollars were contributed to the campaign.

Credit must be given to the S.I.R. organization and its tireless political chairman, Jim Foster. His committee had registered thousands of homosexuals long before the election and it is Foster's daily political lobbying and public relations work that garnished considerable local and national publicity about "gay political power" in San Francisco. Of special interest was the Ad Hoc Gay Citizens Committee with special mention to Bob Ross, Chuck Thayer, and Bill Beardemphl. Ross conducted the auctions.

Dick Hongisto has made further headlines since his election as sheriff. The day following the election, he appeared on the local CBS-TV outlet to speak out for the rights of homosexuals "to live their lifestyle without police harassment." Later he called for a broad program of rehabilitation for prisoners, convenient night courts for citizens, reiterated his pledge to surrender $9,000 of his $27,000 salary to community groups and appointed a 27-year-old young black man as his Undersheriff. The judges were particularly adamant about Hongisto's statements. One judge said that Hongisto should not try to live up to his campaign promises because no one really expects that of public officials! As we go to press, Hongisto is "unavailable," awaiting his taking office in January. Vector will be reporting on his success.

The gay community was more united in this election than in any previous effort. S.I.R. and others learned from this massive effort and the resulting publicity and election results what they did right - and wrong. The significant factor was not who was-or-was-not-endorsed but the fact that the community at large and all of the candidates recognized the importance of the homosexual vote in San Francisco. For this we should be justly proud.

Chuck Largent Revue Stunning Top Talent

Joe Vigil's "Madness" the Sirlebrities show, had a wild 5-day run at S.I.R. Community Center in November. A cast of over 30 performed on a brilliantly conceived stage designed by Bob Paulson. Chuck Zinn and John Koszak served as co-Producers and the chorus routines were staged by Gil Lopez and Vern Becker. Peter Arden, a new musical director kept the pace going beautifully. Lenette De Lamar designed and executed the most elaborate collection of costumes in recent show-biz history... But, of course, the audience did not see the work behind the scenes but the crazy, interesting assortment of solo and review numbers assembled and directed by S.I.R.'s Joe Vigil, a brilliant talent... Several people new to S.I.R. productions were on stage entertaining the crowds as well as some perennial regulars. It was all great fun and benefited the treasury of S.I.R. so that the organization can continue its community service activities.

The Chuck Largent Revue, the highly praised musical comedy, has moved from

CHUCK LARGENT

Latex Lily's to The Mint, near Market and Duboce. The move to The Mint, which is centrally located, should prove a boom to the show, and if ever a show deserved such a boost, it is certainly this one.

This reviewer caught their show at Latex Lily's, after reading the sensational reviews they had garnered there, and my only impression was: "They are everything they have been made out to be. Stunning."

The 10:30 P.M. show on November 7, opening day-night at The Mint, was a winner from the word "Go!" They opened with an upbeat, clever "Do a Revue" (reasons why each cast member was in the show: "my lover left me, so they said: Do a Revue," etc.), and proceeded to sing and dance their way through seventeen more songs. When the finale came, and the audience was stomping and mitting for an encore, it seemed inconceivable that this had been an hour-long show. "Where did the hour fly to?" was a common reaction with the jam-packed audience.

JOE VIGIL AND SIRLEBRITIES

The group worked beautifully together, singing and doing intricate dance routines on what must be one of the smallest cabaret stages ever. Their footwork was precise and expert, their merriment contagious. Nancy, complete with knitting needles and yarn, was a delicious Lizzie Borden, as the cast combined her trial with a good old down-South hoe-down; Faye made a wickedly satirical Tonya Conway, Vegas superstar. Every cast member was impressive in their solo turns and in ensemble. With a minimum of props (a few flashlights, a stool), with very slight variations in costuming, they achieved more variety, displayed more versatility than most shows do with a large expense account.

My only suggestion would be for the cast to expand, broaden their repertoire: Look into the songs of Jacques Brel, the Beatles, Jimmy Webb, some of the Jesus Christ Superstar numbers, the songs of Now. So far they have excelled in production numbers and show tunes; certainly, as talented as they are, they should not limit themselves to these. In the meantime, I suggest, do not walk, but sprint (or put on your roller skates) and make it to The Mint. Catch Faye, Nancy, Grady Clark, John Reynolds, Oscar, Chuck Waltz, John Deere and pianists Denis Moreen and Hazel McGuinnis in Chuck Largent's dazzling display of vocal fireworks. It is an experience.

THE U.S. MARINES FEAR OF HOMOSEXUALITY

recalls being forced into a small shower with five other nude recruits. They were forced to lie on top of each other on their backs. This was thought to be very "un-masculine" and homosexual, thus degrading... Others recall being called "girls" by training officers because you are a "girl" until you are a Man (Marine). The Marine posters, a likely subject for Freudian analysis, state: "The Marines Make Men" and "Ask A Marine".

It is tragic and ironic that this "Be a Man!" program works against the Marine in actual combat and results in additional deaths and the dehumanization of the men. Trans-action explains the frustration of the Marine when he arrives in Viet Nam, where his Super Man concept is shattered by reality. He brings with him the dehumanization of the American society which says that a man can not be masculine and also be sensitive and considerate. He also brings with him the "I Am All Man" mentality of the Marine training camp.

By Larry Mullen
Many homosexuals say that, through experience and legend, that U.S. Marines like to get screwed; that this branch of the service attracts young men who are not too sure of their masculinity and who feel the need to "be butch", even if it must be learned in a Marine boot camp. There can be no doubt that the training of the Marine recruit is an extreme sado-masochistic exercise that at times competes with the techniques of the Marquis DeSade... but that is another story for we are concerned here with how this Super Masculine training has resulted in unnecessary death and mental suffering in Viet Nam. Trans-action, the sociological magazine, has released a study of 60 young marine veterans and it's writer, Charles J. Levy reveals the frightening consequences of Marine training.

Levy concludes that homosexuality is a very big subject and a point of ridicule in the Marine Corps. Boot camp recruits are called "faggots" as they are not yet fully Marines (synonymous with "men"). The recruit soon learns how to walk "like a man". Being "butch" becomes a daily necessity, from dawn to dusk. The fear of being "unmasculine" or non-aggressive predominates and is possibly more important than learning how to defend one's life.

The sadistic treatment of recruits is "necessary to teach them how to protect their lives" but the result is that even buddies become suspect. One veteran cause to do otherwise would be non-aggressive, sissy-like... homosexual. The Marine has learned in boot camp that to "be a man" you have to be the aggressor.

Another disappointment to the Marine is that the Vietnamese are not what they expected: "They don't act like an enemy. They sometimes are women. More often than not they wear regular clothes instead of uniforms, they are smaller than expected and worse than these, they smile all the time and appear to be passive." This apparent passivity bothers the Marines.

In hearing about customs of the Vietnamese, Marines learn in boot camp that the men touch one another affectionately. One Marine explained that he was well aware of the custom but, "of course, most of us believe that they are homosexuals." This so disturbs the Marines that some feel justified in their cruelty. One Marine relates this story:

I had been in Viet Nam about a year. We were going back to a regiment in Danang. We pulled the truck over and the ARVN engineer stopped us at a roadblock. And they bore you to death. They make you sick. They're trying to be military. So they've got this roadblock. And they stopped the truck. And the driver is saying, "get out of our way, you slopes." And they come out and they said, "We have a wounded veteran." We said, "So what?" They said, "He doesn't have one of his legs. Could you give him a ride up to the hospital?" So the guys are saying, "Let him hop." I was in charge of the detail so I said, "Let him on." I was in the back of the truck... So he comes over on his crutches. I said, "Throw your crutches up." So he passed up his crutches. And then I grabbed him under the arms and pick him up and let him in the seat. The little slope then grabbed me by the leg. And I had been in the country long enough to know that most of them are queer. They hold hands and stuff like that. And this sort of irks most marines and soldiers. And

we're told that its a Vietnamese custom, when you're really friendly you just hold hands. So they end up getting beat bloody. The guy grabbed my leg, anyway, so I got mad. I wasn't in a good mood anyway so I whacked him. Then my buddies grabbed his crutches. And I said, "Let's go" and we took off. We threw his crutches in the rice paddy, one in one place and another about 150 yards away. The guy was screaming and crying and begging us. "Out you go," I shouted and out he went. We really had a good laugh about the whole thing.

There are other reasons that the Vietnamese men are thought to be homosexual... The ARVN soldiers often have their wives living with them on base. This is considered a "soft life" by the Marines and the Marines (who are "hard") consider softness as a homosexual trait... ARVN "homosexuals" do not attempt to have sex with U.S. Marines. This, some believe, makes them even more "homosexual" because they feared the Marines... But the most homosexual thing the ARVN do is to not demonstrate the same gung ho aggressive fighting spirit as the Americans. This makes them "sissies".

The daily frustrations mount in Viet Nam because of the Marine preoccupation with being a Man is closely tied with being an aggressive fighter. The VC don't come out and fight so this forces the Marines to either go and get them (if they can find them) or sit around in the base, which is thought to be a passive (homosexual) condition. One Marine put it, "They fight on their own fucking terms, not ours." Meanwhile, the VC patiently wait for the Marines to do something while they plant booby traps and, "if you find a booby trap, odds are that you won't know if it is real until it blows up."

So the enemy forces the Marine to be passive, which is against his nature. The enemy is "queer" and the South Vietnamese ARVN are "queer" and now the waiting, frustrated Marine is acting like a "queer"... The Marine waits and scorns the ARVN soldier who "is prissy and awkward. They just laugh and look at you. They come over and rub your leg." But when the Marine goes out to be aggressive in battle it is VC who knows the Marine and the terrain.

The apparent passivity of the enemy resulted in the "search and destroy" missions because to sit back and do nothing meant failure. But the VC frequently was uncooperative because it simply went into hiding. One former Marine says, "You catch them when they want you to catch them." The Marine is always visible but the VC are the invisible, it seems. After awhile, "They hit the areas that are insecure and it gets that way because no one bothers to watch. We never think that we will be hit. Everyone gets to not caring." As another put it, "This kind of fucks up your mind a little, you know."

Some Marines, out of frustration, release the tension by killing civilians. The forced passivity of the Super Man Marine forces some of them to become dehumanized and after civilian shootings more depression sets in because they are aware that they have lost control over themselves. As one says, "You kind of go nutty. Anybody that even looks at you the wrong way you'd probably shoot. I think the American fighting man can be the most vicious ever. People don't realize this."

There are many isolated incidents of civilian killings, not always deliberate: "There's a killer team out one night. They were outside a village. This old man was taking a crap in a rice paddy. Some guy thought he was VC and killed him. After this, the villagers turned VC sympathizers. Two days later a jeep went over a mine on the edge of the village and blew up. I imagine it was the villagers."

The Marines are learning that they are relegated to passivity, in spite of their gung ho training. But it has not done much for morale. They now realize that the VC can use their knowledge of the terrain to call the shots. Thus the Marine is made to feel that he is less the Super Man than he thought he was. Adding to this problem is that individual ARVN and VC soldiers have proven to be friendly to the Marines. They are always smiling, even the VC who are out to kill Marines. It has been impossible for Marines to relate specific grievances against individual ARVN. The big battle of course, is not with the ARVN and the VC anyway. The fear of homosexuality, Trans-Action's article concludes, is more personal and threatening to the Marine than death.

Metropolitan Community Church

The growth of Metropolitan Community Church has been phenomenal. In three years it has grown from a few people who met in a private home to over 20 missions and churches across the country. Its founder and Los Angeles pastor, Rev. Troy Perry has become a national personality as a spokesman for homosexual rights.

Soon the general public will be able to read much more about Rev. Perry when his first book, "The Lord Is My Shepard - and He Knows I Am Gay" will be released in the Spring by a major publisher.

We are pleased to present the first personal conversation with Rev. Perry, who prefers to be called "Troy," who has been interviewed many times. In this informal talk, Vector ask him questions about the problems of his church, its political involvement and his personal problems as a minister.

VECTOR: How can MCC get involved politically when it is tax exempt?

PERRY: It gets involved through its pastor. I believe that the church's responsibility is to the community at large. A church should be more than just a Sunday morning worship service where the saints come in and comfort it.

We believe that we should comfort the comfortless, disturb the comforted. We really believe that. The church should be involved with the whole man and not just the "spiritual" man. We actively work to bring discrimination to a halt in all areas. The church should get out and work for changing laws that it considers unjust. If you must have laws they should be equally enforced for all of our citizens.

I have made it a point to speak out against unjust laws and I believe the whole homosexual community should be speaking out. We should never take a second seat, I tell my congregation, as "Christians" but we should be at the very forefront in fighting against the injustices that exist in our society.

VECTOR: You have marched with gay liberation groups and were active in the Sacramento demonstrations for the Brown consensual sex bill. Does your outside political involvement cause you any internal opposition with your church?

PERRY: Yes, periodically. I will not lie. A little over a year ago, in particular, we had some opposition to my outside activity.

I had gone before the Police Commission for permission to hold a parade on Hollywood Blvd. My appearance upset the commission and some members of my church. Some of these church members believe that we do detrimental service by speaking out. They say, "If we are nice and kind homosexuals and don't rock the boat then some day we will come into our own." I disagree . . . and I let my congregation know that.

As the parade approached, I announced that I was going to fast and have a prayer vigil and I announced that "I could be arrested." I didn't want to be arrested, I just wanted to have a public prayer vigil. When I was arrested on Hollywood Blvd. there were members of my church who were very upset. And then I moved my fast to the Federal Building downtown and said, "I will stay here until we have some serious dialogue with our city, county, and federal officials" there were church members who thought I was doing some serious harm to the gay community.

While I was fasting, a majority of my Board held an unauthorized meeting. They did not discuss removing me as pastor, per se, but they felt that my actions were not "Christian duties for a Christian pastor." They discussed the possibility of withholding my salary until my fast was concluded.

I was very surprised at this; I hadn't expected it from within my own organization. I had a rude awakening. I have as many "conservatives" as I do "liberals" in my congregation. So I called a meeting of the congregation after my fast because I had to know what was involved. I explained my position. I said to them "I can no longer consider MCC held in four walls of a building while we are at worship. The world is ours. . . . If you can not accept the fact that I am going to be involved politically, then give me a vote of "no confidence" and I will work within the church but not as your pastor. I will do nothing to hurt the work of MCC and I want to see the church progress, to grow." Well, the vote of confidence was voted for me and it was 122 - 11. So I felt that a good majority had said, "Yes, we understand what you are trying to do."

Troy Perry talks with Vector

VECTOR: The Committee for Sexual Law Reform is a political arm of MCC, is that correct? How does it function?

PERRY: Yes, This committee emphasizes that our sexual laws also discriminate against our straight brothers too. They don't realize it. . . . One straight couple came to me. They had been arrested because the wife had performed oral copu-lation on her husband in a Swingers Club. A vice officer was there and he tracked her down and she was fired from her job as a teacher. . . . This committee is not an official church group but it is primarily made of MCC members.

In Los Angeles, we have now formed a Social Action group within the church because we believe that the church should go on record itself in social action areas. We plan to have some direct action demonstrations under the direction of the new group.

VECTOR: We can remember a short time ago when you placed an ad in the Los Angeles Advocate about church services and only a few appeared. Now you have a church that is large and has an international reputation. But some people still think of MCC as "Troy's church" and others believe that you are somewhat over adulated. One of my friends jokingly calls you the "gay Pope." Does this present problems?

PERRY: Yes, You can have that problem, no matter what business you are in. The Kennedys with their "personality cult"; when John was President we worshiped him also like he was king. We might have even had him as a lifetime President if the constitution had permitted it.

There is that problem in Metropolitan Community Church. There are some people who worship Troy Perry more than they do God; God comes second to them. But I must say this, MCC is working because of a lot of very dedicated people. . . . I don't pastor our church in Denver, Colorado but this group is growing fast.

VECTOR: You have become a national personality and appear at meetings and conferences across the country. Do you travel a great deal?

PERRY: Yes and no. (Laughter . . . Note: the laughter here is because there has been some criticism of Rev. Perry's absences from the Los Angeles church). My congregation in Los Angeles understands that I have to travel. There are those who say I travel too much and there are those who say that I don't travel enough! (laughter). . . . Yes, I travel alot. We are opening a church in New York and San Francisco's former pastor, Howard Wells, has moved there to pastor the new church. When I am in New York, several hundred people crowd a church to hear me so we are most encouraged there.

VECTOR: I wish that those who are going to read this could hear you speaking instead, because you certainly are dynamic. However, when we attend your church in Los Angeles we are aware that there are those who might be turned on to Troy Perry and turned off by the Christian message. Can you overcome that?

PERRY: I don't apologize for my Christianity. I don't think you would want me to and I am not going to. On the other

A Night to Remember

By Bob Ross

On a crisp, clear night in October, the Hilton Hotel became the setting for the Tavern Guild's Ninth Annual Beaux Arts Ball. Many hundreds of people attended. Most were attired in the theme of the ball, "Fairy Tales." I don't know when the community has seen such fantastic costumes. It would be impossible to describe them all. The winners were for best theme: Jackson's bar, who came as the characters from the Wizard of Oz; best group, "King Midas and His Court," best pair, J. J. Van Dyck and friend as

SUPERVISOR GONZALES

"Mirror, Mirror On the Wall," best male, "The Emperor of the Nightengales" and the best female, David of S.I.R. as "The Snow Queen."

The costumes were judged by Richard Hongisto (Sheriff-elect) and his charming wife Sandy, Supervisor Bob Gonzales and his pretty date Maria Elena, and Mr. & Mrs. Fred Goerner (she's columnist Merla Zellerbach). All judges agreed that it was a very difficult job indeed to pick the winners. I might also add that they had a very enjoyable evening as well. Mrs. Dianne Feinstein stopped by and was very warmly received. The Mayor had accepted, and due to some altercation on the street outside of the hotel, did not come in.

The Ball was by far the best affair the Tavern Guild has ever presented. The Guild, and especially its Ball Committee headed by Sandy Sanchez, is to be commended.

It would indeed be remiss for me not to mention the special benefit for S.I.R., presented by Empress candidate Lorelei, at S.I.R. Center. Hosting and emceeing this affair was Lori Shannon, who was at his very best this evening. The Chuck Largent Revue entertained us with their rendition of "On a Wonderful Day Like Today" and "Here's To Us." This was followed by Lori singing "The Lady Is A Camp." Then Pat monclaire gave his version of "Thoroughly Modern Millie." This was backed by David Kelsey at the grand piano. This entertainer is truly a gifted musician and a talented comedian as well. Next was the incomparable Gary Sneider and his hysterical reverse strip. Have you ever seen a funnier strip that that done by Busty O'Shea? Something else. Another guest was the fabulous Lucian of Finocchio fame. Terry Taylor then gave us his famous Totie Fields routine. Could we have a show without Michelle? Of course not. His ad-libbing is still the best in town and we hear, as we go to press, that Michelle is doing "Ready or Not It's Me Again" for a S.I.R. benefit (two performances) in December. But more about the Lorelei review: Vicki Marlane's Lillian Russell medley was quite a show stopper. We were then treated to the fine singing voice of John Carlyle and an excellent version of the "Impossible Dream." The first half of the evening ended with the Chuck Largent Revue back with "City of Angels" and the quintette from "West Side Story." This would be a very difficult act to follow.

During the intermission, champagne was served to the audience by Laura and her Champagne Girls.

The second half opened with quite a show stopper, the 181 Club's "Showcase '71" and their fantastic trip with "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue." "The Show" from *P.S. was on stage with their "The Vamps," Allan Lloyd, Jae Stevens and Jimmie Little. They are really funny people. J.J. Van Dycke (sans dress) looked resplendent with his beard and told a couple of jokes. Then the excellent voice of Frankie Holliday was heard in a mixed medley of songs. The All-Men-Nettes were represented by Jackie Daniels and his spoff of Lily Tomlin. Then came Karl Kay and a medley of Jane Froman songs. Finally Jose' appeared with the excellent pianist "Hazel Maud" McGinnis, and we had the Death Scene from Madamn Butterfly. The stage was then inundated with gorgeous boys. It was Perry as "Mae West" with the Vector Boys. The finale was Lorelei with a funny take-off on Aimee Semple McPherson. There is no way to gauge the amount of fine talent on the stage that night. It was the best performance I have seen in many a day, and needless to say it would be a long running show in any theater. Thanks again to Lorelei and all the fine performers, as well as stage hands, light men, and other volunteers for a truly memorable evening.

It is good to see that Fe-Be's is finally back from vacation. Do drop in and say hello. We have another new club in town. The Gaslight over on Valencia Street. Nice large room with very warm decor and dancing. The Highlighters will be performing there on weekends. Out on Haight Street we have the new Big Ange. Go by and say hello to Jim, your genial host. And last but not least is the Inn-Debt on California St. near Hyde - host here is Mike.

Have a very nice holiday season, and may the New Year bring you all the best of health and happiness.

Donald Warman Reports

Gays who talk longingly of a Federal grand jury probe of their unfriendly police vice squad may have the opportunity thrust at them through a peculiar set of circumstances which has even the docile straight press questioning the cops' ferocious concentration on homosexual activity.

Nobody in authority will speculate on the ramifications of such intriguing bits and snatches of fact as have so far emerged in a cops-and-robbers story in which gay hangouts seem to be a major factor.

Recently, on a Saturday, the "elite" Metro Squad, a city-wide plainclothes unit, violently invaded the Hollywood Police Division's turf to mop up on five widely known bars which featured boy-to-boy fuck films and/or nude go-go boy entertainment. One raid, on the Sunset Strip, came within five minutes of the expected arrival of Liberace and his entourage for what was to have been a farewell party for the tour-bound pianist.

(Celebrity appearances here, even in the least discrete circumstances, seem always to be known ahead of time).

The squad missed Liberace but corraled a handful of managers, entertainers and films in the lightning sweep.

By the next day, word of the unusual ferocity of the raids — sidewalk beatings and such lurid stuff — had spread. Hollywood Division cops, who are more or less in a state of truce with the bar owners, could only say that they knew nothing of the raids, before, during or after. It was a "downtown" matter.

Downtown higher-ups, as usual, had nothing to say. The Metro Squad exists in theory to concentrate on hard-core crimes like drug pushing which could involve wide conspiracies and thus can be dealt with best on a city-wide level and in secrecy.

The significance of the timing was not lost on Hollywood area activists who were pinning big hopes on a special California Assembly election the following Tuesday. One of the candidates, a liberal Democrat political debutant named Richard Alatorre, had campaigned on the issue of homosexual civil rights, a hot subsurface topic in the heavily gay-populated area.

Alatorre surprised almost everybody by winning easily in his party's primary. On election night and on every second successive night for almost two weeks, bars ranging from the most flagrant to the most sedately closeted were slammed with the same unexplained violence. (In all, about 70 persons were arrested or left beaten outside fifteen bars).

Prompted by insistent questioning, Police Chief Ed Davis called an unusual press conference to state, without amplification, that the Hollywood detective division was under departmental investigation. Its commander had been relieved and some of its members intensively questioned, Davis said in closing.

Then, a departmental complaint filed against a Hollywood Division detective, David Stachowski, was allowed to leak to the press. It charged that Stachowski, 35, had written false reports of his own investigation of a suspected burglary ring.

Specifically, according to the complaint, Stachowski had "covered up" for a burglary ring suspect named Kenneth Allen Meins, 25. Stachowski was now under suspension; Meins was in hiding and speaking only through his lawyer.

Meins, it developed, was a well-known and apparently highly popular figure in the gay bars. An attorney for the silent Stachowski implied that his client legitimately had used Meins as a regular informant on criminal activities in

THE CRIME REPORT THAT WAS IGNORED

By Lawrence Spears

"We can't condone all the desires and lusts God has put in our bodies," stated San Francisco Supervisor John Barbagelata, upon release of this city's Crime Committee Report in June of 1971. Now — six months later — the report's Executive Director recalls that attitude and reveals that, in reality, the reforms that the report called for were doomed before their exposure by Mayor Joseph Alioto and his city administration.

In the area of Non-Victim Crimes, the Committee's conclusions were rejected by the mayor before he admittedly had time to read it. However, he did "accept" one section of this report — on homosexuality, says Reichert, "to make a bid for the large gay vote by supporting our recommendation to remove from the criminal sanction all sexual acts committed in private by consenting adults." The mayor proclaimed that "the police are not going to invade any bedrooms to enforce any laws unless a child is involved." Later, when a resolution to that effect came to his desk from the Board of Supervisors (after extensive lobbying by S.I.R.'s Jim Foster) the mayor surprised most people by vetoing the measure. His reason: That he had been advised by the Police Department that the term "private sex" in the proposed state consensual sex bill could be interpreted to mean "public sex". The mayor was brought to task publicly by Supervisors Dianne Feinstein and Terry Francois, but the resolution died with his veto.

Irving Reichert now looks back on those days with some bitterness as he recalls that the mayor consistently supported the Police Department and all of its policies. Alioto praised "our great Police Department" and "the excellent way it handles citizen complaints". The mayor's own Crime Committee and many citizen groups were disagreeing, out of their long experience... Reichert became convinced that "the mayor would attack any Committee report critical of the Police Department... He was not going to jeopardize his chances for higher political office by being vulnerable to the charge that he couldn't even claim an efficient police force."

The Non-Victim Crime report that the Committee released called for a lessening of police concentration on the arresting minor offenders in the areas of drinking, gambling, prostitution, narcotics and homosexuality: "The criminal justice system should not intervene in matters of purely private sexual conduct... Much of the teaching about homosexuality in Western societies stems from legal phraseology, these teachings made homosexuality 'a crime against nature'." The section on homosexuality made indirect reference to S.I.R., which the Committee had visited in its investigation. (The full Homosexual Conduct section appeared in the July, 1971, Vector).

The Committee also recommended better handling of citizen complaints, reorganization of the Police Department, an expansion of Police-Community Relations Program, and the upgrading of officers by merit rather than strictly by seniority. But the opposition to change was over-whelming and Reichert now says that "honest men should accept Alioto appointments only if they can withstand threats" because of the pressure applied to keep the status quo and avoid any criticism. Powerful forces in the community support the mayor: The Crime Committee Report was ignored by the Chamber of Commerce; the Bar Association did not even ask Committee members to speak on the study; the Grand Jury ("watchdog of public interest") remained quiet and incompetent city administrators, politicians and friends still do not speak of the report six months after its release for fear Reichert states "that if one link was snapped the chain would break."

Reichert says that San Francisco is "unanimously regarded by law enforcement people throughout the state as having the worse Sheriff, the worst Adult Probation Department, the poorest Public Defender and the most provincial and political Police Department". In spite of this, the Presiding Judge of the Superior Court, Francis C. McCarty, stated that the Committee "has done nothing but pick fault and criticize fine public servants who are doing a great job."

In this atmosphere of indifference and fear of reprisal, the mayor's own Crime Committee's brilliant analysis of local law enforcement has been ignored.

The only bright hope seems to be in the area of the much criticized Sheriff's Department with the recent election of a liberal crusader, Richard Hongisto. The present Sheriff, Mathew Carberry, had ignored proposed reforms over a 15 year period. It was not until the present Sheriff's alcoholism received extensive public attention that the public rejected him.

Meanwhile, proposed Police Department reforms are forgotten while only one out of eight serious crimes are solved and the majority of arrests are still made for non-victim crimes... And what is the solution?

Irvin Reichert concludes: "I dislike becoming involved in any way with politics. It is not my bag — as the current expression goes. But, a number of dedicated citizens and I devoted 2½ years to the San Francisco Crime Committee in an effort to improve this community..."

"I am convinced that the only way our work will not be wasted is to change our political leadership and elect a new Mayor. Reports of Committees, the hopes of good citizens and the best intentions won't bring about change. A new Mayor can..." If Reichert's analysis is true, we must wait another four years as Mayor Alioto has just been re-elected. Mayoralty Candidate Dianne Feinstein expressed her dismay after the November defeat: "The people simply do not want change."

Hollywood.

But what activities? Was Stachowski's record as an enforcer so good as to suggest that he was working from inside information? Or was his assignment itself a cover for other duties?

While the unanswered questions hung in the air, the Los Angeles Times, which seldom concerns itself with matters embarrassing to the police establishment, learned that the Hollywood investigation began in August when federal agents arrested Hardy L. Fernimen, a police intelligence officer and onetime Hollywood Division detective. Fernimen was accused of trafficking in drugs.

Court records indicated that Meins was arrested three years earlier in a Hollywood burglary attempt. One of the detectives who grilled the young suspect for three days before releasing him without charge was the very same Fernimen. Meins' lawyer at that time was Matthew Segall. Fernimen's lawyer in his present pending federal narcotics charge is the same Matthew Segall... It was what the unsensational Times called a "curious tangent."

One of a whole lot of them, it would appear.

Entertainment West, a throwaway ad sheet for the gay bar circuit, has taken it upon itself to debunk a persistent canard publicized by now to even such unsophisticated readerships as that of Miss Joyce Haber. It is, of course, the tale that Rock Hudson and Jim Nabors were once united in matrimony. By a gay minister in Las Vegas, of all places.

Nonsense, said Entertainment West. Then, in a barrage of ricochet shots W.C. Fields might have envied, the paper worked in the following male celebrity names:

Entertainment West tacked on a few more, labelling them "recent additions" to the roll call of those defamed by gossip:

Glenn Campbell, Tommy Smothers, Roman Gabriel, Chuck Connors and George Hamilton.

Poor old Liberace didn't make the list. But then he missed out on his own farewell party, too. This just isn't his year.

hand, I do not believe in "hell fire and damnation," to scare people into the church. My attitude is that you soft-sell the Christian doctrine, which may sound very strange. You talk to people honestly and if you honestly feel that you know the Christ then that will come across.

VECTOR: You smile a great deal and laugh a great deal. On the telephone, we can feel your congeniality. With all of the problems and criticism you must face each day, how do you keep your good nature?

PERRY: I am a believer in the thought that if you are really going to be a Christian you are going to be a happy person. You have something to be happy about. You may have personal problems at times or something like a $100,000 debt on a church building (it is not that much, by the way). But when you are content with yourself and you know who you are and what you are in the areas of Christianity, homosexuality, heterosexuality or what ever, it means that you can honestly be at peace with the world.

A man becomes a man and a woman becomes a woman — when they quit worrying about it. When you have that inner peace of knowing who you are and what you are, whatever that might be, the whole world is seen in a different perspective. That is my philosophy that I live by.

VECTOR: Is there "big money" behind the MCC movement?

PERRY: We do have financial problems but we do not have a financial crisis. In this last year our membership (those who give dimes, quarters and dollars regularly, not any "big money" source) gave $112,000 to support the church. We do not have any rich backers in our church... I tell my people, "We can have anything that we want, as long as we are willing to pay for it."

VECTOR: Now you are hearing candidates for public office speak at MCC and are ringing door bells to support your choices. How did this come about?

PERRY: It is because an organization like S.I.R. has for several years stood up and said, "We are a gay group and we are going to invite candidates down." I am sure that people laughed when S.I.R. did it that first time but it is you people at S.I.R. that broke the ground. Then all of a sudden we woke up in Los Angeles and said, "Why shouldn't we ask the candidates to come out. S.I.R. has been doing that for years in San Francisco."

We told these candidates, "look to San Francisco!" The homosexual will not stand around anymore and not be noticed by you people. You are going to have to speak to us because we control the winning factor in the district that you run in." And we could speak from a strength of 6%, which can swing any election in Los Angeles.

Robert Stephenson ran for councilman against an incumbent that used the word "queer" on television. We got behind Stephenson. At his headquarters, MCC people manned three of his five telephones. He won by 6% of the vote. (Note: At this point, Rev. Perry gave several more examples of how recent political involvements by MCC and the new Gay Community Alliance group have influenced the outcome of elections. His knowledge of the candidates and their positions on issues demonstrated his involvement in the election of candidates at all governmental levels who speak up for homosexual rights).

They feel that the gay community has pride in itself all at once. That we believe that "gay is good" and that we are not afraid anymore. That we are going to show our political muscle. That we are going to let them know we have political muscle and that we are going to get involved politically.

VECTOR: Some people think that church services should not be fun, but we always have a good time and enjoy the laughter at MCC in Los Angeles. Please comment.

PERRY: We are taught in scripture, that the church is "the house of the Lord." If you come to my house, I want you to have fun. I want you to enjoy yourself and to act completely natural. At MCC-LA if you feel like applauding you can without destroying the sanctity of the church. You can laugh. You don't have to sit around with a long face and I don't believe that the Lord wants that; He wants us to be happy individuals.

VECTOR: Do you have any special reaction when a big thing is made about you being THE Reverend Troy Perry, "that everyone has heard"?

PERRY: There are times when this doesn't embarrass me at all... But if I have escaped to one of our gay establishments to relax with a few friends, it never fails. Someone gets on the loud speaker system and says, "Guess who is here tonight?" This is disturbing. There are times when I just want to be left alone. It is getting more difficult for some people to separate Troy Perry, the minister, from Troy Perry, just another human being. But it is true that at this point I have to live in a gold fish bowl.

My privacy will be completely gone, probably, when my book comes out this coming Spring. There will be national television coverage and then I won't be able to go anywhere without being Reverend Troy Perry.

The Inflamed Liver A New Hepatitis Discovery

In the July, 1970, Vector I wrote an article on hepatitis ("When Eyes Are Curious (Yellow)"). Newer knowledge about this disease and the many inquiries I have had regarding it, have prompted me to write this further discussion.

The discovery that "Serum Hepatitis" can be transmitted by contact is the most important change in our understanding of the disease. There are two forms of the disease, hepatitis. They are due to distinctly different viruses. Immunity to one form does not confer immunity to the other. Serum Hepatitis is most often contracted from receiving infected blood (as in transfusion) or from being inoculated with infected needles (as in tattooing), razors, or dental instruments. "Infectious Hepatitis" is most often spread by direct contact with someone carrying the disease. It is now known that both viruses are found in the saliva and urine of the affected individuals. The Infectious Hepatitis virus is found also in the feces. Thus it is clear that only the most fastidious individual could prevent spreading the disease he is carrying. The rest of us would spread it all over the place by kissing, preparing food for others, using utensils shared by others, sharing the same bathroom, etc. The obvious consequences of a sexual encounter with someone infectious (especially oral-genital) requires no further elucidation. It should be clear also, that simply being in the same room with someone carrying the disease, or even handling papers, books, etc. handled by him would not usually cause spread of the disease. The big question is: When is someone who has contracted hepatitis infectious?

Unfortunately, there is no ready answer to that question. At present we must assume that the person who comes down with hepatitis was contagious for at least two weeks before symptoms developed and will remain contagious for at least two more weeks. It is quite well known however, that the majority of cases (which are nevertheless quite contagious) have no significant symptoms or signs at all. The incubation period varies from three weeks to three months and contagion can develop at any time during the incubation period. It is perfectly obvious, however that someone who has the disease and is jaundiced (yellow) is most certainly contagious.

Infectious Hepatitis can be much ameliorated if not prevented, by an injection of gamma globulin. In San Francisco, the Public Health Department will give you a free injection if you come in contact with a case of hepatitis. Serum Hepatitis is not affected by gamma globulin. At present it is impossible to tell quickly (sometimes at all) what type of hepatitis a particular patient has. Thus, it is wisest to obtain the injection if you have been exposed even if you yourself have had hepatitis in the past! Fortunately, we are well on the way to developing a vaccine against Serum Hepatitis; but it is not available now and won't be available for several years. How do you know when you have hepatitis?

You don't. The symptoms are very varied and only your doctor can be sure of the diagnosis. The outstanding sign of the disease is, of course, jaundice. Jaundice is the term denoting a deep yellow discoloration of the eyes and skin, invariably associated with a very dark color of the urine and often associated with a very light (clay) color of the feces. However, jaundice need not appear or may appear quite late in the course of the disease. Early symptoms include fatigue, loss of appetite, fever, nausea, vomiting, lassitude, and decreased use of cigarettes by smokers. Usually there is some discomfort in the right side of the abdomen. Indeed, the symptoms are so similar to any other type of virus infection, that it is common for most people to ignore the discomfort thinking it nothing more than a "touch of the flu" until the more urgent problem of extreme fatigue and jaundice supervene. Once the diagnosis has been made, what then?

In the ordinary case, the doctor will simply get appropriate laboratory studies and recommend that the patient get all the rest he can and a proper diet. There are no foods which are particularly harmful to the patient with hepatitis (excluding alcohol!!!!). Generally speaking fatty foods and foods hard to digest will not help his appetite and bland starchy foods are recommended. Vitamins may be useful so long as the appetite is poor. Practically all medicines including "cold remedies" and aspirin and certainly all forms of alcohol including beer and wine are harmful to the patient with hepatitis. Rest in bed is almost always necessary for the first few days but soon the patient feels better and gradually regains appetite and energy. Don't be misled, however, hepatitis can be a most serious and disastrous disease. It can, indeed, be fatal! The more serious cases are, of course, treated in the hospital and often require very special diets and medications. It is essential, therefore, that a doctor is following each case. Most often the disease runs a relatively short course and the patient may return to full activities in three to six weeks. However, some cases require months before ordinary work may be performed (it is now becoming evident that these more serious cases are probably all due to the Serum Hepatitis virus).

I am not at all certain why hepatitis is more prevalent in the gay world (indeed, I am not even certain it is, but it is the general opinion of most doctors in the Bay Area). It most likely has to do with the extent of promiscuous sexual encounters which allow for frequent close contact.

This is the watchbird watching you! Did you take your proper precautions today??

Growth, Activities -

Continue Into New Year

The Membership Chairman of The Society for Individual Rights has announced a phenomenal rise in the S.I.R. membership. In 1964 we had 12 members. Upon entering our present Community Center in 1965 membership had risen to 250. Entering the year 1971, 850 people were on the rolls and in the first few months of 1971 that figure has gained 350, to the present total of 1,200. This has necessitated the purchase in the past few months of a new Scriptomatic machine to make the mailings more automatic and the purchase of other office equipment such as a Gestefax stencil maker and a new Gestetner mimeograph machine. A Xerox reproducer and some additional typewriters had been donated by members.

Community Center Chairman Duane Wolcott has now received approval by the S.I.R. Board for a floor plan for the new community center (September, Vector).

The new center has 16 offices and will have a modern Members Lounge and a new Game Room when work is completed. The new facilities will particularly make it much easier for S.I.R. to continue to enlarge upon its legal, political and community service activities. Vector will have larger offices and its own telephones.

An additional employee is needed to handle the increasing volume of telephone calls (S.I.R. now has four telephones) plus in-person and mail requests for services.

Presently, S.I.R.'s income comes from four major sources: Stage Productions, 24%; Social Activities, 33%; Memberships 20% and Vector, 14%. Its expenditures are primarily for maintaining its large community center and services and these expenses will be larger with the move to the new 12,000 sq. ft. facility at 340 Ninth Street. At present the Center expenses are 75% of the total expenditure. . . This figure includes rent, utilities, janitorial services, office supplies and postage plus salaries (22%). Committee projects come to an additional 19%, mostly legal expenses and community service activities.

S.I.R.'s total income and expenditures will exceed $100,000 this year but with this has come a considerable demand on the organization for additional services. Office and telephone supplies have considerably increased as activity has increased.

A major problem is that, with some minor exceptions, S.I.R. supporters have not included S.I.R. in their wills or as beneficiaries in their insurance policies. These moneys and assets continue to go to distant relatives or medical foundations. Although S.I.R. is recognized as the outstanding gay organization in the United States and has a responsible leadership, homosexuals have consistently forgotten to provide for S.I.R. in these wills and insurance policies.

Dateline: TORONTO, CANADA

The local Daily Star carried a half-page article on the Community Homophile Association. The article was a good educational statement about how varied homosexuals are and what the gay rights movement is about. In Toronto, where press coverage has been difficult to obtain, this article is encouraging.

Dateline: AUSTRALIA

Dennis Altman, who first wrote about gay liberation for Vector (October, 1970) has written a book, "Homosexual: Oppression and Liberation." He discusses S.I.R. and his own philosophy and attitudes. It will be extensively discussed in next month's Vector.

Dateline: WASHINGTON, D.C.

The American Civil Liberties Union has filed a suit in the U.S. District Court, asking that the D.C. sodomy statute be declared unconstitutional because it violates the right of consenting adults to practice a private sex life.

Dateline: OAKLAND

Metropolitan Church here is located at 440 Santa Clara St., 939-2646. A gay Drinking Problem group has been added and it meets Tuesdays at 8:30.

Dateline: SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA

A new gay magazine, similar to Vector, is being launched here and its publishers will be running some of Dr. Inderhaus' columns soon. The new mag is called "William and John": Box 654, North Sydney.

Dateline: AMSTERDAM

The Dutch Society of Homosexuals (COC) has filed a petition against the state for allowing Dr. Rueben's "Everything You Always Wanted To Know -" to be released here. They are following the many protests and demonstrations against Dr. Rueben in this country because of the distorted and uninformed section on homosexuality.

Dateline: TELEVISION

Meanwhile, Dean Martin guested Eddie Albert and Johnathon Winters and all had to get in drag. The Carol Burnett shows are resembling gay bar entertainment. On one of Carol's segments one of her regulars was in drag and acted sadistically toward Paul Lynde. Lynde played a person who gets his kicks from feeling pain.

Dateline: LOS ANGELES

The editor of Vector, George Mendenhall, spoke to H.E.L.P.'s Tavern Guild here: "I can't tell you how happy I am to see the progress you have made. You are fighting for what you think is right. You are meeting in public, joining hands to work together." He reflected on the days when homosexuals in Los Angeles used coded names and were afraid to meet to discuss their rights.

Two men were observed in toilet stalls in Los Angeles through peek holes. They were arrested for alleged sex activity. Although the toilet stalls had no doors, H.E.L.P. Attorney Arlene Andelson claimed that the mens' privacy had been invaded... and won the case. The importance of this case is not that an alleged sex act in a questionable place was permitted without penalty but that it again brought attention to the fact that police officers in Los Angeles find that it is an important function to hide out in broom closets and peek through holes to catch homosexuals. The deployment of police personnel for this type of activity is questioned by rights groups such as H.E.L.P., S.I.R., and the American Civil Liberties Union.

One, Inc. has taken Newsweek to task for claiming that D.O.B. and Mattachine were the oldest gay organizations in the U.S. One says it was founded in 1952, one year before Mattachine.

Dateline: HOUSTON

"We question whether a practicing homosexual can any more effectively provide a Christian ministry for other homosexuals than can a drinking alcoholic minister to other alcoholics," states Rev. Spurgeon Dunman, editor of The Texas Methodist. He said "we must be more compassionate and tolerant" but added that homosexuality is "unnatural" and "not an acceptable form of behavior."

Dateline: CHICAGO

Gay Alliance has reorganized and now has a clause in its constitution that states that it will not endorse candidates for public office or ally itself with non-homosexual causes and that it will "not align itself with any organization that advocates violence."

Mattachine Midwest and The Trip bar presented a Masquerade Ball at Halloween with free limousine service, continuous entertainment, and $1,000 in prizes.

Dateline: UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

Michael Prost, 25, was the overwhelming victor. He was crowned during a football halftime to the cheering throng. It seems that he had beat out five lovely coeds for the Alumni Day title of Homecoming Queen.

Dateline: NEW YORK

Gasp! Fashion critics are amazed at Designer Rudi Gernreich's tongue-in-cheek designs. Rudi, who gave us the "topless" swimsuit a few years back, is not introducing the two-piece swim suit - for men. Why a male would want to cover his chest with the bra-like top has the critics talking. Rudi says his line is "unisex," adaptable to either sex.

State Assemblyman Antonio Oliveri states, "I think we are finally arriving at the realization that morality can not be enforced or taught by law. What consenting adults do in private should be their choice and decision." Olivieri and fellow legislator, Stephen Solarz, have held hearings here on "Crimes Without Victims." Both reactionary and liberal speakers testified and then the two assemblymen announced that they would propose a liberalization of the treatment of non-victim crimes in the next legislative session...

American Sex Laws Applicable to Homosexuals

William Parker's continuing research is a most significant contribution. Vector is proud to present a condensation of his recent survey of sex laws in the various states that are applicable to homosexuals. In an accompanying report, Mr. Parker gives the many, varied definitions of such words as "sodomy" and "lewdness" but it is too lengthy for us to print at this time. His informational booklets on homosexuality have been published by S.I.R. For a complete listing of S.I.R. publications write: Publications Chairman, S.I.R., 83 6th Street. San Francisco, 94103.

Homosexuality Is A Communist Conspiracy!

By Bert Harriot

The courageous John Birch Society is again "telling it as it is" in its current magazine with an article by a former Yale graduate, Dr. Medford Evans. This writer, who formerly wrote "The Assassination of Senator Joe McCarthy", has written an article on "Perversion And The Hatred of God" for American Opinion magazine. The original article is eight pages in length, too long for publication here, so we are reviewing it so that our readers can see the fine logic in Dr. Evan's thinking. Homosexuals, particularly, will recognize the truth in his statements.

Let us observe some of Dr. Evan's brilliant mind: "Homosexual love, turns to hatred. Homosexual acts are far more commonly sadistic than are normal acts of coition... Since homosexuals reject the other sex, but idolize their own sex and attempt sex acts, they are rejecting the plan of Creation and thus are led to reject the Creator."... So true. It is the hating, sadistic homosexuals that are driven by their homosexuality who reject God. Can't everyone see that?

Any reader can see the logic of the next step, as Dr. Evans explains: "To what shall we attribute the current obsession with homosexuality? In significant part the epidemic of homosexuals, like that of hippies and drug addicts, is the result of a deliberate cultivation by the Communist Conspiracy in order to weaken traditional society and hasten the destructive process of the revolution. Like drug addiction and a lifestyle of idleness, homosexuality is encouraged by Communists in non-Communists countries, and severely punished in Communist countries. All these aberrations weaken the State. Communists wish the State to be weakened in non-Communist countries, to be all-powerful in Communist countries."... It is obvious, that having rejected God, that the practice of homosexual acts would next drive the homosexual into becoming a weak capitalist — thus ready for Communism.

But the unsuspecting should be aware as homosexuality can be suspect where it is not and not suspect where it actually is. For example, Dr. Evans continues: "In Jackson, Mississippi, this past summer we had a fair amount of work done on the Interstate highway by what looked like college boys on a summer job — painting stripes between traffic lanes. Now virtually all these kids had what on a male we call long hair. I don't know why they wanted it, but there they were, they had it. And most of these boys did not have beards. But let me tell you, you wouldn't call them effeminate, you wouldn't call them sissy! They were out there in denim shorts, period. No shirts, no hats, no shoes. Bare feet on the hot pavement, physical labor day after day. They weren't sissies. Well-muscled, big, tough — and long haired."... (This is not a passage from a popular gay novel. It is Dr. Evan's actual account). Anyone could see that these long haired guys were men, real men! They had Dr. Evan convinced, anyway... But one can be fooled, as the John Birch writer states: "On the other hand, it is a popular fallacy to assume that tough brutes are exempt from suspicion."

The sad thing about Dr. Medford Evans' commentary is that how can one avoid the menacing atheistic, communistic, sadistic homosexuals if they look and act just like everyone else? We ask that the Vector reader beware of everyone... even writers for the John Birch Society's American Opinion magazine.

The new City Players, a new gay theatrical group which has an ad in this Vector, has announced a cast of 34 local gay entertainers that will star in its first production, coming soon. Many S.I.R. regulars are included such as Nancy, Faye, Chuck Zinn, Chuck Waltz and Cliff Reynolds. Jose is in it, as well as the Fickle Fox's Don Cavello and Lori Shannon.

A member of Gay Liberation Front at SF State College has proposed a Gay Studies Department pointing toward a B.A. in Homosexuality!? GLF took an active part in the Peace March here in November... The Question Man in the S.F. Chronicle asked what people had had enough of and an unemployed young man said, "Faggotts. We got too many faggotts. Somebody suggested this place in the Haight where you can stay overnight. All night long we had to fight off faggotts." His new address: The Embarcadero Y.M.C.A. (which is somewhat notorious).

"Are you sleeping alone these nights?" was asked by the Question Man on another day and Garrick Warren, a metal sculptor, replied, "Yes and no. Oh, I have a friend over all the time but he sleeps in the other room. I'd like to, but it's been quite a long while. Maybe I will. Maybe I'll just go out and cruise."

Charles McCabe, SF Chronicle columnist, who has editorialized many times for homosexual rights has also said "gay is neither gay nor good" and in a November column he states: "The drunk likes being drunk, as the homosexual likes being gay. One of the reasons these habits are so hard to 'cure' is that they become a way of life... and the gays know almost no one but gays. They don't like to leave their friends."

The Council for Civic Unity a 25-year-old civil liberties group, has called for the police to stop dressing in sexy clothes in order to entrap homosexuals. It chides the police and finds it "harmful for these grown-up men to act as impersonators. Such costumes and disguises should be reserved for the theater or the policeman's ball." The Council also called on the Police Academy to permit homosexuals to talk with new recruits, rather than the present use of psychiatrists to discuss homosexuality. The Police Chief said he would "consider the suggestions."

Worship services at Metropolitan Community Church here are at 6 PM, Sundays, at St. Aidan's Church, Diamond Heights Blvd. and Gold Mine Dr. MCC has now moved into its new Center at 150 Sixth Street and it includes a coffee house and hotel. The information phone number at MCC is 415-864-3576 or 415-864-3063 (crisis phone)... MCC has a prayer meeting, Wednesdays; choir practice, Thursdays; law seminar, Fridays, a Spiritual Life meeting on Saturday mornings.

Rev. Ray Broshears, who incorporated the name "Gay Activists Alliance" in this city, claimed in a SF Chronicle article that his militant group was endorsing Scott Newhall for mayor instead of Dianne Feinstein, whom the rest of the gay community endorsed. Newhall is the wealthy former editor of the Chronicle. The final comment in the article: "Dianne Feinstein has the endorsement of S.I.R., the city's largest homosexual organization... Mrs. Feinstein failed to show at the GAA Candidates Night."

Reflections of a Boy Lover

paedophilia: having an affinity for the young

While Webster's Dictionary defines "boy" as a male between birth and puberty, we take a more limited definition here. In this article we are referring to the time period in a young male's life, from 13 to 16.

The subject presented here may appall some of our readers who believe that it is best not to discuss the less popular aspects of homosexuality. Certainly, the legality of an older man having a close relationship with a young man, 13 to 16, is a worthy subject for discussion. We are presenting, unedited, an interview with a charming, mature, retired 74-year-old engineer who loves young boys. He was interviewed in his home in Rome.

We wish to thank Frank Howell, our reviewer, for taping this talk in Rome last summer while he was on the One, Inc. European Tour.

Next month, Psychologist Martin Stow will discuss the attraction between older people and younger people.

By Carlos Miura

I was born in Italy in 1897 and I lived here until I was 22. I then moved to the United States, where I lived for forty years. I returned to live in Rome, Italy in 1961.

On a recent visit to the United States, I observed such a tremendous change in the public attitude toward our condition. In 1921 to be homosexual was indeed frightening and now we are coming into being recognized as human beings, as it should be. This is a most heartening thing for me to be able to say because you can not even guess how fearful you were if you were homosexual in 1921 and had to conceal that part of your life. Of course, I married and had children and this made it more difficult as I knew the consequences if that side of my life were revealed. I have been successful professionally and I have not had any legal difficulty in my personal sex life. I am so happy that there are those now who can come out in the open and speak up for our rights.

How did I discover my sexual nature? I was left without a father at 7 years of age and by the time I was 16, my mother had set up a private boys' school. She told me that I was a bright boy, which I was, and that I should assist in teaching the boys after I came home from High School each day. So that is what I did. It was then that I discovered something very peculiar about myself. One boy began to take a very special interest in me suddenly. He was 13 and as he sat opposite me I found myself liking him more and more and I began to notice his personality change. A fondness grew up between us. I remember that he wore short pants, as boys his age did in those days and I looked at his legs. His name was Frederick. He said things to me, like blossoms out from the inside of a person like an act of God, that were most affectionate. We began to cuddle one another and later, on other occasions we came to know each other intimately. That was the beginning of the whole thing.

From 16 to 22, things like this went on in the school undetected. Then one day my mother opened the wrong door and she discovered what was happening. You have to understand that my mother was a woman of tremendous intelligence but the school had a very good reputation so she, out of fear, said, "Carlos, you are my only son (I had two sisters) but I think it is time that you go out on your own so I am sending you to the United States to live with my sister in New York." In New York, I discovered that my aunt had two young twin sons and I soon fell unbelievably in love with one of them. I would come home from work and how I eagerly waited for him to greet me. We would go out and walk and walk together. It was four years of bliss, by then he was 16. The split was when my aunt told us that we were too close to each other . . . and we had been as close as two human beings could be. She said, "Don't you think you should leave Victor for awhile?" This hurt me but I moved to Chicago and continued my studies. I became a Construction Engineer and then became very well established for my work by building a bridge in Columbus, Ohio and on another project for the Pennsylvania Railroad. My design plans were consistently better than those of others and I kept the costs down so I became most successful. This was in the 1930's through the 1950's.

My career was a side issue because my problem was how I could satisfy my terrific urge. I thought the best thing I could do to satisfy myself was to get married as I was also very capable of having sex with a woman. So I married in Chicago and raised two fine boys to manhood. One of my boys is a corporation executive and the other is an engineer. They have wonderful families. But married life did not change my sexual urge at all. I organized a Boy Scout troupe and was most successful as a Scout Master, even going up into a position of importance in that. It was a wonderful period . . . being married and working with the young boys all of the time. But again . . . like my mother in Italy and my aunt in New York, for the third time in my life a woman, my wife, was to tell me that we must separate because she was aware of what was going on between the boys and myself. My sons were at the University so they were on their own.

Each boy became a distinctly different individual, as they were as boys. The Lord has been good to me in that I have been able to remain friends of many of my boys through life.

I never took a boy off the street to have sex with him in a sudden situation. I met the boys each in a variety of ways where we could be social and get to know each other. If you just had sex with a boy momentarily, that would be the end of it. It takes time to develop a love relationship. For some it takes a few weeks, for others a year or longer. When the boy loves you and you love him you can do almost anything together then. If you love him you must bring him to the point where he loves you. This is not easy. But when it happens, it is the most marvelous thing for both of you.

It has amazed me that out of my 30 to 40 boys that only one, possibly two, have become homosexual. But in those two cases, I believe they had tendencies when they met me. I know I was not at fault . . . You must understand, that I never dwell on the sex act but I wish a relationship with the total boy, his intellect and his culture. They are like angels and I help them spread their wings by exposing them to many things in life of an intellectual and cultural nature. I never would say, "Let us fuck" or "Let us suck" because such was unnecessary. The sex, if there is any happens very naturally. One should keep relationships on a higher plain than just the sex act.

You must do things to win their affection. My present lover was not musical but I introduced him to the piano and although he was reluctant at first he is now delighted that he plays better than I do. You know, the area of sex itself is so limiting. They may come to play with you or you with them but there is so much more. They are interested in sports, a social life with other people their age and their education in school. I enjoy seeing the boys have a full life. You would have enjoyed seeing me with 20 visiting young boys as I toured them through the ship yards in Los Angeles during World War II. It was really a sight. I enjoyed seeing them have such a good time. Once, I was involved in youth work in Los Angeles and when we went camping in the hills I always had a double-sleeping-bag for my favorite and I. There was usually fight over who would sleep with me. But there was never, and I mean never, any sex with those boys. I have to establish a firm friendship before that could ever happen.

How do I meet boys? With one boy it began when I taught him piano, with another I volunteered to take a young son of some visitors to Rome to visit Pompeii. There is not always sex nor should there be. The relationship is what is rewarding to me. I do not however, want to relate all of the incidents of my friendships and

by Harleigh Kyson, Los Angeles
Larry Mullen, San Francisco

Many of our readers can remember how scared they were when they realized that they differed from others sexually. We couldn't talk to our parents and friends about our feelings. We knew that society, reinforced by the psychological mythologizing by psychiatrists, saw us as "sick." Many in our society still think this and those who are enlightened attempt to find out more about homosexuality by checking the books at their local public library, the perennial source of "knowledge." And what do they find? A few one-sided books by the same straight psychiatrists who put down homosexuality for a variety of reasons.

This situation, happily, is beginning to change due to the efforts of a group of dissatisfied librarians themselves. The American Library Association, recognizing dissent in its ranks, has formed the Social Responsibilities Round Table (SRRT), a loosely structured sub-group which attempts to make libraries relevant to the needs of the minority groups who are trying to bring about social change. SRRT is made up of a variety of Task Forces. One such group has been established on Gay Liberation by Israel Fishman.

The Gay Lib Task Force is working for homosexual law reform and supports all gay organizations. The most immediate impact is its demand for non-discrimination in the hiring of homosexual librarians, the removal of the classification of Homosexuality as an "Abnormality" in card classifications and the establishment of more varied bibliographies that contain books that explain that Homosexuality is an acceptable way of life.

The National Microfilm Registry is the firm that coordinates microfilms of publications and the ALA group is having gay publications microfilmed so that this national microfilm library can have all of the back copies of these available for machine projections. The microfilm makes images larger and brighter than the original.

Those interested in the continuing work by the Gay Liberation Task Force of the American Library Association may write to Miriam Crawford, SRRT Clearinghouse, 4240 Parkside Avenue, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, 19104. In The San Francisco Bay Area, Vector's book editor, Frank Howell, may be contacted by writing to S.I.R., 83 Sixth Street, San Francisco, 94114. In the Los Angeles area, Vector readers may contact Harleigh Kyson, Jr., 570 North Kenmore Avenue, Apt. 310, Los Angeles, 90004.

Deviation and Strange Loves

By Frank Howell

Dr. Eustace Chesser has plugged away at his pro-sexual mission for over twenty years. His Love Without Fear is a standard among nearly thirty titles. I can remember feeling comforted during my teen years by reading some of his pioneering statements favoring erotic freedom before it became the "in" thing to do. In Strange Love he fails to offer much that is startling or new for those who are well read. For the novice, however, he provides a rousing introduction. Chesser's philosophy is clearly anchored in compassion and tolerance when he writes, "Perhaps loveless sex, whatever form it assumes, is the true and only perversion. When (man) behaves with callous disregard for anyone but himself he ignores his essential nature as a human being."

Dr. Chesser's kindly attitude stretches far indeed. He blankets in not only homosexuality (in three chapters, including female) but also adultery, fetishism, transvetism, and flagellation. When not carried to extremes he considers these expressions of emotion as genuine social acts. Only rape and the more obvious deeds of forcing your attention are labeled anti-social. This leaves a good deal of room to operate in. The S & M crowd will rejoice. Chesser has succeeded in outlining the area of what is normal as opposed to what strikes us as downright sick. The line cannot always lie straight on the page. Circumstances and people vary more than we will ever know. When does a belt lashing signify affection and when does such an act usher in the doctors couch?

Sexual fantasy holds the key to some of these disturbing questions. In his chapter on erotic illusions we find a case history of a man in his twenties which illustrates the dilemma. This gentleman was unable to consummate the sexual act with his wife until he began to gaze upon homosexual pornography prior to intercourse. His wife possessed features similar to that of a boy. Without the aid of these arousing pictures his potency was lost. We can only hope he found some middle ground between fantasy and the reality of solid flesh.

Strange Loves may lead to a fresh, realistic framework for evaluating any individual who is put down as "deviant." Hopefully, a more detailed and solid approach will appear soon.

Boy Lover

loves involving boys. Many of them are fond memories that I do not wish to share.

My wife and I are still good friends and she recently came to visit me here in Rome. She now thinks that her original decision was a mistake and she does not like living alone so she would like for us to be together again. We had a marvelous time seeing Rome together but it would never work out... I am independent and I have made a good life for myself here in Rome and I do not, at 74, want to change that. I belong to a homosexual organization here and I have very many friends. It is a pleasant and happy life.

Not all of my friends in Rome know about my relationship with Alan (a young man who lives with Carlos) as my social contacts are also extensive outside of the homosexual thing. Those of my friends who do know, do not find it adverse. I have two other young friends who visit me. One is a student in Naples and another is a musician here in Rome.

The Italian viewpoint is generally "live and let live" and homosexuals are much more out in the open now. Gore Vidal is well known and lives here in Rome. The director of the excellent movie, "Death in Venice" is another. (At this point Mr. Muira mentions several well known Italian public figures in science and the arts who have come out openly as homosexuals).

Boy lovers are not made. They are born. There are not experiences that makes one into a boy lover. It is born into you. It is not sex per se, as so many people think. It is beautiful but it only lasts 2,3 or 4 years at the most. What is the attraction? It is hard to pin down. It is the blossoming out into something, that catches my senses. It is nothing that I can do anything about. The true relationship that happens is something that is beneath, that is hidden to us. It is not something you put in the laboratory to analyze. It starts casually, evolves, flourishes, is voluptuous and then begins to decay as the boy reaches about 16.

In my 58 years as a boy lover, I have had 30 or 40 relationships. They have all followed the same pattern. Other gentlemen they can have relationships that last for years and years with varying degrees of happiness or grief or what will you, with one partner. But I have my fond memories too.

I helped these boys to become something worthwhile. I could because of my financial position and my concern. With my help, one of the boys became one of your great Scientists in the United States. I brought one young man from Italy to live with our family in Chicago and we were very close. Today he is a big man with an airline in the states. I have great pride in all of the boys I have helped.

GRAFFITI

by Lawrence Spears

One thing that most males have in common is that they use public rest rooms. While defecating there is usually nothing much to do to occupy one's mind... So some males take out a pen or pencil and write or draw something on the wall. Then research experts come along and study the walls to see what has been written. Well, that is what Lee Sechrest and A. Kenneth Olson did and they reported their findings in the Journal of Sex Research.

The researchers specifically studied the men's room walls in toilet areas in four types of institutions of higher education in a large metropolitan area.

In an earlier and similar study, conducted by the Kinsey Institute, it was discovered that 86% of the inscriptions on the walls were sexual in nature with 75% of the sexual inscriptions in some way involving homosexuality. In a study by Sechrest and Flores it was discovered that in the United States such writings were much more common than in other countries. The implication drawn was the possibility there is more homosexuality in this country.

Kinsey (1948) concluded that economically poor males were less interested in or stimulated by homosexuality. It was logical therefore that the trade schools and junior colleges would have less homosexual writings in the Men's than those in the four-year colleges and professional schools. Another factor to take into consideration is that the later group is older than the first group.

The total writings averaged three per stall. Heterosexual inscriptions had their highest number in the trade schools with drawings of the female genitalia more common... Most drawings have comments nearby with the humor sharper at the higher school levels... The homosexual writings in the upper schools had more lengthy, detailed accounts of homosexual intercourse of the type available in frankly pornographic books... Almost all of the homosexual inscriptions were invitations for sex or drawings of the male genitalia.

The bulk of nonsexual inscriptions are of little interest, but many of them were of a hostile nature and others reflected a racial or ethnic prejudice. Most surprising were the extensive, forceful and inventive hostile writings in the trade school Men's. In one trade school, for example, nine writings were anti-Negro, seven anti-white, and one anti-Semitic. At the other end of the scale, the professional school had no ethnic or racial writings.

Sechrest and Olson explain that the number of heterosexual writings remained generally the same at all school levels but that the homosexual writings were more extensive and at detailed length at the higher levels.

A study by Sechrest and Flores (1969) states that these findings do not necessarily reflect the frequency of sex experiences but Kinsey (1948) notes that in the lower socio-economic level early heterosexual experiences are more frequent. It can be stated that toilet wall inscriptions of an erotic nature develop out of the fascinations of the inscriber and his judgment about what others will find fascinating... Those persons who displayed their hostility on the toilet walls of trade schools are talented in the expression of hostility, and beside their efforts the weak and limited expressions of presumably brighter and more verbal students in colleges and professional schools appeared pitiful.

With Laud Humphrey's superb study on "Tearoom Trade" we now have a new research area, the rest room writings. It boggles the mind to imagine what new research project is underway.

"Unlawful activities that do not harm innocent victims should be removed—"

by Lawrence Spears

New York City, in one single day, recently had two murders, 60 beatings, 210 robberies, 550 burglaries and 460 major thefts. Meanwhile, on this same day, a number of officers were used to raid ten Manhattan movie houses showing erotic sex movies. Owners and projectionists were arrested and planted cameramen photographed the patrons for release on the evening television news programs.

Across the nation, in San Francisco, five officers were involved in one evening's viewing and the confiscation of films at the O'Farrell Theater. The police in this city have solved only 13% of the major crimes.

The Wall Street Journal seriously questions the validity of deploying men for these activities when there is so much unsolved major crime. Writer Jonathan Kwitny has asked, "Multiplied a thousand times every day across the country, does such enforcement of public morality impair the efficiency of police, courts and prisons in safe-guarding life and property?" He continues: "A large and growing number of lawyers, judges and police officials think so. They argue that many unlawful activities that don't harm innocent victims should be removed from the criminal justice area — that is decriminalized."

One liberal police commissioner in New York said recently that, "The police are burdened with an enormous number of laws they're supposed to enforce. It's impossible for us to do it all. If these laws weren't on the books, obviously we'd have more time to deal with serious laws."

Oddly enough, more than half of the persons arrested in this country have never laid a hand on a fellow citizen or stolen anything! They were arrested for being too drunk, using drugs, performing "illicit" consensual sex acts, gambling, running away from home or dealing in pornography.

California State Senator Donald Grunsky (Republican, Watsonville) expresses a common objection to relaxing victimless crimes: "I'm worried about the permissiveness in this country today. We don't propose to enact laws that will make it easier for people to pour their lives down a drain." Senator Grunsky, in 1969, fired six persons, mostly law professors, that had been hired to redraft California's criminal statutes. These professors, it was widely thought, might have recommended the relaxation of laws that now make marijuana and private, consensual sex illegal.

The article ends on a note of hope as it refers to some state legislators in New York State who are determined to reopen the entire issue of the value of making arrests on gambling, prostitution and homosexuality. Certainly more important spokesmen are now willing to speak out on the subject, including the prestigious Wall Street Journal.

Books

By Martin Stow

Christmas seems an appropriate time to comment upon a book which discusses "A Christian's Approach to Homosexuality". Norman Pettinger, the author, is known to some as the Anglican priest who collaborated with the late Episcopalian Bishop, James Pike, in his writings. Time for Consent was originally a pamphlet quite popular in England rewritten and amplified into book form. Although author Pettinger is cloistered in the ancient walls of King's College, Cambridge, no authority, of whatever persuasion, can doubt that he has "been around" and knows his subject matter. One can only question the way in which he has put his facts together and the conclusions he has derived.

I mean no disrespect when I say that this is the book one would give to a church-going mother or maiden aunt of some intelligence and understanding who is somewhat upset about your homosexual life style. One could hardly find a more competent Christian defense of homosexuality. God created man with the capacity and need to love; the object of his love and the way in which he expresses this love are of secondary importance. As long as the intent of the homosexual is to express toward and receive love from another it is not sinful because God condones love in any form. So far, so good.

Since the Rev. Pettinger is a cleric we cannot condemn him for expressing his ideas in theological context, but it is at this point that psychological dissent occurs. Homosexual relationships motivated by love are good; those motivated by hate are bad. Long, stable relationships are good; short transitory relationships are bad. The author begins by citing cases of long homosexual relationships in which physical sexual acts are an important part. In doing so he holds up a model which is an exception rather than the rule. He continues throughout the book to not fully grasp the significance of man's ambivalent (good and bad) nature.

The theologian is ever hopeful that man can separate the good from the bad, consciously and willfully. The psychologist is skeptical about theories and ethics predicated on this hope. If Time for Consent were used as a basis for a legal code governing homosexual conduct, homosexual relationships of some duration in which the fellatio and sodomy were found to be an expression of love would be legal, whereas, short relationships in which the sexual acts were found to be motivated by aggression would be illegal. The closest that the psychologist can come to this theological basis is to assert that all men need affection but in their striving to attain this goal they often express hostile feelings. In the case of homosexuality these hostile feelings are most often expressed genitally. It is therefore, quite possible to find frequently functional (good) relationships in which there is a disfunctional (bad) physical component. This is what leads to the much more frequent long relationship in which sex within the relationship is no longer a factor.

It is only conjecture that Christ loved his disciples of long acquaintance more than the objects of his immediate miracles of healing. Length and frequency are not conditions of love. The promiscuous person is as capable of love as is the most sexually "faithful". Author Pettinger is sincere in inviting the homosexual into the Christian fellowship but there are some conditions to this invitation which may cause the homosexual to hesitate.

HALLOWEEN NITE at S.I.R.

A turn-away crowd of several hundred people crowded S.I.R. Center in San Francisco on Halloween night to observe the contenders for the coming Golden Awards. Social Chairman Bob Cramer and his assistants magnificently created magic with the Center walls lined in black vinyl and an impressive altar on center stage. Two cocktail lounge areas were available and every available table and standing-room-only space was taken.

Scores of elaborately costumed groups arrived by buses at the lighted stage entrance while others stepped from limousines... and the following morning the city's newspapers told the story of the night at S.I.R. the San Francisco Examiner had called upon the community to come and enjoy in an article before the event. They came, they enjoyed, and even though S.I.R. members were admitted free over $1,000 profit was realized for the New S.I.R. Center Fund.
